MANIT MINUTE

Marshallese have traditional cures for just about anything that ails you. The Marshallese Cultural Center has some displays and occasionally host Marshallese demonstrations and discussions on this topic. There are also books available covering traditional medicine.

It is with great pleasure that the Marshall Islands Swim Federation, in conjunction with Marshall Islands National Olympic Committee and Federation Internationale de Natation, announce that Giordan Harris, 19, and Ann-Marie Hepler, 16, are invited to participate at the XXX Olympic Games to be held in London, England from July 27 through August 12, where they will be representing the Republic of the Marshall Islands in the sport of swimming in the 50-meter freestyle. Both swimmers depart for a four week training camp in England, then will report to the Olympic Village on July 16 to continue preparing for their August 2 and 3 event.

THE RUMOR MILL

Col. Joseph Gaines addresses circulating rumors head-on.

Rumors can earn from one to five ears. One ear is an unfounded rumor, while a rumor earning five ears is the truth.

Rumor: The bowling alley will expand its hours of operations.

The bowling alley currently opens on Saturday from 6 to 9 p.m., and there are no plans to expand hours during this fiscal year. That may change come next fiscal year. The bowling alley is also available for private functions for a fee. Also, new seats purchased by the Quality of Life committee are being installed this week.

Thumbs Up!

... to the Kwajalein community for your acceptance of our family into this tight-knit community. It meant so much to me, Tammy and Ryan. That made this tour an unforgettable and pleasurable experience. Thank you all.
Sgt. Maj. Hohn Wolf

... to Barbara Bicanich for her help compiling information for the senior insert. It's a lot of work, and I greatly appreciate the efforts she puts in every year. -Sheila Gideon

Boy Scouts head into summer break

By Maj. Stephen M. Parrish Sr.
Assistant Scout master
Boy Scout troop 314

Boy Scouts all across America and the world are heading into their summer break soon and Kwajalein is no exception. Before they do, I want to point out that the Scouts of Troop 314 have done some amazing things this year. They have camped over 12 nights on various islands, hiked nearly 60 miles, cooked some amazing food in their field kitchen, swam and boated in kayaks miles in the ocean, and have done so with a positive spirit of adventure and willingness to continue to learn and grow. In addition to the “fun” stuff, the boys actively sought to improve themselves through rank advancement and the earning of numerous merit badges. Finally, they grew a little each time they gave back through a community service project, whether picking up trash or the arduous task of replacing the rocks at the flag pole.

None of this would have been possible without the outstanding leadership of, and literal weeks of time given by, the volunteers who supported the Scouts. For the Cub Scouts of Pack 135, Cub master Jeff Jones, committee chair Corey Wiley, treasurer Julie Lundberg, and awards coordinator Dawn Gray were essential to a successful overall Cub Scout program for Kwaj, whereby 17 boys moved up a rank, five of which became Boy Scouts. Cub den leaders were Mark McCollum for Tigers, John Breen for Wolves and Peter Parker for Bears. Those that supported the Boy Scouts include Jane Sholar, awards; Julie Jones, committee chair; Dayna Wiley, membership – Cubs/boys and Janis Murillo, Treasurer.

Parents have told me that two years ago, the Boy Scouts here were a mostly unsupervised group of poorly organized boys that they would rather not have their child associated with. That all changed, however, when Mr. Corey Wiley stepped up and took on the role of Scout master. Corey wasn't sure what to do at first, but he had leadership and drive and figured it out quickly, turning the program into a successful, well led, organized, positive learning environment. As the assistant Scout master, I learned a lot from Corey and together I think we made a pretty good team. Thanks to all the volunteers - it has been a pleasure to have served scouting here on Kwajalein.

The boys have been an absolute inspiration to me and I cannot be more proud of them. I would be remiss if I did not recognize the boys' accomplishments this year: John and David Sholar, life Scout; Stephen Parrish, star Scout; Cameron Jones, Isaac Parker and Dawson Wiley, first class; Andrew Lundberg and Chad Sykes second class; Thomas Greene, Tenderfoot; Zack Jones, Gabriel and Joseph Parrish, arrow of light and Tenderfoot; and Aiden Mitchell and Aaron Seelye, arrow of light and Scout. The boys also collectively earned 44 merit badges for the categories in citizenship in the nation, coin collecting, family life, fingerprinting, first aid, fishing, railroading, reptile and amphibian study, emergency preparedness, swimming, camping, orientating, fire safety, cooking, bird study, art, music and reading.

If you are interested in volunteering with Scouting, do so – Corey's number is in the book. Ask what you can do; even an hour helps the leaders and can have a lasting impact on a young person's life. Whatever the boys do this summer, I hope it includes some scouting, some adventuring and some growing in character. My boys will join a new troop in the states, but the fond memories and friendships made in Troop 314 will be lasting.

Sgt. Maj. Hohn Wolf relinquishes USAKA responsibilities June 2

Article and photos by Catherine Layton
Associate Editor

Sgt. Maj. Hohn D. Wolf ended his tenure at U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll/Reagan Test Site June 2 in a Relinquishment of Responsibility ceremony at the Island Memorial Chapel. The ceremony is steeped in military tradition; symbolically, a sword represents the responsibility, and Wolf passed the sword back to USAKA/RTS Commander Col. Joseph Gaines, signifying the end of Wolf's tenure as the highest ranking enlisted advisor. A replacement will be arriving here in August.

After the passing of the swords, Gaines spoke about just what it takes to be a sergeant major in the Army. "The rank of sergeant major is the highest enlisted rank one can obtain in the U.S. Army. Enlisted Soldiers who obtain the distinction, who have been selected by the department of the Army for the promotion of sergeant major, are the epitome of success in their chosen field and in the profession of the Army. There is no greater honor than to serve as sergeants' major. The sergeant major in any unit carries out all standards of performance. He's responsible for the training and conduct of military personnel. I like to say he's the enforcer of policies, or what we call the standard merit. He should be wiser and have more experience than any other non-commissioned officer. He's expected to function completely without supervision; he's like the old sage from times past, and the sergeant major's counsel is expected to be calm, settled and unequivocally accurate. They are expected to possess energy and enthusiasm that never wanes, even in the worst of times."

Gaines continued, "This is a perfect description of Sgt. Maj. Wolf. In fact, Sgt. Maj. Wolf and I entered the Army at the same time in 1986. I can personally say that in most matters, he is far more experienced than myself. He has been a key staff advisor in every decision made on Kwajalein in the last two years. He's been front and center in every crisis and challenge this installation has faced. I can assure you, as you all know, there have been many. From the Japanese tsunami evacuation to two record budget cuts and the tough decisions associated with those cuts, to the dengue fever outbreak here in the Marshall Islands, the sergeant major has been an integral part of the planning in all of these events. He's also played a crucial role in establishing policies that have improved our posture as an Army base; in many ways, that may have gone unnoticed by some of you. From food safety, to pest control, to housing management, to installation security and recreational safety, sergeant major has been a key advisor in shaping these operations. Although you may have seen or heard the command perspective in town hall meetings or in the newspaper, it was the sergeant major that has been the engine behind these changes. I can tell you his absence will be felt immediately. I can personally say he will be missed as a valuable advisor in shaping Kwajalein's path forward as we transition the installation to Installation Management Command. Sergeant major, I don't know how we'll make it during the two months that you're not here before the replacement comes. We'll do our best, but you will leave a big hole in this staff as a key leader."

Iroi Senator Mike Kabua, left, bids farewell after the Relinquishment of Responsibility ceremony for Sgt. Maj. Hohn Wolf. Wolf's wife, Tammy, and son, Ryan, accompany Wolf in saying goodbye to the Kwajalein community.

Wolf addressed the attendees, thanking first and foremost his wife of 26 years, Tammy. "I can say unequivocally, I could not have done it without her." Wolf went on to thank individuals like Joseph Moscone, deputy mission commander for US-AKA/RTS. "Joe, you truly humble me, for your patience and advice." He thanked contractor partners as well, saying, "You have shown me that you don't have to wear a uniform to be patriotic." He concluded his speech by stating, "It has truly been an honor and pleasure to work here for these two years."

In a brief interview after the ceremony, Wolf elaborated, "For 26 years, I've dealt only with active-duty military. Normally, if there was a job to be done, I just had to say 'get it done.' Here, there is more to think about than just 'get the job done' or 'I want it done this way.' There is always a business practice situation. Understanding how much a budget drives things, for instance. That is what I learned about the most here, the budget process. It was one of my favorite parts of the job. Kwajalein would be a good transitional assignment for someone about to retire, or leave the military, and work in the civilian world."

Wolf's favorite activity outside of work was golf, saying, "I liked the convenience of the course. Tammy took up playing as well, and now we've got that to do together." While here, Sgt. Maj. Wolf finished 16 classes to earn a Bachelor of Science degree in information systems security from the American Military University. Before going to Ft. Sill, Okla., where Wolf will serve as sergeant major for the 31st Air Defense Artillery Brigade, he and Tammy will visit their daughter, Lauren, in Dallas, and will head up to New Jersey, where their son, Ryan, will begin classes at Drew University.

Sgt. Jeffrey Satterwhite presents flowers to Sgt. Maj. Wolf's wife, Tammy, in thanks from the Kwajalein community.

USAKA/RTS Commander Col. Joseph Gaines, left, and Sgt. Maj. Hohn Wolf, prepare to depart after the ceremony.

Graduation can be a bittersweet event, both for the students who have spent most of their lives in close-knit friendships with their classmates, and for parents who have to let go as their children become adults. Kwajalein Jr./Sr. High School hosts intimate graduation ceremonies for the seniors, each one thoroughly recognized for their achievements. The ceremony June 1 at the Davye Davis Multipurpose Room was no different this year. The 18 graduating seniors walked into a pitch black room, lit only by the single candle each student carried. They gathered on stage, barefoot, beaming with pride. This was the first graduating class in a long time that left no student behind – every single student in the class graduated.

Shawn Brady and Luke Langmos welcomed guests in the traditional manner – Brady in well-spoken Marshallese, and his Marshallese classmate, Langmos in English.

With a grade point average of 3.989, valedictorian Jonathan Dane Bishop addressed his classmates. He congratulated his classmates on making it through 13 years of schooling, and more importantly, three years of Mr. Lindert's English classes. He reminded them that this is not just a celebration for them, but also for their parents, who worked hard to get them to this point in their lives. He also recognized the school faculty for the time and effort they invested in the graduating class. Bishop listed class accomplishments, including participating in the RustMan since seventh grade, swimming at the 2009 Swimming Championships and spending over 3,000 hours on the LCM traveling between Kwajalein and Ebeye. "Now we must look towards the future, because that is where our adventure begins. We are going to shape ourselves into 18 individual identities because we will be starting anew."

Scholarships from 15 different companies and associations were announced and handed out to the students. It was immediately obvious why Alex Shotts and Jacob Jahnke were awarded the Kwajalein Yacht Club scholarships for music. They were joined on stage by classmate Colby McGlenn and treated the audience to an emotional version of "Free Fallin'" by Tom Petty.

The Class History told the story of how the Class of 2012 evolved, read aloud by Lauren Amador, Shotts and Reslinda Haferkorn. They evolved from youngsters who found joy in playing in the sand and putting on school plays, to winning Turkey Bowl and finally getting to paint their names on the street in front of the high school. Students came and went throughout the years, but their bond as classmates remained.

The Album of Memories slideshow is an opportunity to get a glimpse into the graduating students' lives over the past 18 years. Baby, family and friend photos were shown of each student. Some elicited an, "Awwww," from the audience; others elicited laughs – like a student in his underwear at the beach when he was very young, and several of the class boys dressed as girls.

As if the slideshow wasn't emotional enough, the students then called upon several teachers and family to thank them for their support. Teachers Barbara Bicanich, Jamie Bowers and Phil Lindert were given hugs and thanks from the students. Parents got their tissues ready as the students picked up leis and headed into the audience for hugs and love with their family.

The reminiscing and recognition culminated with the presentation of diplomas by KHS Principal Al Robinson, U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll Commander Col. Joseph Gaines and Sgt. Maj. Hohn Wolf, and the recognition of the class' valedictorian and salutatorian. Robinson explained that the top three students' grade point averages were only separated by .14 of a point. Bishop came out on top with a 3.989 GPA, followed by McGlinn with a 3.898 GPA. Jahnke closely ranked third. The students filed across the stage one by one, handing off the traditional gag gift to Gaines, as he handed them their diploma and Commander's Coin. After all 18 students held diplomas in their hands, Jarem Erekson led the Turning of the Tassels, signifying the end of their high school careers.

The students cheered and raised their arms in triumph as they exited the MP Room, proud of completing high school, and ready to move on to a world filled with possibilities. The students lined up outside where friends and family adorned them with traditional flower, money and candy leis. A small reception was held afterward while the students continued to be congratulated.

THEN AND NOW - ROI PLANES

Kwajalein and Roi have a long history of commuter aircraft. These are a few of the aircraft that have been stationed here over the years. Clockwise from the left, the Caribou were here in the 1970s and '80s, followed by the Dash 7s in the '90s. The next to arrive were the Beechcraft-1900, followed by the Dash-6 Twin Otter. The last commuter plane to come to Kwajalein was the Metroliner, and it is still the current commuter plane being used today.
