MANIT MINUTE

The Family Unit (part 2 of 4)

The terms immediate and extended family have very different meanings for Marshallese and Western cultures. In Western cultures, your immediate family is usually recognized as your nuclear family; that is, your parents, grandparents and siblings. The Marshallese language illustrates the difference in family relationships: "mama" is the name you would call your mother as well as all of her sisters. "Papa" is the name you would call your father and all of his brothers. "Bubu" (grandmother) and "jimma" (grandfather) is the name for your grandparents and all of their brothers and sisters. Brothers, sisters and cousins are simply referred to as brothers and sisters, while nephews and nieces are generally thought of as sons and daughters. The names for relatives are the same and the obligations are the same as well. A Marshallese would have the same filial obligation to his mother as he would have to his mother's sisters. These obligations cover all aspects of family life, including financial support, child rearing, caring for family during illness, birth and death.

Thumbs Up!

... to everyone who donated their time, effort and items for auction and to the volunteers that helped cook. Thanks again for making the fundraiser we had at the Vet's Hall a success.

THE RUMOR MILL

Col. Joseph Gaines addresses circulating rumors head-on. Rumors can earn from one to five ears. One ear is an unfounded rumor, while a rumor earning five ears is the truth.

Rumor: There are cases of food borne illness from eating at the food court and Café Pacific.

There have been no confirmed cases of food borne illness from either location, although there have been reports of people with an illness with similar symptoms to food poisoning. Recently, the Food Service Safety Team (Chief Warrant Officer 3 William Duff and Kinley Goodman) conducted thorough inspections of both locations. Procedures are being followed and steps are being taken to prevent potential food borne illness. No operation is perfect and some minor discrepancies were noted and will be re-evaluated to ensure future compliance. However, the team of inspectors did find a common factor.

Inspectors noted that customers are not performing the most important key to preventing food borne illness—hand washing. At the food court, the Food Service Safety Team observed a total of 41 customers who entered the establishment for lunch and saw that no one visited the restrooms to wash their hands. It was also observed that none of these customers utilized the hand sanitizer. During the Café Pacific inspection at the beginning of dinner service, out of 35 personnel who entered, only two washed their hands and out of those two individuals, one dried his hands on his shirt which defeated the purpose of the hand washing. Only eight of the 35 actually utilized the hand sanitizer upon entering the facility before heading straight for the salad bar, pizza line or main line.

Residents should be aware that with the high volume of personnel at these locations, hand washing becomes a top priority. Transferring germs from the door to a utensil, which is used by all patrons, will facilitate the transfer of germs from person to person even if some of them washed their hands. Utilizing hand sanitizer alone without hand washing does not prevent the spread of germs but instead facilitates it. Hand sanitizer is a barrier and is to be used in conjunction with hand washing. It is an acceptable means to minimize germs when no hand washing capabilities are available. Customers should visit a restroom and wash their hands before each meal. Customers can also be observed using the bathroom and walking right out without washing their hands. This is what causes illnesses and some are quick to blame food poisoning. This is one example of how we the customers are not doing our part.

If you suspect that you have a food borne illness, report it to Duff or Goodman so an accurate account of the occurrence can be recorded. Documentation and facts from the patient are needed in order to follow the proper procedures. Telling a friend, spouse or coworker about a food borne illness will not assist the Food Service Safety Team in getting the full determination to provide a fact filled report of any incidents reported.

THE KWAJALEIN HOURGLASS

The Kwajalein Hourglass is named for the insignia of the U.S. Army 7th Infantry Division, which liberated the island from the forces of Imperial Japan on Feb. 4, 1944.

The Kwajalein Hourglass is an authorized publication for military personnel, federal employees, contractor workers and their families assigned to U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll. Contents of the Hourglass are not necessarily official views of, or endorsed by, the U.S. Government, Department of Defense, Department of the Army or USAKA. It is published Saturdays in accordance with Army Regulation 360-1 and using a network printer by Kwajalein Range Services editorial staff.

Three KARC operators receive FCC licenses

Associate Editor

Kwajalein Amateur Radio Club held Federal Communication Commission amateur license examinations for three Kwajalein residents Tuesday night. Gary Johnson and John Pennington accomplished the technician level license, while incoming KARC president Rick Johnston earned the general class amateur license.

Jack Carey, outgoing KARC president, Ivy Springer and Rob Struppeck volunteered as the three examiners for the administration of the test, a requirement put forth by the FCC.

There are three levels of amateur radio licenses: technician, general and extra class. "Each category utilizes some of the radio spectrum—more bandwidth capability comes with the higher classification you have. You have to have a general license to operate in the frequencies that go around the world," explained Carey.

"After Hurricane Katrina, interest in ham radio increased, mainly because power and communications had been knocked out in the New Orleans area. The only way to get communications in there was the battery operated ham radios," said Carey. During Hurricane Katrina, the need for alternate communications became quickly apparent in the New Orleans area. Amateur radio operators came to the rescue in the emergency and provided communications to the rescue teams and other emergency responders. "We do have a military affiliate radio service capability here and there is talk of reactivation for the purpose of emergency operations," he added.

The uses for ham radios are many. "I want to be able to use ham radio on my boat and I also have an interest based on my work in the radar field—it has been enlightening with the variety of uses for ham radios," said Johnson. Springer also commented about the wide use of the radios for boats, adding, "A lot of cruisers use the radios to keep track of each other. Ham radio operators are very polite and there is no slang when talking to another operator."

The KARC congratulated the newly licensed men for all their hard work in earning their FCC amateur licenses. The next testing session will depend on when there will be enough candidates, volunteer examiners and time between missions, according to Carey.

New physicians begin work at hospital

Dr. Jim Morrow is the new chief medical officer at the Kwajalein hospital. Coming from Brookings, Ore., Morrow had a private practice for more than 20 years. He and his wife Nancy, a nurse practitioner, have two children, James and Lauren, who are both in California attending college. Morrow found the prospect of Kwajalein intriguing and is enthusiastic about the change in his professional life. He is looking forward to scuba diving here.

Dr. Nancy Batts arrived on Kwajalein Oct. 20 with her husband, David and daughter, Rachel. The Batts have nine children and 12 grandchildren between them. Batts learned of Kwajalein from her husband, who spotted an advertisement in Family Practice, a trade magazine. The ad asked, 'Want to live and work on a tropical island?' and the Batts were hooked. They are looking forward to getting on the water with their imminent B-boat licenses.

Sports Extravaganza met with enthusiasm

KSA looks to increase participation, camaraderie in island sports

Article and photos by Sheila Gideon
Managing Editor

There were over 700 participants in team sports last year. Kwajalein Sports Association was formed this year to make sure those 700, and hopefully more in the future, get to enjoy the sports program to its fullest extent. KSA currently has over 100 members. Their executive board includes a junior and high school representative.

KSA hopes to boost interest in island athletic programs. "Many Kwaj sports enthusiasts miss the sense of camaraderie that sports provided here on Kwajalein," said Masina McCollum, one of KSA's founding members. "KSA would like to create an overall improved sense of community, increase participation in athletic activities and contribute to the Kwaj quality of life."

One of their biggest contributions to the community will be to offer an officiating pool that provides officials and scorekeepers to island competitive sports. Due to budget cuts over the past few years, sports teams have had to provide their own officials, which coaches and players have admitted can be a burden. With funding from Quality of Life, KSA will be able to pay officials and scorekeepers for all competitive sports. All officials and scorekeepers will be diligently trained by KSA. They will hold tournaments before each sports season to give officials an opportunity to gain experience before the season begins. Qualified officials will help to make games safer and more enjoyable. McCollum noted that this is also an excellent opportunity for Kwajalein teens to boost self-esteem and develop responsibility and independence.

"KSA is not affiliated with Community Activities," McCollum explained. Community Activities is in charge of adult sports leagues and games schedules. KSA gives teams the option to use their trained officials instead of having to find their own volunteer.

Mark your calendars for February 2012 because that's when KSA's big venture will begin – Laser Tag. Funding was provided by Quality of Life to purchase a 16-player unit complete with phasers, vests and a central unit. KSA also purchased a field kit that includes 22 portable bunkers in various shapes and sizes that can be arranged differently to allow for a variety of Laser Tag game options. KSA will hold Laser Tag events throughout the year; the equipment will also be available to rent for private parties.

The other community perk KSA has to offer are sporting activities that will be open to the whole community. "The activities will hopefully create some more fun for participants, but also bring out more people to watch," McCollum said. Their first event, a sports extravaganza, took place Sunday at Brandon Field. They had eight different stations with various sports tasks at each. Some highlights were the Quarterback Corner, where participants had to throw a football at the backstop and try to hit targets for points. There was also Frisbee Golf and a Tennis Ruckus. It gave island residents a chance to try out sports that may not be regularly offered on-island. They ended the day with a Home Run Hitting Derby. Prizes were awarded based on age group.

Upcoming KSA events include a kickball tournament Dec. 22 at Brandon Field, a volleyball tournament Dec. 26 at Emon Beach and a 3-on-3 basketball tournament Jan. 9 at the CRC gym.

Community to the KSA doesn't just mean Kwajalein. They are also working to set up a round robin softball tournament with participants from Kwaj, Roi-Namur and Ebeye. They also encourage Roi residents to participate in the officials training so they too can better enjoy their sports seasons.

KSA does not want to only provide sport opportunities to the community, they want to ensure they are making it fun and participants enjoy themselves to the fullest extent. "One thing I miss about games at the CRC is having the stands full," said KSA member Kenny Leines. That is what KSA hopes to achieve in the end – more participation in island sports and more support from spectators.

"In order to achieve our goals and continue to make sports fun and successful, we need help," McCollum said. "Signing up to train officials, organizing a tournament and selling concessions can really make a difference. This will take an effort on our part as a community to really make this work."

To join KSA, contact Tarah Yurovchak, Kenny Leines, Anne Dowell, Masina McCollum, Eva Seelye or e-mail Kwajaleinsports@gmail.com. An annual family membership is $30 and a single membership is $15. You can also join the KSA Facebook page.

Joint effort curbs chances of Dengue on Ebeye

Maj. Peter Nunn, from Army Public Health Command, adds bacillus thuringiensis to a culvert on Ebeye Sunday. BT is a bacteria that kills mosquitoes in the larval state and is non-toxic to humans. Nunn came here at USAKA's request and has been advising and supplementing the efforts of USAKA, KRS and the local government on Ebeye. In photo, right, Ronny Keju, from KRS Pest Management, demonstrates a mosquito magnet Sunday on Ebeye. The device burns propane and emits carbon dioxide, which attracts female mosquitoes. The insects are then sucked into the machine and trapped. As of Thursday, the number of confirmed cases on Ebeye remains at one.

Telescope, micrometeorite donated to high school

Article and photos by Sheila Gideon
Managing Editor

Kwajalein High School was recently given a telescope and micrometeorite as a learning aid to the science department. The donations came from two researchers, Mike Salinsky and Penny Wozniakiewicz, who visited Kwajalein and spoke to the high school science classes. Salinsky and Wozniakiewicz are researching micrometeorite dust falling to the earth. Salinsky, who works for NASA, donated the micrometeorite. The telescope was donated by the IGGP Academic Institute in California.

The micrometeorite, named Campo del Cielo, is from Argentina. It is incredibly dense, made up mostly of iron and some nickel. It is 4.5 billion years old.

The telescope is a Celestron Ultima 2000. "It's very high quality," said high school science teacher Kristen Hosek. "You can actually track movement in the sky. If you align it with a couple different constellations and stars and get it set up, it will actually follow movement of different objects across the sky." Hosek has taken the telescope out almost every clear night. Students, parents and other residents join her on a regular basis. "It has incredible views of the sky," she exclaimed. So far, they have been able to see the moons of Jupiter, including the stripes on the moon. Hosek plans to use the telescope mostly with her earth science class. She is hoping to start an astronomy club next semester. "There's a pretty big group of interest." Part of the reason these items were donated was to stimulate interest in a future career in science.

Photos by Bill Remick

Though there are many meeting places on Kwaj for folks to congregate, none hold the popularity to a more diverse audience than the snack bar. Everyone from the island workforce to kids on their lunch breaks to folks here on temporary duty assignments visit the food court. Our modern food court, operated by AAFES, offers stateside favorites Burger King, Subway, Anthony's Pizza and Baskin Robbins Ice Cream. Back in 1989, having a "Whopper" was something one would only get to indulge when traveling off island. The snack bar did offer a traditional diner-style menu, with favorite offerings from the popular fried chicken to juicy burgers complete with an egg. Another draw to the contemporary food court is the modern convenience of being a wireless hotspot. Every day, technology-wielding souls connect, update, email, upgrade and otherwise utilize the prize commodity that is wireless connectivity. Nearly every occupied table has a laptop or a tablet along with their chosen gastronomical offerings.

DISPATCH FROM ROI

RECIPES BY CAROL RIVARD
CAFÉ ROI SHIFT SUPERVISOR

After a long day at the beach or on the boat—what a fun outdoor meal to come home to! Add salad and an easy dessert to make a complete meal. You can also double the dough recipe and have a do-it-yourself pizza party around the grill, letting guests make their own pizza creations. Simple or gourmet pizzas are available any time you want them.

Grilled Pizza

2 cups warm water	2 packets of instant yeast
2 Tbs. sugar	6 cups flour
1/4 c. olive oil	2 Tbs. salt

Mix water, sugar and yeast in a mixing bowl, allow to sit for 5-10 minutes until frothy. Add the rest of the ingredients and mix until a smooth, elastic dough forms, adding more water or flour depending on the texture of the dough. Oil the top of the dough, cover and place in a warm place to rise. Once dough has doubled, place on a floured surface and divide into 4-6 balls. Roll out each ball flat and flour liberally to keep from sticking to one another.

Prepare your grill so it is at medium-low heat. Have all your favorite pizza toppings ready. Brush your pizza crust with olive oil, place oil-side down on the grill, allow to grill for 3-5 minutes. Watch carefully to keep from burning. Brush the top side with oil and flip. Turn the heat down if necessary. Working quickly, brush a thin layer of your choice of warmed sauce and top with your favorite toppings, less toppings are better as the pizza won't cook completely if it has too many. Cook an additional 3-5 minutes with the lid shut or until the bottom is cooked and golden.
