Theft cases near solution, but police urge 'lock your doors'

By Peter Rejcek

The Kwajalein Police Department is close to identifying suspects responsible for recent break-ins at several homes, but authorities are still urging residents to secure doors and windows at all times to prevent similar incidents.

Lt. Moses Moreno, KPD senior investigator, said detectives are identifying a number of suspects that they believe entered trailers and hard houses over the last several weeks, removing between $1,500 and $2,000 in property.

"They didn't take items of [great] value, Moreno said. "We've recovered most of the property."

Stolen items included video game and music CDs; a radio; and a jar of coins containing about $200 in quarters. Moreno said many other items of much greater value, such as jewelry and video cameras, were left untouched. He said the suspects generally took items that could be easily hidden. For example, the video game CDs were hidden in a CD case after

Virus attacks Kwaj

By Peter Rejcek

No one is in love with the "I love you" virus.

The new computer virus went on a worldwide rampage Friday (local), deleting files and shutting down e-mail servers. E-mail servers at USAKA/KMR were shut down to prevent the virus from infecting systems here.

"We're just really checking on it now," said Don Hornbrook, assistant chief of staff for Information Management.

The timeframe for when the servers will be back online was unknown at press time.

Sylvia Riley, Island Memorial Chapel secretary, takes time to participate in the National Day of Prayer 24-hour vigil on Thursday. Many Kwajalein residents participated, praying for the nation, its citizens, and its leaders.

Kwaj honors National Day of Prayer

By KW Hillis

Many mothers and fathers remind their children to say their prayers before bedtime.

Yesterday, grownups and children alike were reminded to say their prayers, and not just before they retired for the evening.

From the first moments of Thursday until the second hand ticked its way into today, Kwajalein residents were praying for the nation, its people, and its leaders.

The National Day of Prayer was officially observed on Kwajalein for the first time this year, according to the Rev. John Dorr, Protestant chaplain and local organizer of National Day of Prayer events.

Kathy Laytham, a registered nurse at Kwajalein Hospital, participated in both the 24-hour prayer vigil and the 6 p.m. joint prayer service sponsored by Dorr and Father William J. Sullivan, SJ, Catholic chaplain, in the Island Memorial Chapel.

"My involvement with prayer stems from a childhood of family praying together and from my belief in the effects of prayer," Laytham said.

Laytham had just signed up for the vigil when Dorr asked her to speak about physical, emotional, and spiritual healing.

"I was honored he thought of me to represent the healing aspect of prayer. I really do believe strongly in prayer in healing, the whole holistic aspect," Laytham said.

The evening service focused on six different areas of prayer. For each area, a different person or group spoke about what prayer meant to them. In addition to Laytham, speakers and their topics included: Barry King, nation, communities and leaders; Monsignor James Gould, SJ, churches; Jane Conrad, mother of Gas prices pumped up worldwide ...

The average U.S. price of gasoline in March was $1.43 per gallon. And that's cheap compared to most other countries, where petrol prices averaged over $4.30 a gallon, according to the April 24 edition of Business Week.

the packages were discarded. The CD casings were later found in the neighborhood.

How the suspects gained access to the homes is still under investigation, according to Moreno. He said some homes showed signs of forced entry, while others may have been left unsecured.

"People get lackadaisical about leaving their quarters unsecured," Moreno noted, urging residents to lock doors and windows when they're not at home. The break-ins are believed to have occurred between noon and 5 p.m., when people are at work and most children are in school.

Moreno said residents should report any suspicious activity to police. "If we get help from the community, we'll be able to solve these kinds of incidents."

APIC stresses responsibility, citizenship

Over the next few months, I will be using the Commander's Corner to talk about the Army Performance Improvement Criteria (APIC) and the Strategic Plan 2000 that implements and deploys the criteria here at Kwajalein Atoll.

The criteria are built upon a set of core values and concepts. I'm going to start this series by talking about one of these concepts each week. I want everyone at Kwajalein Atoll to understand what I've been telling the command's leadership.

This week I want to talk about public responsibility and citizenship. Here on Kwajalein, our leadership, both government and contractor, take our responsibilities to the public very seriously. These responsibilities refer to basic expectations for business ethics and protection of public health, safety, and the environment. They also include resource conservation and waste reduction at the source.

During our initial assessment of ourselves using the criteria, we found that we're already doing pretty well in this area. However, what we weren't doing so well was consistently providing information to the public on what we were trying to achieve in this area and how we were doing. In my mind, this "push" of information is a key element, part of "doing the right thing."

Practicing good citizenship refers to leadership and support — within the limits of our organizational resources — of publicly important purposes. Such purposes might include improving education, health care in the community, environmental excellence, resource conservation, and community service. To me, leadership in this area also entails influencing other organizations and individuals to partner for these purposes.

As many of you have heard me say before, I ask just three things from everyone in this area. First, give us an honest eight hours a day of work. Second, make the effort to spend some quality time with your family. Last, do something, no matter how small, to help make our community a better place.

Bands, choirs to perform double-header

From the Music Department

Music lovers will get twice their fill next week when the Kwajalein Junior/Senior High School bands and choirs perform a pair of concerts.

The junior band will perform at 7 p.m. Wednesday in the MP room. The concert will include a contemporary overture by James Swearingen, as well as works by French composers Eric Satie and Jean Baptiste Lully, court composer to King Louis XIV. Junior high choir selections will include spirituals, English madrigals, and settings to three poems by Robert Louis Stevenson.

On Thursday, high school band and choir members will perform at 7 p.m. in the MP room. The concert will open with the swinging sounds of the stage band, The Pacific's Most Dangerous Band, playing Miles Davis' "Four" and the popular Dave Brubeck hit, "Take Five." Mixed Ensemble, the high school choral group, will present spirituals, a medley of songs from George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," and Stevie Wonder's "Sir Duke." The concert band will perform two works by Mozart, along with Moussorgsky's "Pictures at an Exhibition" and "Carmina Burana," arranged by David Rehman.

Soloist performances will include Danny Robey on clarinet, Rehman on bassoon, and Jesse Henstock on French horn.

RSE employee recognized for shipping performance

From KLS Supply and Transportation

The Military Traffic Management Command (MTMC) has again recognized the excellent service provided by Raytheon.

For the second consecutive year, Imee Gacutan, RSE transportation specialist for the Cargo Consolidation Facility in Richmond, Calif., received the MTMC Advanced Transportation Control and Movement Documents (ATCMD) performance award.

The award was presented by the MTMC commander, Maj. Gen. Kenneth L. Privratsky, at the annual MTMC symposium, attended by more than 1,700 people in Atlanta, Ga.

The 2000 ATCMD performance award recognized shippers performing in a superior manner and submitting accurate documents on time, relative to export cargo. Military Standard Transportation and Movement Procedures (MILSTAMP) standards for timeliness and accuracy are 90 percent and 95 percent, respectively. More than 1,400 shippers worldwide competed for the award in four shipper categories.

As senior logistics representatives of Raytheon RSE, Earl P. Davis, manager of KLS Supply and Transportation, and Michael Nario, manager of the Cargo Consolidation Facility, Richmond, attended the ceremony.

This year's award recognized Gacutan's efforts to maximize use of the air cargo space allocated to Kwajalein, as well as her service and dedication to the movement of air and surface cargo. Her input to the integrated booking system allowed the Department of Defense to accurately monitor utilization of surface cargo space.

This latest award is the fourth time RSE has been recognized by MTMC.

During the 1999 symposium, Jimmy Matsunaga, manager of RSE Supply and Transportation's Shipping and Receiving Department, was presented the 1998 MTMC worldwide quality award for exceptional performance in all aspects of personal property and cargo movement. The previous year, Matsunaga was the recipient of the MTMC Pacific Command quality award.

Helicopter fleet to be returned to full strength in three months

By KW Hillis

The potential donors arrived safely on the barge Islander last week and are resting comfortably in the hangar in their shrink-wrap cocoons.

They don't look like it now, but they are two UH-1 (Huey) helicopters, brought to Kwajalein to get the USAKA/KMR fleet up to 100 percent strength.

"The better airframe and structure of the two will be used to replace 913, the one [Huey] that is to be disposed of here," explained Maj. Matthew Reed, USAKA/KMR Supply and Transportation Division chief.

"The goal is to bring the fleet back to five flyable aircraft," he added. "We received them from Fort Irwin, Calif., the National Training Center. They were airworthy airframes exceeded by that unit."

The Rotary Wing Maintenance Section will be reassembling the aircraft, replacing the engine and landing skids, as well as doing spot painting and regular maintenance to get the one replacement Huey in the air. The second aircraft will be used for critical spare parts as necessary.

The process of finding a new aircraft was lengthy, with the search beginning last fall after the need for a replacement aircraft was identified. Once found, the helicopters were shipped to Kwaj within two months. Raytheon Shipping and Receiving coordinated the operation, trucking the aircraft from Fort Irwin to the shrink wrap operation in Los Angeles for the final boat trip.

Taylor fights for veterans' rights at national level

By Bob Fore

After talking with Orland Taylor for just a few minutes, you get a clear picture of how much he believes in veterans' rights.

Taylor serves on the legislative committee of the American Legion, Department of Hawaii, and was on Kwajalein for a good-will tour on behalf of the organization.

"I came to thank the members of Legion Post 44 ... for their donations over the last two years to the American Legion's Emergency Fund, which makes donations to disaster victims all over the world," Taylor said.

For example, after Hurricane Iniki hit Hawaii in 1992, the American Legion donated $86,000 to veterans and their families. The group also helped recent flood victims in South Carolina with $213,000 in grants. These funds help purchase emergency supplies.

The American Legion supports communities in other ways, such as the annual oratorical competition sponsored by the Hawaii American Legion. Winners of the state competition are eligible to compete on the national level for scholarships. Jaime Yelvington of Kwaj won the 1998 Hawaii competition and went on to compete nationally.

In his duties with the legislative committee, Taylor lobbies for veterans on the state and national levels. Recently, his travels, which total more than 100,000 miles a year, took him to Washington D.C., where he lobbied on behalf of the national American Legion organization for two separate bills pending before Congress.

The first bill involves criminalizing the desecration of the U.S. flag. The second concerns pay increases for enlisted personnel in the armed forces.

But one of the most important duties the Legion has is overseeing legislation that may affect veterans' hospitals and military retirement homes, Taylor said.

For instance, until two years ago, V.A. hospitals were showing substantial monetary losses. There were simply not enough patients, and the hospitals were required to return unused funding to the Government Accounting Office, Taylor explained.

The American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Disabled American Veterans organizations all lobbied for the rights of family members to receive medical care at V.A. hospitals as long as they were insured. Now the funding will remain with the hospitals to provide quality health care, he said.

Reduction in Legion membership is another concern Taylor is addressing.

Taylor, a former Air Force weather specialist, served in the Korean War and Vietnam War on the front lines with weather combat teams. He retired from the Air Force as a master sergeant in 1978, and has been active with numerous organizations, including the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Rotary Club, Lions, and Masons.

Prayer Day observed on Kwaj ...

10-year old twins, families and home; Cindy Drozynski, Protestant spiritual life steering committee member, children and schools; and all employees of Continental Travel, various aspects of workplaces and associates.

Yvonne Duarte, Continental Travel Agency site manager, explained the group effort. "When I suggested [participating] to my staff they thought it would be very neat to do. We have a lot to offer. All of us are active in our church communities, Protestant and Catholic."

During their portion of the service, Durate talked about supervisors and managers and the role of prayer in daily life. She focused on the responsibility supervisors and managers have for their employees, how they are accountable, and how prayer can help.

Gould and Father Leonard Hacker, SJ, who also participated in the service, are visting Kwajalein from Majuro this week as guests of Sullivan.

More than 45 people attended the National Day of Prayer luncheon held earlier that day at the Yokwe Yuk Club. Sixth-grader Max Cohen gave the opening blessing. Lt. Col. David K. Stoddard, USAKA/KMR acting commander, brought a proclamation from the commander, Col. Gary K. McMillen. The principal speaker, Maj. David Latham, a USAKA/KMR test director, then discussed the history of the National Day of Prayer and significance of prayer, referencing both the Old and New Testaments. Sullivan gave the closing benediction.

In addition to the planned islandwide events, some offices and individuals also participated in the National Day of Prayer in their own way.

"Skip McQueen, the new Aviation Service manager, is organizing a prayer time before work with his employees to recognize the day," Dorr said.

Some 26 individuals, each with their own reason for taking part, joined the day-long vigil.

"Collective prayer can be powerful. In the Bible it says, 'Where two or more gather, I will be there,'" Laytham said, explaining her reason for participating.

The day ended as it began, with prayers for the nation and its people radiating from Island Memorial Chapel.

Potters put on show ...

onstration Monday afternoon, would not have been possible only 10 years ago, when there were only three potter on island.

"[Pottery is] my life," said Rhee, who has tutored most, if not all, the potters on Kwajalein over the last five years.

Rhee's work breaks the mold on functional pottery, spinning into the world of contemporary art.

"Pottery and sculpture together, that is my goal," he explained.

More unusual pieces from the artist included a vase overrun by geckos and another vase being hugged by an octopus, tentacles reaching inside the lid. There were even a couple of experiments on display: A small bowl and jar, the only pieces by Rhee not for sale, were made with clay from Pohnpei.

An electrical engineer with Lockheed Martin, Rhee was once a student of oil painting before switching his talents to pottery. He offers beginner and more advanced classes on a continuous basis. But novices be warned: There are over 55 people on the waiting list. Contact the Hobby Shop at 51700 if interested.

Potters who participated in the show include Beth Abrams, Mitsi Andrews, Laura Camden, Amanda Curtis, Linda Gentile, Susannah Jones, Dennis Keyser, Paul King, Kathy Laytham, Laura Lopez, Ineke Marmaduke, Sherry Olson, Elizabeth Omalyev, Gloria Peterson, and Cassandra Rubly.

Self Help program intended for government property only

From Self Help

The Self Help program is a means of enabling occupants of family housing and bachelor quarters to improve living conditions and the general appearance of their facilities.

The USAKA Self Help Store, near the intersection of Lagoon Road and 9th Street, is central to the success of the Self Help program. Materials, tools, and equipment are available free of charge to all permanent occupants of family and bachelor quarters. These materials, tools, and equipment are to be used on government property only.

Self Help is also responsible for issuing lawn mowers and will deliver and pick up. The shop also delivers other items too large to be transported on a bicycle; however, 24 hours notice is required for home delivery. Users are asked to clean tools and equipment prior to their return.

When available, plants from the Kwajalein Public Gardens may also be picked up at Self Help.

Self-help work should include only maintenance and repair jobs that residents can reasonably and realistically be expected to accomplish.

These jobs include, but are not limited to, cleaning appliances and kitchen equipment; cleaning or replacing air conditioning filters; un-stopping toilets; replacing toilet flappers or tank balls; controlling household pests; replacing faucet washers or shower heads; replacing light bulbs; tightening and replacing builders' hardware items; maintaining yards; and touching up paint.

For more information about Self Help, call 54990.

Greenbaum, Hogan, Fast.Com top Rustman finishers

By Jim Bennett

Sharon Greenbaum continues to set records in the Rustman, becoming only the second woman in history to place first overall and finishing first in the women's division for the second straight year when she ran into the record books Monday night.

Cathy Wellman took first in 1996.

But then marathons run in Greenbaum's family.

"It's something we share together," she said.

Greenbaum took first in the women's division last year, fending off stiff competition from Laurie Mann, both competitors pushing each other to record times of 2:23:01 and 2:29:55, respectively. With Mann out of the race this year — she PCSed — Greenbaum faced an open field.

"I might have done better if she'd been there pushing me," Greenbaum said. "But it's fun to relax a little and do your own thing."

She came in only seconds behind last year's mark at 2:23:17.

To prepare, Greenbaum ran three times a week, biked two to three times a week, and swam two to three times a week.

Fast.Com led the team competition with a time of 2:11:53. Consisting of swimmer Katie DeLong, bicyclist Jeff DeLong, and runner John Ross, the team placed second last year.

Team members said they trained all year, with Katie swimming in the school recreational league, and Jeff biking regularly. Ross said he ran on Roi during his lunch hour.

Greg Hogan led the men with a time of 2:34:59. A member of the master's division, those over 40, he said the Rustman represented his seventh triathlon. He trained the last three to four months, he added.

"You have to balance family with training and that's never easy," said Hogan, a father of four. "I'm doing it so my kids will stay healthy."

With 33 individual entrants and 18 teams, this year's Rustman attracted more participants than any in the past 10 years, said Ed Hillman, Kwajalein Running Club president.

Hogan knows why.

"The comraderie," Hogan said. "Big city races can get really competitive, with people elbowing you and stuff. Here, even when you're passing someone, it's all positive and encouraging. This is a great place for this kind of event."

From practical cobalt blue coffee mugs to the scowling face of a terracotta warrior from China, the fourth annual Pottery Show, presented by the Kwajalein Pottery Association this past weekend, showcased scores of works from 18 island potters.

The show, held at CAC Room 6 Sunday and Monday, featured potters of all skill levels.

"I'm just a beginner. It's a lot of fun," said Randy Erikson, who learned the art about a year ago from teacher Yong Rhee.

Erikson had 23 pieces on display, ranging in price from $5 to $21.

Not everything on view was for sale, however.

Dolita Dohrman had to disappoint customers by refusing to sell several pieces that she couldn't bear to part with.

"There are some pieces I can't sell because I don't think I could repeat [the process]," said Dohrman, who took up the hobby about four years ago. "Every glazing is different."

The event, which included a dem-
