... to Dick and Cheryl Shields for 30 years of volunteering their musical expertise to the Kwaj community for the Protestant church choir and bell choir, Community Choir, band concerts, teaching students, and setting up sound and lighting systems for community events in the MP Room. They have brought many hours of musical enjoyment to young and old on Kwajalein. An end of an era is about to happen when they PCS on June 18.

The dedicated students of Kwajalein Jr./Sr. High School were rewarded with recognition May 18 during an awards assembly in the MP Room. Students were acknowledged for excellence in various subjects from the 2012-2013 school year.

Congratulations to Hagar Kabua for your achievement in Woods II.

MANIT MINUTE

The canoes of the past could reach a length of 100 feet and carry up to 40 people and supplies. These vessels, called walap, were not fast. Open-sea voyages could last well over a month. The tipnol was a smaller and speedier canoe, used mainly for fishing inside the lagoons. It could carry 10 or more and, if necessary, be used for ocean voyaging. The korkor was a small paddling outrigger, sometimes fitted with sail, used for lagoon work. Sails were triangular and often extremely large, with a yard and boom on two sides.

THE KWAJALEIN HOURGLASS

The Kwajalein Hourglass is an authorized publication for military personnel, federal employees, contractor workers and their families assigned to U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll. Contents of the Hourglass are not necessarily official views of, or endorsed by, the U.S. Govern-

High school seniors one step closer to graduation

By Shawn Brady
Media Specialist

The class of 2013 took their final step towards graduation with the Baccalaureate celebration on Sunday. The Blessed Sacrament church was packed with parents, teachers, Kwajalein High School alumni and other community members all supporting the 2013 graduating seniors. The night was filled with heartfelt speeches, prayers and performances. The Baccalaureate celebration is one of the many ways that the Kwajalein community honors the graduating high school class before they are sent off into the “real world.”

The night began as the seniors processed down the aisle of the church on a mat that read, “Follow your dreams.” While they made their way to front of the church, John Sholar and Rachel DeLange read their reminiscent personal introductions. Upon finding their seats, the graduates were addressed by Master of Ceremonies, Raymond Drefus, and the community was welcomed to the Baccalaureate.

Mr. Jason Huwe was then invited to bless the class with an opening prayer. “Lord we thank you so much for the joy we have celebrating these graduates today. We thank you for their parents, friends and family for their time, effort and love that has been poured over them in anticipation for this day.” Huwe set the thankful, celebratory tone for the evening before introducing the first act of the night.

Kori Dowell sang as Eva Seelye accompanied her on guitar. The two girls impressed the crowd with their performance of “The Time of My Life” by singer David Cook. The song represented the cherishing of memories and the anticipation for times ahead. Dowell and Seelye were the first of three student acts on Sunday.

After the first performance of the night, Tarah Yurovchak took the stage as the class’s motivational speaker. Yurovchak, a sixth grade teacher at George Seitz Elementary, taught many of the graduates when they were in elementary school. The speech took an unexpected turn when Yurovchak pulled out a “cat in the hat” pair of glasses and hat. She read the class Dr. Seuss’ story, Oh the Places You’ll Go! The book took listeners on a ridiculous journey through the ins and outs of life while portraying how unpredictable it can be at times. Yurovchak ended her speech by saying, “Failures happen and they help us grow stronger and become more humble.” She placed a large importance on going out and conquering the world, regardless of the obstacles and setbacks that may lie ahead.

Following the motivational speech, four graduates performed the second act of the night. Mary McPhatter, Natasha Tomas, Eva Seelye, and Kori Dowell did a hula dance to the song “Home in the Islands,” by Henry Kapono. The girls captivated the audience with their beautiful, fluid motions. Being able to demonstrate such a unique, island-style dance before leaving Kwajalein is extremely special.

Masina McCollum took the podium next, as she was chosen to be the night’s inspirational speaker. McCollum was born and raised on Kwajalein, so she has a firm understanding of what moving from a place like Kwajalein means. McCollum placed a bag containing a live hermit crab under each graduate’s chair. As they opened their bags, there was a large range of reactions; some were laughing, some were excited, and some were completely horrified! The hermit crab was not used solely for shock value, however. McCollum used the hermit crab to symbolize persistence, resiliency and adaptation to new environments. She described characteristics of a hermit crab such as their tendency to change shells often, overcome rather difficult tasks in front of them, all while maintaining a soft inside. As McCollum wrapped up her speech, she reminded all of the Kwaj-kids to keep the hermit crab in their minds as they left Kwajalein and to “be strong, island strong!”

The inspirational speech was followed by the third and final performance of the night. The Ri’katak students, Edward Bobo, Hagar Kabua, Glothelia Mijena and Michael Pedro sang a song called “Jino,” by Li-Takeh Samson. The five graduates’ voices harmonized perfectly behind the smooth chords of the ukulele, played by Hagar Kabua.

Paula Fluhrer rounded out the night’s speeches, covering the spiritual aspect. Fluhrer taught many of the graduates earlier in their high school years. She spoke about her own personal experience, and how she had some difficulties when she first transitioned into college. Fluhrer spoke about getting caught up in life’s superficial entities, such as academic performance, appearance, and popularity. She explained that these aspects of life don’t often bring true happiness. Fluhrer advised the class that “If you really want to shine...you need a source of light inside of you.” Her words were especially impactful considering all of the new experiences, obstacles, and distractions that the graduates will soon face.

Fr. Victor Langhans, Catholic priest here on Kwajalein, closed the program with a benediction. “Send upon these graduates and fill them with your wisdom and blessings, that they remain humble in heart.” With those words of faith, the class of 2013 processed out of the church to the tune of “Gone, Gone, Gone,” by Phillip Phillips. The graduates lined up outside of the church and were greeted by friends, family, and community members. It’s on to graduation for this group of 17 Kwaj-kids!

Did you know?

Both pools on Kwajalein are salt water flow-through pools using water directly from the ocean. Water is pumped in from the intake pipe pump located by the Ocean View Club. Once pumped in, the water splits in the pipe and travels either to the Adult Pool or the Family Pool, filling them through a series of small jets in the shallow end. Water is constantly circulated through use of the gutter systems and drains located in the pools. This water drains through outtake pipes which pump out directly onto the reef. Both pools receive a small amount of chlorine daily, which is regulated by environmental standards so as not to affect the reef, ocean or marine life. No other chemicals such as pH regulator, rust and calcium deposit remover or algacide are used. As a result, water temperature and clarity can be affected by many natural factors such as sunlight, rain, tide tables, algae bloom and salinity.
