Tradex keeps an eye out for cosmic debris

By Peter Rejcek

Last month, a Gone Fishin' sign might have hung on the door to the control room at Tradex.

But it wasn't mahi mahi that engineers were fishing for. Instead, they were using the radar's powerful eyes to search for needles in a cosmic haystack — space debris no larger than a softball that poses a serious hazard to satellites, space shuttles and the galaxy's newest manmade wonder, the International Space Station.

"It's like space fishing."

"Space debris is a growing concern of NASA and Space Command," explained Steve Six, Tradex test director for debris missions.

Six said there are about 9,000 objects, 10 centimeters or bigger, that have been cataloged. Unfortunately, there's an estimated 100,000 smaller objects that are not cataloged or tracked, he said. That's a problem because an object like the space shuttle or the space station is only armored to withstand a hit by debris 1 centimeter or smaller.

"The longer your exposure, the higher the probability of a problem," Six said.

How much damage can something the size of a commander's coin, or even smaller, actually do? Six said a 3-centimeter object, traveling at 10 kilometers a second, packs the same punch as 1 kilogram of TNT. That's enough dynamite to shoot an economy car a thousand feet straight

What's for Christmas?

Plenty of island events in the bag throughout holiday season

By Jim Bennett

The Holiday Season — a time of giving, festivity and non-stop activity.

The season kicks off next weekend with a visit from Santa and Mrs. Claus and won't stop until people ring in the new year, Dec. 31.

Claus Coming to Town

Mr. and Mrs. Santa "St. Nick" Claus will arrive Dec. 2.

"With the strong winds, there has been some concern that Santa would not be able to land, but he just had his sleigh tuned up and is confirming that he will be making it for sure on Dec. 2nd," said Steve Snider, superintendent of Entertainment Services. "He told me that Kwajalein is one of his favorite spots worldwide!"

The happy holiday couple will bring candy and smiles to children of all ages on the island. The Claus' plane will touch down at Bucholz Army Airfield around 5 p.m. He and his entourage will parade around the island until about 6 p.m., when they

'If you can't feed 100 people, feed one'

The soldiers and cadre of the Army Medical Command at Fort Sam Houston, Texas, sponsor a quarterly program for school children called La Salida — "The Way Out." It's a week-end-long event designed to show kids they have options ... that they can say no to drugs, joining gangs, dropping out of school, having sex, etc. Teachers across the city chose the "at risk" children out of their classrooms.

It was already dry and 'oh m'gosh' hot when the buses arrived on a Saturday morning at Camp Bullis, a training site about 30 miles outside

San Antonio. Soldiers were there to welcome the students, assign sleeping huts, and give them team names, mascot flags, T-shirts, enthusiasm and friendship.

I volunteered that November week-end before Thanksgiving to work in the first-aid training station. I ended up as a hut-leader with nine little girls who had A LOT more street smarts than 11-year-olds should. They made me nuts. Every time they saw a water faucet, shower, sink, anything with running water, they wanted to wash their hair. They lathered on eye make-up and lipstick like they owned shares in the companies. And, keeping them in the hut during the night was ... impossible. Let's just say they tested my tolerance of sleep deprivation. Did I mention they made me nuts?

The first afternoon, we planned to take the 300 kids out to the obstacle course. This was an opportunity for all of us to conquer the challenge of the rappelling tower and the slide for life. Apparently bouncing down a 60-foot tower on a rope, and sliding across a 50-foot-wide ravine on another rope instills self-confidence ... hence, the courage for the kids to "just say no." (Personally, I wanted to say no because I had not been that scared since turning 40.)

Anyway, all the kids had just finished a big lunch in the camp mess hall, and we were on our way to the obstacle course. Two little guys were sitting and talking near the tailgate of our luxurious Army deuce-and-a-half truck. I heard one of them quietly say to his friend, "I can't wait 'til tomorrow morning."

"Because we get to ride on the fire truck?"

"No, because we get to eat breakfast," he said.

I think about this little guy every morning ... not just during Combined Federal Campaigns or Thanksgiving week. Something I take for granted and often skip by choice would be a special treat to him. How do I even begin to help fix that kind of need?

The late Mother Theresa said, "If you can't feed 100 people, feed one."

Jest for Fun

By Ron Tsubamoto

Holidays packed with events on Kwaj and Roi ...

(From page 1)

will travel to the Yokwe Yuk Club.

Meanwhile, Sixth Street will be closed Dec. 2, not for construction, but instead for the annual Christmas tree-lighting block party, starting at 5 p.m.

Sodexho Marriott will serve up the food and Community Activities will serve up the fun.

The Clauses and others will turn on the lights in a ceremony starting at 6:15 p.m., and running for about an hour.

On Dec. 4, Santa and Mrs. Claus will wrap up their three-day visit on Kwajalein with a picture-taking session at the Yokwe Yuk Club.

Shop 'Til You Drop

Think you can't find a gift on island? Think again.

The mini-mall will light up Dec. 3, from 6-8 p.m.

Volunteers are working this weekend to string more than 5,000 lights throughout the mall, said Kathy Valencia, Retail Merchandising manager.

On Dec. 3, the mall will be closed to traffic and become the site of yet another block party for the weekend, featuring carolers, shopping and a wine tasting, to name a few of the planned festivities.

The event follows an enthusiastic response at the Nov. 18 shopping evening extravaganza. In less than 2½ hours, Macy's and Macy's West recorded more than 200 percent of its normal Saturday sales, Valencia reported.

For last-minute shoppers, plans are in the works for a special shopping event during the week of Dec. 23, she added. Details will follow as they become available.

The Sounds of Christmas

The spirit of Christmas will be heard at various performances throughout the month.

Second- and third-graders will perform Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Davye Davis Multi-Purpose Room.

In "Six Little Snowflakes," the second-graders search for the meaning of Christmas, finding the spirit of Kwanzaa and Hanukkah along the way. The third-graders will examine the life and music of Beethoven in "The Binding Tale of Beethoven's Bookworms."

The Community Band and Chorus will play and sing traditional carols Dec. 5. The high school bands and choirs play Dec. 7, and the junior high school bands and choirs play Dec. 8, each group performing traditional carols, as well as more classical holiday numbers by composers such as Handel and Mozart. The elementary school band and choir will perform Dec. 13. All performances begin at 7 p.m. at the MP room.

Trees Spring Up

Natural Christmas trees, all five- to six-foot Douglas firs, will go on sale 5 to 7 p.m. Dec. 9, at the high school courtyard. An unshaped tree comes with a $20 price tag, while $35 buys a shaped tree. A K-badge is required to buy a tree.

Trees will be delivered to Kwaj residents. Roi residents, however, will have to make special arrangements.

Trees for offices may be purchased in advance through the high school secretary before Dec. 7. The trees must be sprayed with a fire retardant. The office trees will be delivered 3 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Sing-Along

Community Activities will take the Santa Mobile out for a spin Dec. 23, and they'll be picking up passengers who wish to sing carols.

Going Native

Sponsored by the Marshallese Cultural Center, a "Marshallese Christmas" will be held 7 p.m., Dec. 15, at the Richardson Theater.

The program will feature Marshallese Christmas traditions by Ebeye church groups, who will perform dances and music for the whole community.

Roi Regales the Holiday

Roi residents and invited guests will celebrate the holidays with Third Island children Dec. 11, beginning at 2:30 p.m.

The party will feature games and prizes for the kids and a cook-out.

"We have a lot of connection with the kids over the year, so we grow close," said Margaret Thompson-Williams. "That makes it special."

Santa Claus will arrive later in the afternoon and residents will gather for the annual Christmas tree-lighting that evening. Santa will pose for photos with the kids during the afternoon.

Obituary

A memorial service for Roger D. Shanks, 46, who passed away Oct. 24 in Shreveport, La., will be held Monday, Nov. 27, at 4 p.m. in Island Memorial Chapel.

Roger was born May 8, 1954, in Ohio, the son of Mr. and Mrs.

Jack Shanks.

After high school, he served in the United States Air Force for 8 years.

Roger moved to Kwajalein April 1995. He was a member of the American Legion and the Kwajalein Scuba Club.

He was employed by Raytheon and worked at the Calibration Laboratory for five years before moving to California.

Roger is survived by his wife, Cecilia, brother, Richard, sister, Jacquelyn, and many friends.

Immunize, change habits to prevent Hepatitis A infection

By KW Hillis

Feature Writer

Flu-like symptoms, decreased appetite and energy, abdominal pain and diarrhea, along with jaundice or yellow skin or eyes, are the signs and symptoms of Hepatitis or inflammation of the liver.

Fortunately, Hepatitis A is preventable by changing personal habits and by immunization, said Dr. Eric Lindborg, Kwajalein Hospital chief medical officer.

Unlike Hepatitis B and C, which are transmitted from one person to another by sexual or blood contact, Hepatitis A is generally transmitted by food, water and poor sanitary habits, according to Lindborg.

"Living in the Kwajalein, USAKA communities does not increase risks," Lindborg said. "But since Hepatitis A is endemic in Micronesia and Southeast Asia ... exposure risks are increased if your activities include travel and socializing in Micronesian communities."

There is no cure for Hepatitis A once a person is infected. But, according to Lindborg, many people get well on their own after a few weeks.

"The best medicine is prevention," Lindborg said, making the following recommendations.

- Wash hands before eating and after using the bathroom, and wear gloves if you have to touch another person's stool, such as if changing diapers.

- Avoid food and water that has not been prepared and maintained under hygienic conditions. Use bottled water when in doubt and don't use ice cubes. Consider the Hepatitis A vaccine if you travel or socialize in areas where Hepatitis is prevalent.

Hepatitis A vaccinations are given in two doses at least six months apart. They are not recommended for children under two years of age. The Outpatient Clinic provides free vaccinations to USAKA residents and employees from 1 to 4 p.m., Tuesdays through Saturdays.

Flu vaccinations to begin Tuesday

From Kwajalein Hospital

A limited amount of the influenza vaccine has arrived. Vaccinations will be available to the general public starting Tuesday.

Those who should get the influenza vaccine include everyone 50 years of age or older, anyone who has a serious long-term health problem, anyone whose immune system is weakened because of illness or medications and anyone else interested in being vaccinated for influenza.

Come to the outpatient department at the hospital between 1:30 and 4 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday and sign in for a nurse. The shots will be given on a first-come, first-served basis.

Space debris comes in all sizes and categories ...

"There have been collisions in space already," Six said, but added that nothing catastrophic has happened — yet. That's where Tradex and other radars, including Altair and GBR-P, come in.

Since 1989, Tradex has participated in 18 debris campaigns, nicknamed "Stare and Chase." The object of the game is for the radar to spot an object and then attempt to successfully track it, so that it can be cataloged.

"There's a real art in going from detecting to tracking," noted Tim McLaughlin, Tradex assistant test director for debris missions.

The difficulty is that the Tradex beam, covering an area in the sky about the size of the moon, is pointed at one location in space waiting for an object to pass. The space junk, traveling at 10 kilometers per second, is barely glimpsed before it's already out of sight. Based on just a blip of information,

Size doesn't matter when you're talking about objects hurtling through space at 10 kilometers per second. From left, Denise Comeau, Tradex sensor leader, Steve Six, Tradex test director for space debris missions, and Tim McLaughlin, Tradex assistant test director for space debris missions, hold up objects representative of the types of space debris that could possibly impact a satellite, space shuttle or even the new space station.

Altair, three objects were eventually added to the space catalog, Six said.

The space debris itself can be anything from an errant bolt to a flake of paint. Much of the debris results from a launch. Tradex engineers estimate there's a space launch at least once or twice a week, meaning there's a lot of junk out there that has to be avoided. Six said NASA simply doesn't have the resources, or the capabilities, right now to ensure that a serious collision won't take place.

"They don't have the sensors to do it right now," he added. "It's not a problem Tradex could solve alone."

Denise Comeau, Tradex sensor leader, said the radar is capable of supporting a network of radars. In fact, Tradex is particularly good for this type of space fishing because it can move fast, thanks to its hydraulic-powered antenna drive. Those 220 tons can move about 12½ degrees a second.

"It's the fastest antenna at KMR," Comeau said.

It's certainly the world's biggest fishing pole — and soon Tradex engineers will know if they got any keepers, i.e., cataloged debris, from their latest campaign.

"We'll get the cooler and get ready to throw them in," McLaughlin said.

The International Space Station orbits the Earth hundreds of miles overhead, where it is exposed to space debris that could potentially impact the thin hull of the facility, according to Tradex engineers involved in locating and tracking the rogue objects for NASA.

Seventeen-year-old Jeremy Gideon won the men's low net title for the second year in a row with a score

Grog Bowl Ceremony host Maj. Matt Reed entertains the crowd at Sunday night's Military Ball at the Yokwe Yuk Club.

Military Ball celebrates change and tradition

By Barbara Johnson
Feature Writer

There has never been an age like ours, according to Col. Curtis L. Wrenn Jr., USAKA/KMR commander. Our great accumulation of knowledge allows us to travel back in time to view the birth of the universe and now, we peer into the hearts of stars, he said.

Wrenn, guest speaker at the annual Military Ball Sunday night at the Yokwe Yuk Club, spoke about change over the years, from clothing styles to technology, and about change in the Army and at the range.

This year's event was also filled with tradition. Lt. Col. David K.

Stoddard, USAKA/KMR deputy commander, gave the invocation; Wrenn led the traditional toasts before dinner; Sgt. 1st Class Maurice Robinson offered the benediction; and Maj. Matt Reed hosted the humorous Grog Bowl Ceremony, in which members of the command contributed various ingredients to a concoction, served this year out of a trash can.

The ball's theme was "All That Jazz," and the 130 guests were surrounded by musical notes all night, with cut-out notes decorating the walls, tables, top hat centerpieces and balloons in the dining room and, after dinner, in the lounge.
