'Taxi' service sign of good community spirit

Most of you have noticed some bright yellow bikes with the word 'taxi' stenciled on the frame. These were donated by the Ground-Based Mid-Course Defense personnel and put into service by the congregation of Island Memorial Chapel a couple months ago. I want to remind the community about some of the features of this program.

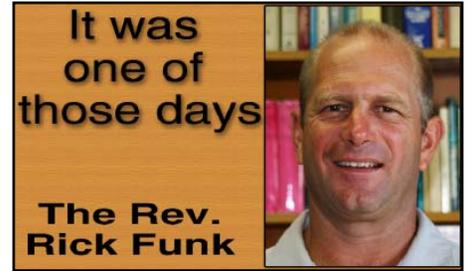

The bikes are scattered around the island and are free to use for one way transportation. You don't have to return the taxi to the chapel or wherever you started with it. Feel free to tell temporary duty guests about the service. Please don't lock them up or stash them away at work or home. It would also be best if you left all the parts on the taxi. We've picked up a few with missing hardware or baskets. If you spot a broken taxi, let us know at the chapel and we'll get it repaired and put back into service.

I would like to commend many groups of people who have volunteered to repair the taxis, several people at personal expense. A few members of the chapel are regular volunteers including Pete Bolen and Joel Madore. Michael Kautz, a high school student, comes to chapel once a week and fixes a few bikes. Also, Mark Pickett from San Juan Construction has pitched in with several repairs.

The police department has helped by alerting us of broken bikes and the fire department, led by Lee Pennington and Karolyn Mills, makes regular repairs. I've heard that several other people are pitching in as well including my neighbor, John Conrad. Thanks to everyone who makes this service work.

We've added a new service recently, our Roi Resident Reserved Taxi. Any Roi resident who comes to Kwaj during the work week can stop by the chapel office and pick up a bike to get around during the business day and return it to the chapel. These will be locked and are marked differently than the rest of the bikes.

I'm thankful for the many people who have complimented the program and many more who have made it work successfully. I'm glad we have a chance to cooperate and serve one another, even if it is in this small way. I realize that we might have a bike pilfered or pillaged here or there, but for the most part people have been using them responsibly. I consider this program a sign of good community spirit. Thanks to all involved!

Here's hoping what goes around comes around

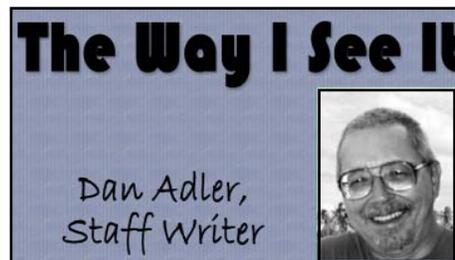

I believe in karma. Some people refer to it in other ways, but whatever you want to call it, I believe in it.

I guess another way to put it is 'what goes around, comes around.'

We've all heard stories about crooks who con senile old people out of their life savings, or run phony charity scams, steal money from sick people, and other crimes that low life scum commit.

But how much lower can someone get than preying on families of people who are at war and in harm's way?

The scammers involved in this make telephone calls to families with a servicemember in Iraq or Afghanistan and cruelly tell them that he or she has been killed. The family is told that they have to come to a military facility (located a long distance from where they live) to make arrangements needed to bring the body of the loved one home.

happened to many families of servicemembers and the military is now advising that death notifications are never made by phone and to disregard such calls and report them to the authorities.

There are some crimes, that under any circumstances, are unforgiveable. I hope what goes around really does come around for scum who prey on families of people who are fighting for our country. If there's any justice at all, a special corner of hell is reserved just for them.

Of course, the family is distraught, and in their shock and grief aren't thinking clearly. They hurriedly leave to attend to the tragic loss they believe has taken place.

When they return home after finding out it was a terrible hoax, everything of value in their house — money, jewelry, furniture and even cars have been stolen. Apparently, this has

Tuesday is deadline for mailing absentee ballots

By Donna Miles

American Forces Press Service

A letter sent by the National Association of Secretaries of State urges all military and overseas absentee voters to cast their ballots in Tuesday's elections and assures them that their vote will be counted.

The letter, sent Thursday by NASS President Deborah Markowitz, reminds U.S. citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act that the deadline for returning their absentee ballot is approaching.

"Uniformed service members and overseas citizens are a vital part of the American community, and their participation in the democratic process is essential to strengthening the fabric of our country," wrote Markowitz, Vermont's secretary of state.

She encourages citizens covered by the act who submitted a Federal Post Card Application since Jan. 1, 2004, and haven't received their state absentee ballot to submit the Federal Write-In Absentee Ballot as soon as possible.

This backup "emergency" ballot is available to citizens covered by the Uniformed and Overseas Citizens Absentee Voting Act and is accepted by all states and territories to vote for federal offices in general elections.

Paper copies of the form are available at military installations, embassies and consulates and from organizations of overseas citizens and electronic forms are posted online at the Federal Voting Assistance Program Web site, www.fvap.gov/pubs/onlinefwab.html.

Citizens using this form should vote and submit it immediately using regular mail or, where allowed by state law, by fax or e-mail, to their local election officials, Markowitz said. The FVAP's Integrated Voting Alternative Site at www.fvap.gov/ivas/fvap\_state\_menu.html shows citizens if fax or e-mail alternatives are permitted in their home state.

Voters who receive their state absentee ballot after submitting the write-in ballot should vote and return the absentee ballot up until T, officials said.

Information about candidates running in state elections is posted on the Federal Voting Assistance Program site at www.fvap.gov/links/statelinks.html and at the National Association of Secretary of States' site at www.canivote.org, Markowitz said.

Markowitz said she speaks for all election officials in encouraging U.S. citizens overseas to vote. "We are committed to safeguarding the fundamental rights of all citizens to exercise their voice through voting," she said. "Responsibility has no borders. Vote!"

For more information on absentee voting within the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll, contact Chief Warrant Officer Phyllis Mitchell, 52139.

Making his voice heard

An Iraqi army soldier shows his inked finger after voting in Hayji, Iraq, Dec. 12. On Dec. 15, Iraqi citizens elected their first permanent parliamentary government. American servicemembers stood by Iraqi voters, helping to ensure their safety at the polls. Voting is the foundation to a successful democracy. Americans serving and working overseas must vote through the absentee voting process by Tuesday.

Majetto resident medevaced to Kwajalein

Hospital personnel, AirScan pilots team up for helicopter evacuation

By J.J. Klein
Reporter

A critically ill Marshallese national was medically evacuated by helicopter from the island of Mejjatto to the Kwajalein hospital on Sunday. The elderly woman remains in serious condition according to Dr. Eric Lindborg, Kwajalein Range Services chief medical officer.

A medical team from Kwajalein hospital, working cooperatively with AirScan pilots and supported by U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll, received a request for medical assistance, flew to Mejjatto, assessed and transported the patient back to the hospital within the span of two hours. The medical team consisted of Lindborg, two nurses and a paramedic from the fire station according to Director of Flight Operations for AirScan Pacific Dave Kendrick.

While not an everyday occurrence, AirScan pilots routinely provide medevac support to medical teams when called up. Frequently these patient transports involve a Roi-Namur worker or an Enniburr resident requiring hospital care. The transport of a patient from another atoll is rare commented Lindborg.

In general, a medical transport takes many hands, rapid communication and a chain of personnel just to get the helicopter off the ground.

The call on Sunday for medical assistance from Mayor of Rongelap James Matayoshi was funneled through Noda Lojkar, the Republic of the Marshall Islands representative and Christi Bowman, U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll Host Nation Activities RMI relations specialist.

Bowman requested medical assistance from Lindborg while simultaneously ascertaining patient information through Lojkar's office via radio contact with a doctor on Mejjatto.

Based on the Compact of Free Association and the Military Use and Operating Rights between the RMI and United States governments USAKA can provide medevac services on a cost reimbursable basis said Bowman.

"Mobilization of a medevac begins with a medical assessment of necessity. If medevac is deemed necessary by medical personnel we contact Aviation Base Operations," said Lindborg. "Base Ops has their procedures that include an assessment from AirScan leadership and USAKA flight operations personnel regarding risks involved in mobilizing a flight."

Pilots receive 30 minutes notice prior to a flight under AirScan protocol said Kendrick.

"A lot has to happen to in the 30 minutes we are given," said Rob Gray, AirScan test pilot. "It is also not uncommon for at least ten of those 'response time' minutes to be eaten up before we are even notified. Our duties [pilot/co-pilot] are divided and detailed to facilitate the 30 minute response time we have."

At the patient pickup destination pilots must search out a safe place to land and try to minimize the risk

Treatment of Marshallese citizens or employees at Kwajalein Hospital determined by specific set of command guidelines

The Hourglass reports

Kwajalein residents often question why a Marshallese citizen or employee is not able to be treated at the Kwajalein hospital. The truth is that Marshallese citizens can be hospitalized at the Kwajalein Hospital, but only under very specific guidelines. Medical care for a Republic of the Marshall Islands citizen in the Kwajalein hospital is only permitted within four very specific policies agreed upon by the Republic of the Marshall Islands and the United States.

According to Alan Taylor, of the USAKA Host Nations Activities office, an RMI citizen can receive medical care at the Kwajalein hospital if:

- The RMI citizen is referred by the RMI Ministry of Health Referral Board. The determination to refer a patient for further diagnosis is

"The arrangement we have now is a win-win for the RMI and USAKA for two reasons. The fact that our contractors do not have to pay directly for health insurance allows us to reduce our costs and hire more RMI employees."

— Lt. Col. Jeff Klein,
Host Nation Activities director

made by the attending physician at the Ebeye hospital in conjunction with the board.

- The RMI citizen is a grandfathered employee with U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll. Grandfathered employees are employees who were working at USAKA on Oct. 21, 1986, the date the Compact of Free Association came into full effect.

- The RMI employee is a member of Kwajalein Employees Atoll Trust and the KEAT's administrator approves the treatment plan at the Kwajalein hospital. KEATs is a supplemental insurance program available to RMI employees.

Boating safety can depend on standing, sitting

Hourglass reports

Kwajalein residents are urged to keep personal safety a priority and reduce the risk of bodily injury when engaged in recreational boating.

Where a person chooses to sit or stand while boating could make the difference between an enjoyable, accident-free outing and a trip to the hospital.

“We recently had another patient with a significant injury relating to a fall on a boat,” said Dr. Eric Lindborg, Kwajalein Range Services chief medical officer. “Over the course of the past couple years the hospital has dealt with several moving-boat injuries.”

“Be aware,” said Paul McGrew, KRS Small Boat Marina supervisor, “the elements can be challenging to keep your balance.” Even when moving at a slow speed, a swell can crash into a boat and knock passengers around.

The likelihood of injuries to the trunk of a person’s body and/or arms, legs and hands increases when a passenger is standing in the boat and the vessel hits a wave or changes direction. Sitting at the front of the boat when the boat is bouncing through waves can result in injuries to the spine and tailbone.

“Boating can be like riding a bucking horse,” said McGrew, “keep your knees bent and hold on. At least one hand should be holding on to something.”

Guard to airlift food, fuel, supplies to Maui victims of earthquake

By Gerry J. Gilmore
American Forces Press Service

The Hawaii National Guard is planning to airlift supplies to isolated residents on Maui as soon as their needs are ascertained, a military official said from the state’s capital.

Local authorities are compiling supply needs lists from Maui residents, Hawaii National Guard spokesman Maj. Chuck Anthony said from Honolulu during a phone interview with American Forces Press Service.

Items requested by Maui residents will likely range from fuel needed to power generators to food and other necessities, he said.

A magnitude 6.7 earthquake struck the Hawaiian Islands Oct. 15. No deaths were reported. Besides some broken bones, no one was seriously injured, Anthony reported.

Damage among the islands varied, Anthony said, noting the earthquake damaged some roads and bridges on Maui. Electric power was off on the island of Oahu, where Honolulu is located, for 12 hours after the quake ended.

Once residents’ needs are ascertained, National Guard CH-47 Chinook helicopters will be used to ferry the supplies from Oahu to Maui, Anthony said. The airlift could start by Sunday, he said.

American Indian Heritage Month

Army Command Sgt. Maj. celebrates diversity

By Sgt. Sara Wood, USA
American Forces Press Service

Diversity helps make the military strong, and understanding cultural differences is a key to forming a cohesive force capable of meeting today's challenges, the senior enlisted advisor to the chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said Wednesday.

Army Command Sgt. Maj. William J. Gainey was at Army Human Resources Command for a National American Indian Heritage Month celebration. National American Indian Heritage Month is celebrated in November every year.

After watching a program of traditional Native American songs and dances, Gainey noted in an interview that Native Americans have contributed greatly to the military and the country throughout the years. About 2.1 percent of the current military is Native American, he said.

"Look at the military; walk into a room and look at the different cultures. You'll never find one culture, one society in the military," Gainey said. "And we have to understand each other, because if you don't understand each other—your brothers and your sisters of the armed services—I don't think we'll ever get together; we'll never figure it out."

Gainey, who is three-quarters Cherokee, spoke during the event about his heritage and how proud he is to be Native American. He shared three keepsakes that remind him of his culture -- an etching of an Indian head made by his daughter before his first deployment to Bosnia; a feather presented to him by an Apache Army staff sergeant after a battle in Iraq; and a "coup stick," a special stick traditionally used by American Indians in battle to show bravery, that was presented to him when he left Fort Knox, Ky.

Gainey encouraged all those in the audience to get in touch with their heritage.

"You cannot forget where you come from, because if you don't know where you come from, you'll never know where you're going," Gainey said. "It's very important to recognize all the different cultures that make up this melting pot called the United States."

Robert "Swift Arrow" Rose, a dancer and representative of the Cherokee government who performed several traditional Cherokee dances for the celebration, said that recognizing Native American culture is important, because it passes on a legacy of understanding and tolerance to future generations.

Editor's note: A USAKA-sponsored American Indian Heritage Month luncheon will be at 11:30 a.m., Nov. 29, at the Yokwe Yuk Club. Tickets will go on sale Nov. 15. Purchase tickets from Anne Greene, 55325.

TREATMENT, from Page 4

• The RMI resident is covered by a mandated Department of Energy program, through the Compact of Free Association, that conducts medical and environmental surveillance of specific people and islands in the RMI who were exposed to radiation. The DOE has a Memorandum of Understanding with USAKA allowing patients authorized by the DOE, on a non-interference and cost-reimbursable basis to coordinate and conduct health care.

Marshallese employees with Kwajalein Range Services can seek treatment at First Stop care at the Kwajalein Hospital. After an initial screening, physicians at First Stop determine if an employee may be treated or if they need a referral to the Ebeye Hospital.

"The arrangement we have now is a win-win for the RMI and USAKA for two reasons," said Klein. "The fact that our contractors do not have to pay directly for health insurance allows us to reduce our costs and hire more RMI employees. If USAKA had to pay for medical benefits, we could not afford to operate, meaning the loss of hundreds of jobs and significant tax income to the local and national governments of the RMI. And second, the Kwajalein Hospital is not staffed or equipped or sized to take on the burden of an additional 1,400 people and their families."

Two students test positive for tuberculosis

Rate of positive results lower than in past, no cause for concern

By J.J. Klein
Reporter

Students in the even grades at Kwajalein schools were tested for Tuberculosis last week. TB cases on Kwajalein are not unheard of, but neither is there cause for anxiety.

A TB skin test at the schools is performed annually by the Kwajalein Hospital staff. Of approximately 150 students tested, two persons tested positive, a rate

Chief Medical officer that is lower than past years said Dr. Eric Lindborg, Kwajalein Range Services chief medical officer.

Teachers and food service personnel are also tested yearly for TB according to Kathy Campbell, director of Occupational Health with KRS.

“Throughout Micronesia and Southeast Asia there is a higher prevalence of TB than we are used to in the states,” said Campbell.

“We test our Marshallese employees and if the test is positive we get a chest X-ray and then refer them to the Ebeye Hospital.”

“All Kwajalein workers are screened for TB but the increased prevalence of TB in Micronesian communities does put the workforce at increased risk for TB exposure,” said Lindborg. “The good news is that it is unusual for casual exposure to result in active TB.”

TB is a disease caused by Mycobacterium tuberculosis bacteria that can attack any part of the body, but is commonly found in the lungs. TB is either latent or active.

Latent TB means a person was exposed to the bacteria at some point and his body made antibodies to fight the disease. With latent TB there are no symptoms and it cannot be spread. People diagnosed with latent TB may develop the TB disease in the future.

“If there is no evidence for active TB, medical personnel at Kwajalein will generally suggest a course of anti-TB medication to prevent the future development of active TB,” said Lindborg. “This ‘prophylactic’ treatment program usually lasts nine months.”

A person with TB disease is said to have active TB, which means the infection is spreading in the body. Active TB is contagious and rarely seen Campbell said.

“Active pulmonary TB can be transmitted to other individuals in close contact through the air

If a Marshallese employee test positive for tuberculosis, a chest X-ray is required and the employee is referred to Ebeye Hospital.

when the bacteria are aerosolized by coughing or spitting or sneezing,” Lindborg said.

Symptoms of active TB are weakness or fatigue, loss of appetite, weight loss, chills, fever, night sweats, and rapid heartbeat.

“If active TB is a concern, the patient is isolated from others until it is confirmed there is no risk for transmission to others. Treatment with a combination of TB antibiotics is started for all people with active TB and response is monitored,” Lindborg said.

Anyone can get a TB skin test for free, they just need to request one at the hospital said Campbell.

of people and children running into or under the helicopter as they land.

Retrieving the patient on Mejatto was easy said Gray, because “there is a decent place to land on Mejatto and the people there are used to seeing us.” Although the Mejatto medevac was routine and uneventful, patient transport by helicopter is not without risks.

“There are a lot of things that can go wrong flying a 40 year old single engine aircraft, in the pitch black unlit sky over the middle of the Pacific ocean in blinding rain and with 10-20 foot seas clawing at us from below,” Gray continued. “But the pilots here on Kwaj are some of the most experienced pilots in the world and take every measure to mitigate the risks and have an impeccable safety record as a result.”

The Kwajalein community may not be aware of each helicopter medevac leaving the airfield, but the people on the receiving end of these transports are appreciative of the care and kindness demonstrated by the pilots and medical staff.

“On behalf of the Rongelap people, let me convey our deepest gratitude for your expeditious assistance to medevac one of our senior people from Mejatto,” said Matayoshi in a memo commending AirScan pilots and the medical team.

“The AirScan crew and the medical team did a great job and the action has helped to build good-will between our community and the Rongelap community residing on Mejatto,” said Lt. Col. Jeffrey Klein, USAKA HNA director.

Pirates of the Caribbean 2 Captain Jack Sparrow (Johnny Depp) returns to the screen for another round of supernatural adventures on the high seas in this spirited sequel to the 2003 Disney hit, which re-teams original director Gore Verbinski with original screenwriters Ted Elliott and Terry Rossio. As Will (Orlando Bloom) and Elizabeth (Keira Knightley) prepare to exchange vows at the altar, their wedding plans hit rough waters with the arrival of sea-bound scallywag Jack Sparrow. It seems that Sparrow owes a substantial blood debt to half-octopus sea captain Davy Jones (Bill Nighy), and that the only way for the flamboyant sea rover to elude the wrath of his otherworldly pursuer is to seek the aid of mysterious and powerful Voodoo priestess Tia Dalma (Naomie Harris), whose ability to resurrect the dead and gaze into the future may provide just the advantage needed to avoid a waterlogged fate in the locker of his legendary nemesis.

The Devil Wears Prada A young woman stumbles into the hectic worlds of high fashion and publishing comes to the big screen in this comedy. Andrea "Andy" Sachs (Anne Hathaway) is a bright young woman from the Midwest who has just graduated from college and wants to work as a magazine writer. Andy has applied for a job at "Runway," America's most prestigious fashion journal; though Andy has little to no interest in the garment trade, they are one of the only magazines in New York with a job opening — second assistant to editor Miranda Priestly (Meryl Streep). As Andy quickly learns, Miranda is a diva with plenty of power within the magazine business and she isn't afraid to use it, and though Andy lands the job (primarily by being in the right place at the right time), she soon learns that working for Miranda could test the patience of a saint thanks to her endless demands and refusal to acknowledge the end of a work day.

John Tucker Must Die Three teenagers two-timed by a local lothario decide to turn the tables on him in this romantic comedy. John Tucker (Jesse Metcalfe) is the big man on campus at his high school — he's the captain and star player of the basketball team, he's got money, he's good-looking and charming, and he can have any girl he wants. However, the latter attribute is about to get him in serious trouble when three different girls at his school discover they've all been dating John at the same time.

Let's play some hoops

Matt Yoho, 4, with the basketball, and four-year-old teammates Jackson Holley, Lilly Frunk, Kason Angle, Eric Ngo and DJ DeBrum show off their Start Smart basketball skills with coaching from Alex McGlenn during a basketball game capping off a six-week workshop.

Kwajalein children, ages three to five, were taught the basketball fundamentals of dribbling, passing, catching and shooting in the workshop hosted by Child Youth Services.

Start Smart, a National Alliance for Youth Sport program, is designed to teach tiny tots the basketball skills they need before they jump into a team sport, increasing their chances for success and fun in that sport.
