Bad blast from bad past

So, the other weekend I was sitting in my living room reading a book. The TV was on, and the news showed an Iraq war protest happening in Washington, D.C. I wasn't paying much attention to it.

Then, all of a sudden, I heard a voice coming from the TV. It sent chills through me, and I had flash backs of terrible times. I looked up and there she was on the screen. She was spouting the same horse manure she had spouted all those years ago, in another time, during another war.

I rubbed my eyes and looked again to be sure it wasn't a horrible dream. No, it was really her. It was a real blast from a bad past.

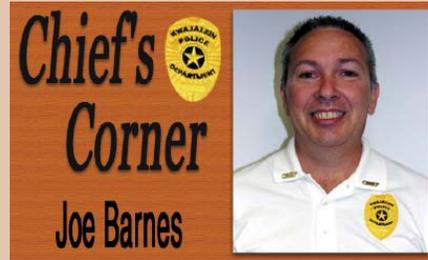

Talk about memories. It reminded me how I had vehemently questioned why someone would be allowed back into our land after traveling to a country we were at war with and giving aid and comfort to the enemy.

To quote Yogi Berra, "It was déjà vu all over again."

Yeah, there she was, and she was surrounded by all the

Marshallese are amazing

I received an e-mail last week from one of my employees living on Ebeye. Pamela Duffy e-mailed to let me know of a daily ritual our Marshallese neighbors conduct to start their day. This is an excerpt from her message to me. "Well, first of all let me familiarize you with this 6:45 a.m. ferry ride. Every working day on this ferry coming from Ebeye, a morning service of prayer and songs are done. The persons who lead us in prayer and service are Deacon Marok Lalimo, better known on Kwaj as "Speedy", Elmer Emos and another gentleman. They are not part the same church, but they are all Christians and lead the 100 and some people on this boat in prayer and in songs to start out the day of work. This is a tradition that has been going on for years now."

Me, I get up every morning and enjoy a hot, soothing shave and shower. I am able to enjoy a nice cup

Letter to the editor

Kwaj folks are different breed

I just returned to Baltimore after spending a wonderful 10 days playing tourista on Kwajalein. It was an experience of a lifetime. After stating this, I can almost hear the grumbling from a lot of Kwaj residents saying "Yeah, but try living here for a year" or "It's not the same when you have to actually work here." I understand their position.

The selection of goods in Macy's and Gimbel's is pretty slim. The prices seem a bit high. There isn't

Child Services library provides parenting tips

By Nell Drumheller
Editor

Child and Youth Services now has a parent resource library.

Opened on Jan. 30, the library is "A place for parents or interested community members to visit in order to gain information and knowledge on various subjects," explained Amy Brouwer of CYS. "These available resources are primarily geared towards parenting and family issues, but there are some resources on basic life planning and how to deal with specific transitions in life that tend to be stressful."

The center is open from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday-Saturday and is located in the CYS Central Registration Office, Building 358.

"I would just like people to come by and check it out," Brouwer said. "I would also love to receive suggestions from the community regarding any additional items that we can order and what topics people would like to have more information on. I have already received a small sampling and will be researching these resources. I want this to be an ongoing, growing project."

The resource library is an evolving project. "It will be an ongoing process; I will be adding resources as people make suggestions about what they would like to see," Brouwer added.

Though the library's name suggests that it is only for parents, Brouwer said that anyone interested in children will find the resources useful. "People who have children, people who want to have children, people who are interested in learning about children, educators, and any interested community members," may peruse the videotapes, cassette tapes, books for adults, CDs, workbooks, informational pamphlets and brochures and children's books found at the library, according to Brouwer.

"The majority of the resources are geared towards a parental audience, but there are a few items for teens, grandparents, aunts and uncles, babysitters, nannies or older siblings," she explained.

"The CYS department has a fair amount of resources available that we wanted to share and offer to the public," Brouwer added. "We understand that parenting is no easy task, so we try to reach out and support parents in any way that we can. We accomplish this task by offering quality childcare and quarterly parent workshops and informational learning sessions, just to name a few. I wanted to extend these offerings to include a place for the parents of our community, and any others who are interested to sit, relax, and learn."

For more information, call Brouwer at 53610.

Getting to know our Marshallese neighbors

Stores, restaurants, sights make Ebeye trip worth it

By Nell Drumheller
Editor

Living on a military installation is often like living in a small U.S. city, even when stationed overseas. English is the primary language, products in the stores have the same feel and look as stateside; and there's typically a school that is similar to one you'd find in the states.

Whether it's in Europe, the Far East or the Marshall Islands, right outside the gate is a different world.

'Outside the gate' of Kwajalein is Ebeye. It's a short U.S. Army ferry or vendor-provided water taxi trip that takes travelers from one world to the other. Ferries run throughout the day, beginning at 4:20 a.m. on weekdays; 5 a.m. on weekends and holidays and ending after midnight on all nights. The ferries at the end of the work day are crowded. Water taxis run sporadically, except on Sundays when they aren't available. All water taxis commuting to Kwajalein have been inspected by Kwajalein Police Department.

To go to Ebeye, Kwajalein residents and guests must go through dock security and catch a boat.

Once on Ebeye, non-Ebeye residents must check in with the kiosk at the docks.

Many traditional customs are followed on Ebeye, not the least of which is a dress code. Adults must wear conservative clothing. Women should wear loose-fitting shirts that cover their shoulders and dresses or skirts that cover their knees. Men can wear shorts, but only if they aren't planning on attending a formal or church gathering. Men should wear long pants if they plan to enter a church. The dress codes aren't Marshallese laws, but long-followed cultural traditions, and not complying with them would be considered offensive by citizens and traditional leaders of our host nation.

There are more than ten churches on Ebeye; all are based in Christian beliefs. U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll employees and guests are welcome at the services held throughout the week. The churches aren't air conditioned, but most have open air flow through side windows.

Ebeye has several restaurants to choose from.

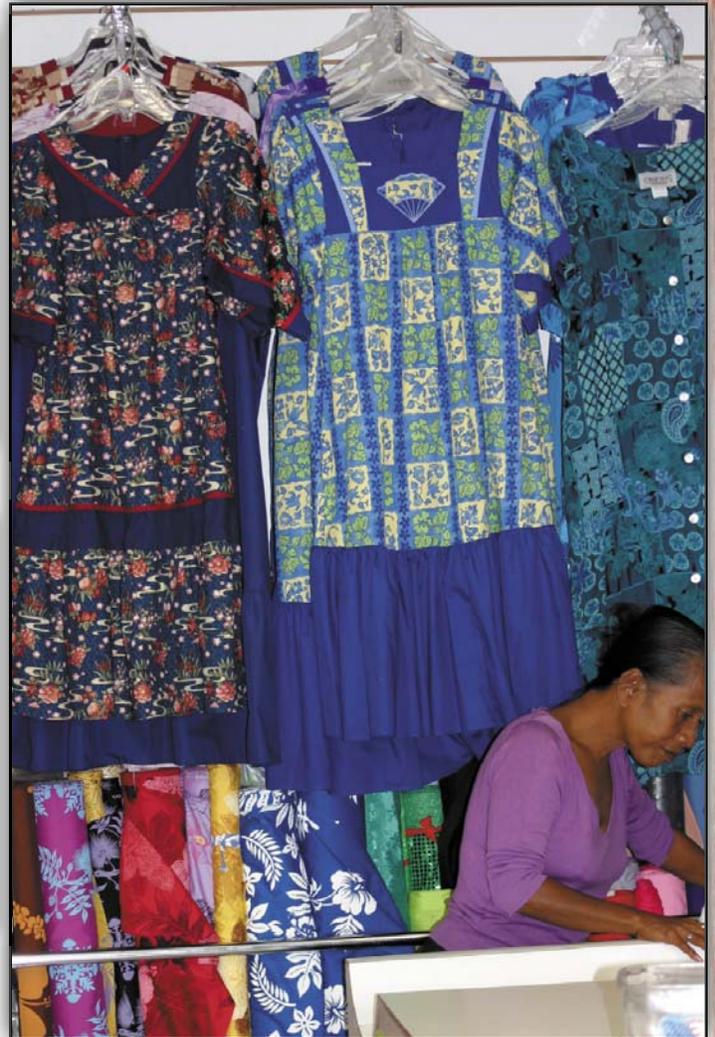

other experience. There are several options including small take-and-go type establishments where you can grab a cup of coffee to sit-down restaurants offering Marshallese, Philippine and American cuisine. Once again, the prices are comparable to food offered on Kwajalein or Roi-Namur. However, the food preparation is not regulated by U.S. standards. Tipping is not customary, but appreciated.

There are many retail outlets on Ebeye, including a hardware/home improvement-type store where customers can purchase paint mixed-to-order. Pricing on Ebeye is similar to Kwajalein; sometimes more expensive, sometimes less. As there are many stores, some not much more than a small room with products and a cash register, the variety of shopping options are more extensive than within USAKA. Many stores sell Micronesian-style skirts and dresses as well as a variety of fabrics and sewing notions.

While purchasing items on Ebeye and bringing them to Kwajalein is legal, the reverse isn't. It is against USAKA regulations to take newly-purchased items from Kwajalein to Ebeye. You can take cooked items and used items bought at yard sales and the Bargain Bazaar.

Eating on Ebeye is an-

There are ground taxis on Ebeye. Most are pickup trucks, filled front and back with passengers. The cost for a ride anywhere on the island is 50 cents, paid at the end of the ride. To ride a taxi, wave them down, they'll stop, you climb in and off you go. They circle the island. When you get where you want to go, knock on the side of the truck and the driver will stop, you pay him and that's that.

There are two hotels on Ebeye and a few places to go out for a drink and listen to music. Drinking alcoholic beverages on Ebeye is only allowed if you have a drinking license which is available through the local police department located below the finance office.

If you travel to Ebeye during the day, it will be hot. There's little reprieve

Students celebrate hundreth day of school

By Nell Drumheller

Saturday marked the first 100 days of school for Kwajalein students. While 100 days may not seem anniversary-worthy to most adults, to the youngsters at George Seitz Elementary School 100 days was something to celebrate.

The 100-days celebration varies from class to class, according to Deb Johnson, elementary school principal. "The basic idea is to reinforce counting to 100 and then be able to show counting by two's, five's etc.," she said.

"Kindergartners love doing 100th day activities," explained teacher Angela Dampier. "As a class, we rotated through four tables with the following four activities at each table; green table: trail mix: count out 10 peanuts, marshmallows, cheerios, raisins, and M & M's. Then repeat one more time. Blue table: Roll dice and color that number of squares with according color code. Red table: Alphabet Graph: Graph letters of the alphabet. Purple table: 100 Shape Books: Draw five shapes. There are 20 different shapes equals 100 shapes."

First grade teacher Kathi Dover explained what her class did, "In first grade the 100th day of school is part of learning about place value. On the first day of school we start using straws to represent the number of days we have been in school. Every ten days we group the straws together and we talk about how many tens there are and how many ones there are. The 100th day of school is the first time we group ten groups of tens together. This is very exciting for the students and naturally brings on a discussion of the 100's column." But it's not all about math; it's about the party. Another teacher from the first grade, Diane Hamill said while counting is a part of the daily curriculum, the 100th day may just be a good excuse for a party.

Keeping with the theme of 100, each student was requested to bring in 100 of something. "Every child brought a One Hundred's Day project. They had to collect and display one hundred items, think of a title and write three sentences explaining their project. Then each child shares their project with the class," Dover said.

"The children were very inventive this year," Jennifer Cossey, first grade teacher, said. "One student brought one hundred marshmallows in the shape of a roller coaster and another used natural items such as rocks, small coconuts and husks to make a beach scene! Several made hearts out of shells, beans or Q-Tips in honor of Valentine's Day. Others brought 100 pennies, 100 toothpicks, 100 pieces of cereal or 100 pieces of macaroni!"

Johnson hired three students Logan, Kate and Grace Everts to collect hermit crabs, "This cost me $6; the best six bucks I ever spent," she said. The crabs were claimed by students and raced throughout the day.

"We loved the crabs, the collections were outstanding this year," Hamill said. "We made patterns, made a book of 100 words over the course of the week,

Range operation scheduled for tonight

A range operation is scheduled for tonight. Caution times are 7:01 p.m. tonight through 3:28 a.m., Thursday.

In conjunction with this operation, a caution area will exist within the Kwajalein Atoll. The caution area is bounded on the north by Boked Island on the east reef and Yabbernohr Island on the west reef; on the south the area is bounded by a line drawn north of Bigej Island on the east reef to a point at latitude 08 54.2N, longitude 167 45.8E, then to a point at latitude 08 52.8N, longitude 167 45.8E and then to a point north of the high tide mark on Ninni Island on the west reef.

Bigej, including the inner reef, is specifically excluded and is not a part of the mid-atoll corridor.

The mid-atoll corridor islands of Gagan, Legan and Meck shall be in sheltered status. Only mission essential personnel shall be approved by the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll Command Safety Office to remain on sheltered islands. Illeginni and Omelek are designated as evacuation islands. All mid-atoll corridor islands not named as sheltered islands are deemed as evacuation islands. Additional areas specified outside the mid-atoll are designated as caution areas. See maps.

In order to ensure clearance of non-mission support personnel from the mid-atoll corridor by the window opening time, Kwajalein Police Department clearance procedures began at 7:30 a.m., Sunday and continued until evacuation was accomplished. Egress of all air and seacraft will be required when requested by authorized clearance personnel. Subsequent to lagoon clearance, the hazard area will be in effect until mission completion.

In the event of a mission slip, the caution times and areas will be in effect for the following days:

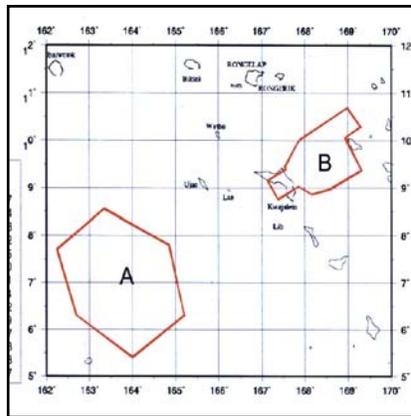

7:01 p.m., Thursday through 3:28 a.m., Friday

7:01 p.m., Friday through 3:28 a.m., Saturday.

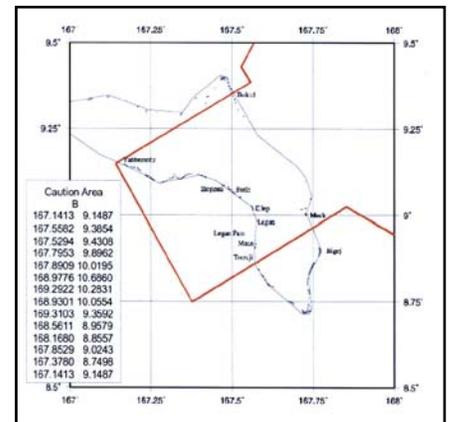

Questions regarding the above safety requirements for this mission should be directed to USAKA Command Safety Directorate, Range Safety officer, 51361.

a fully-staffed hospital filled with specialists. Some of the rules seem to be inequitable. Truth be told, I had to turn down a position on Kwaj for some of these reasons. There is, however, a part of the Kwajalein experience that is extremely rare and needs to be valued and cherished by those who live there — the people and culture (yes, you have a unique culture).

There were so many people who went out of their way to make my stay enjoyable. Dragging me out to snorkel in the Japanese pools, keeping an open schedule for an afternoon dive, being patient when I needed to walk my bicycle on the upwind stretch near the airport and changing dinner plans at the drop of a hat. Let me remind everyone on Kwaj that they will find few people as accommodating as Cowboy Galloway who dropped everything the evening that his wife got back from Hono to help me get lined up for an orientation dive.

I'm sure that there were other ways that he would have preferred to spend his evening, but instead he gave that up to make my stay memorable. Let me assure you, you don't find that kind of community support anywhere near Baltimore.

Then there are guys like Dan Farnham. When he heard that I wanted to dive the Prinz Eugen, he called and told me when to show up at the marina. He had taken care of everything. When we got to Carlson I wasn't comfortable with the conditions. He didn't bat an eyelash at scrubbing the dive (even though I'm sure that he could have easily handled the chop).

Most people would have been pretty upset at me backing out after the time and effort that he had put into it. Not him. He just smiled and said that diving is about having fun, not taking risks. When we got back to the marina, he recommended a shore dive where things were more calm and hauled tanks and gear to the beach for me. He shot video and stills of our dives and presented me with a wonderful CD as I was heading out to the airport.

All this for someone that he had never met before and will probably never see again.

I am indebted to all who peddled tanks and equipment whenever I wanted to go diving, who showed off their special 'Kwaj' variations on recipes and made me feel warmly and comfortably surrounded by great friends.

That is the Kwaj culture. It is unique. It is rare. It should be treasured.

It wasn't just first graders who got into the 100-day theme.”

Fourth grade participated in 100 minutes of reading activities along with third grade and sixth grade. “We had four rooms with four different activities with a fairy tale theme,” teacher Susan Davis said. “One room had a story starter, one room fairy tales were read aloud to students, one room students read fairy tales with buddies, and the fourth room was a fairy tale readers’ theatre. The students performed their readers’ theatre plays at the end of the day. It was a great time.”

In the sixth grade students wrote a list of 100 life goals, according to teacher Tarah Yurovchak. “We also participated in an afternoon of activities with third and fourth graders,” she said.

How many 100-item options are there? That’s only limited by a young person, or their parent’s imagination. Sasako Brady, first grade, brought 50 pairs of googly eyes; kindergartner Graeson Cossey brought in 100 lip prints made on paper and classmate Carlton Zackhras brought in 100 homemade coconut balls. According to Cossey, her students brought in items including 100 playmobile people, 100 coffee beans, 100 push pins and 100 jelly beans. “Each of the projects was arranged with a title as well. We also made a mix of 100 items to eat. The parents and teachers brought in goodies such as Cheez-Its, Fruit Loops, M&M’s, Skittles, marshmal-lows, etc. Each student counted 10 of each item to mix together

Bush requests $481.4 billion for Department of Defense

DoD press release

President George W. Bush sent to Congress his defense budget for fiscal 2008 on Monday. The budget requests $481.4 billion in discretionary authority for the Department of Defense base budget, an 11.3 percent increase over the projected enacted level for fiscal 2007, for real growth of 8.6 percent; and $141.7 billion to continue the fight in the Global War on Terror in fiscal 2008.

The fiscal 2008 Defense base budget sustains the President's commitment to ensure a high state of military readiness and ground force strength; to enhance the combat capabilities of the United States Armed Forces; to continue the development of capabilities that will maintain traditional U.S. superiority against potential threats; and to continue the Department's strong support for service members and their families.

The fiscal 2008 Global War on Terror request funds urgent needs associated with Operations Enduring Freedom and Iraqi Freedom and other costs of the Global War on Terror; including the costs of repairing, replacing or replenishing equipment lost in combat by both the Active and Reserve Components.

The fiscal 2008 Global War on Terror request is consistent with the direction of Congress to include the cost of ongoing operations in the Global War on Terror with the fiscal 2008 Department of Defense base budget.

Accompanying the fiscal 2008 Defense base budget and the President's GWOT request is a request for $93.4 billion in emergency supplemental funding to cover equipment reconstitution and the cost of operations in the Global War on Terror for the remainder of fiscal 2007.

'usual suspect' Hollywood jerks who like to bash America any chance they get.

Fortunately, my wife was able to wrestle me to the floor before I could kick in the television screen. Unfortunately, she hasn't been around sometimes, and I've had to buy a lot of new TVs in my life.

Now, as far as these protests are concerned, let me say that I was against the Iraq War even before it started. It wasn't because I thought it was illegal or immoral (I didn't). And it wasn't because I was concerned about killing our enemies. As a matter of fact, killing people who want to kill us is just fine with me.

No, I was against it because I had read many books on Middle Eastern history and what the British had experienced in Arab countries. Based on that, I was very much afraid that invading Iraq would open up a gigantic, dangerous can of worms in the Middle East.

But, if someone questioned going into Iraq during the run up to the war, they were seen as unpatriotic and 'soft' on the terrorists. At the time the war started, 70 percent of Americans supported it.

There were millions of Americans besides me who didn't think it was a good idea to go into Iraq. We didn't feel we were unpatriotic and we sure didn't want to be soft on terrorists. The vast majority of us who opposed the war never thought it was all America's fault or that we were bad people because we had the audacity to defend ourselves and seek revenge on murderers.

Our thinking wasn't too complicated . . . let's go kill the SOB's, but let's do it in the right place. It wasn't that we were anti-war and against destroying our enemies. We were anti-getting involved in Iraq because we didn't think it was a real threat to us.

There's a big difference between the pacifists wimps, the Hollywood crowd, and far left nuts who blame America for all the world's ills and think that America is the worst country in the world (although they sure don't mind living here and being stinking rich) and the rest of us who really want to fight the Global War on Terror.

The difference is they don't want to fight at all, or worse, they think America is the bad guy and the cause of terrorism in the world and that the terrorists are misunderstood.

But the rest of us want to fight. We want to fight smart. We want to win the fight against terrorism. We want to beat the bastards like a drum. We're not against the Global War on Terror — we're against the way it's being fought.

That's why normal, average, middle-of-the-road Americans are so frustrated by the Iraq war. We're frustrated because so many of our resources, so much of our money and so many of our finest young men and women have been used in a place we never had to go.

We're even more frustrated because we're not stupid. We know what would happen if American troops left Iraq. The Middle East would be a thousand times more dangerous than it was before, if it isn't already.

But we also know what will happen if American troops stay. . . the casualties will go on and on and our treasure will continue to be drained away. We know that things we really should be doing to protect ourselves from terrorists and domestic programs we need in our own country are on the back burner, or being ignored altogether because the money that would be needed is being squandered in Iraq.

So yeah, millions of us are angry and frustrated out of our wits about this war.

But we don't want the Hollywood crowd and the other left-wing 'blame America' jerks speaking for us or becoming the face of protest in the country. That's not what our anger is about.

You see, we love our country, and we want to see her safe and secure and our enemies destroyed. We just want it to be done right and in the right place.

I, and millions of other Americans who opposed going into Iraq don't want anyone, anywhere, to think that we have anything in common with the kind of people who could giggle, laugh, and clap their hands while sitting on an enemy anti-aircraft gun that shot down and killed American fliers during the Viet Nam War.

To those in the Hollywood crowd and others around the nation who are quick to denounce America, I say this . . . aren't you so very lucky to live where people can dissent without fear?

Here's an idea. Why don't all you Hollywood and 'blame America' types travel to Iraq and find some of those roadside bombs that are killing so many of our troops there?

And when you do, why don't you giggle, laugh, clap your hands and sit on them and rotate?

There are millions of us who wouldn't shed tears if you never came back.
