Fire Department breaks open training

By Peter Rejcek

Using hydraulic spreaders, electric saws and halligan bars, Kwajalein Fire Department personnel carved up a rusted pickup like a Thanksgiving turkey Tuesday as part of a weeklong program to recertify the department's EMTs.

Working under the midday sun, firefighters donned full equipment, including shiny proximity suits, which reflect heat, and helmets with visors, as they learned the finer points of how to dismantle a vehicle with a trapped victim inside.

"This kind of work involves heavy labor," warned Fire Capt. Steve Chick during a briefing at the firehouse before the exercise, which took place at the landfill. Some of the equipment used can weigh upwards of 80 pounds, he said.

"The more you use these [tools], the more versatile you realize they are," noted Chick, who stressed the importance of tool maintenance before and during any operation. "You can start out with a 14-inch [saw] blade, and by the time you've finished ... you can end up with a seven-inch blade."

After cribbing the truck at four points with lumber, firefighters took turns trying out various tools, ranging from air chisels to a Sawzall, to gain access to the truck's cab, where a life-size dummy sat in the driver's inside.

In a break from tradition, Toyland did not have an official opening this year. Instead, as toys, games, dolls and tiny cars arrived on island they were put on Macy's shelves.

"My philosophy — I don't hold back merchandise for anything," said Paul Divinski, Retail Merchandising and Purchasing manager. "We'll push [Toyland] out further into the store. We are flexing departments."

Toyland is now encroaching into the men's clothing section, which has also expanded with a bigger selection of Kwajalein-branded hats and clothes.

The shuffling will continue as the stores fill up with gifts and decorating items for the holiday season, along with the basics residents need, Divinski said. Residents will be able to shop, wrap and mail from Kwaj rather than going through the Internet.

"Christmas starts for us in a week," Divinski said, explaining that Christmas trees are ready to be tagged and put out, along with holiday decorations for both "trim-a-tree" and households. The stores will take on a holiday feel with seasonal music and displays.

Where has all the bratwurst gone?

In the classic movie, "The Caine Mutiny," Humphrey Bogart as Capt. Queeg is being cross-examined at the trial. He, at a key moment, exclaims that "it was the strawberries," thus explaining at what point the men ultimately decided to mutiny and take over command of the ship. For me and a few of my friends, that point/issue may be the bratwurst.

Let me explain. One of the joys of life on Kwaj is backyard grilling, and being a good German-American, I love a good bratwurst, boiled in beer and grilled to perfection. My first year here, bratwurst was always available, and I, and many others, purchased it regularly. Well, the grocery stores on this island have not had any bratwurst for the last six to seven months by my count, despite numerous complaints, innumerable surveys, etc. They have had plenty of other wursts (sausages), i.e., Italian, Polish, Andouille, hotdogs, etc., but no brats.

Well, OK, I'm a patient man; these things happen, and surely it will be on the very next barge. At least I had the annual Oktoberfest to plan on going to and enjoying some brats that were advertised on the menu. But, no! What do they serve but knackwurst and rindwurst, both noble and tasty members of the wurst family, but definitely not brats!

Bratwurst is a light-colored, specially spiced sausage, made normally from pork, sometimes veal — not beef. In Germany, they produced a type of bratwurst which was called Kalb Wurst — literally veal sausage. In the states it was sometimes called white bratwurst — this also is a very tasty bratwurst, great for grilling. I'd take either one right now, but please don't tell me this other stuff is the real thing.

And by the way, that next barge is long overdue!

Community support great at Oktoberfest

The American Legion Women's Auxiliary would like to sincerely thank the community for their support in making our annual Oktoberfest a success. A special thanks to those of you who donated your time, and gave gifts and supplies for our event.

Lots of people helped make fair a success

We would like to thank the following people for their assistance with the Kwajalein Hospital Health Fair.

Community Activities folks for raising the tents. A special thanks to Amy Hansen and Steve Snider who went out of their way for us. Jeanette Johnson, Glenn Gandaras, Tom Anderson, Tony Kelly and Roger Reed for the great work with the hand-washing badges passed out.

Sincerely,
Tom Miller

From the Editor: Sports team photos return

No, all the letters threatening innocent geckos did not change our minds, but after further review, we decided to return to tradition.

The winning sports teams from this past softball season appear in today's issue as an insert. Hopefully, that will be the future format for all adult sports —

Tom Dillon and James Stepchew for returning chairs and tables at the right time and helping us unload at the tents. Lee Pennington and James Perryman for participating and bringing the ambulance down on short notice. The Human Resources Department for answering insurance and benefit questions.

Also, thanks to all of the hospital staff that participated. Everyone did a great job, and we know that it was much appreciated by the community members.

Lastly, the pharmacy raffle winners were Judith Shimamoto, who won a humidifier, and Chris Ouderkirk, who won a heating pad.

Perspectives on war stimulate brain juices

Thank you Col. [Curtis L.] Wrenn and all the citizens of Kwajalein who attended the "War Planning: It's More Than Just the Military" presentation Friday evening. It was wonderful to listen, learn and share ideas with our friends and neighbors. I especially appreciated Dr. Mohamed Abouzahra's willingness to share his unique perspectives as a person who spent half his life in the Middle East and the other half in the United States. Thank you, Dr. Abouzahra.

The meeting reminded me of our forefathers gathering in a tavern in Boston or a church in Williamsburg to discuss and debate the critical issues of their time. The tragic events of Sept. 11 made all of us realize how strife and instability in any part of the world can affect us right at home. We need to be just as informed and involved in current events as our predecessors 225 years ago. I hope there are more opportunities in the future for us to get out from behind our computer screens and televisions and engage in lively and stimulating discussions about our world.

Sincerely,
Tom Miller

More? Less? It's getting done, in case you didn't notice

For those of you who did fill out the last Quality of Life survey, thank you. The results are in ... (Part 1 today ... Part 2 in two weeks).

See what happens when you complete surveys? Managers do listen, and here's proof. The first of the section profiles is here, too. You can learn a little more about the individual areas. Here are the first things that will be worked on in the community. I'll keep you updated on the status and progress of every one of these items, so stay tuned.

By the way, when you start seeing these things being implemented, there is no better reward for the area supervisor than a simple, "thank you," "great job," or even, "hey, I noticed the changes you're trying."

- CPN Radio:

Increasing listening selection on both 101.1 FM and 1224AM.

-Already in progress (have you noticed?).

- Library:

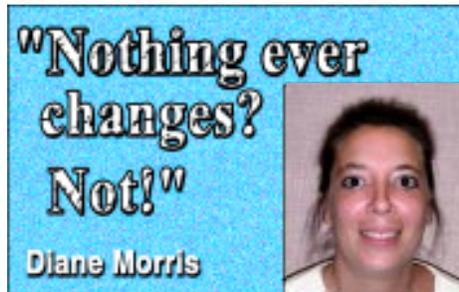

Maximize space.

-Clearing out and reorganizing existing areas.

Decrease noise from AC inside library.

-FOM contacted; will request compressor to be moved outside.

Upgrade computer equipment.

-Equipment identified; awaiting go-ahead to purchase.

- Retail/Provisioning:

Increase selection and consistency.

-Constant in-process activity.

Adjust hours to better fit community needs.

-Survey sent out; results being compiled.

- Post Office:

Investigate options for hour changes.

-Meeting has been held to look at options; you'll have to wait for my next column for the results, though.

- Medical Services:

Refine survey to provide better information of community expectations to administrators.

- Adult Education:

Increase community awareness of the scope of the program.

Increase community participation.

Speaking of adult education ... after an e-mail discussion with Rory Vance, the program's manager, we realized the public has the wrong definition of adult education. Adult education classes are self-fulfillment types of classes, not degree fulfillment. It is in no way related to University of Maryland.

The program is designed to teach residents what it is they want to learn, and it needs your input on the courses you want. Flyers in the Hourglass, five times a year, ask, "What classes would you like to see offered?" They can't be any more direct than that.

Vance said another issue is, "OK, they want to learn Topic A. I have to find someone who can or wants to teach Topic A." The program does not have designated, funded instructors sitting around waiting to be assigned a class. It is a community effort.

One adult education service you may not be aware of is that they offer Dantes, CLEP, GMAT, GRE and other proctored exams. They will even help you with the paperwork — free of charge! So, please, the next time a survey asks you about adult education, think self-fulfillment, not course credits.

Fund-raiser to benefit Afghan children

Students at George Seitz Elementary School are encouraged to break a school rule tomorrow. But it's for a good cause.

Tomorrow is hat day, and for a donation of a dollar, students may wear a hat at school, which is usually against the rules.

"All monies collected tomorrow will be sent to President Bush at the White House for the $1 for Afghan Children Food Fund," said Karen Ammann, school superintendent.

In another effort to help, from Oct. 10 to Oct. 20, the elementary school student council collected $1,432.09 for victims of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks in a fund-raising drive called "Counting on Kids," sponsored by the National Association of Elementary School Principals and the Red Cross, Ammann said.

"I hope that it will help a lot of people that have gotten hurt or have had family or friends that have gotten hurt in the attack," said sixth-grade student council member Shelley Childers.

The student council also decided to make a contest out of the change collection, said Masina McCollum, council advisor.

A prize was offered for the class that collected the most money. The winning class was Janice Riordan's fourth grade, with a total of $247.20, McCollum said. The prize was a piece of candy for everyone in the class.

Alex DeMeo, fifth-grade council member, said, "I was surprised that we could make so much money in such a short time. I think it was for a very good cause."

"I'm excited about the amount that we raised and I'm surprised by everyone's interest. I'm proud of what the school did..." said sixth-grader Elizabeth Keck.

The donated money will be forwarded to the Oahu Red Cross chapter, which will send it on to the Washington, D.C., headquarters, McCollum said. The school will receive a certificate of appreciation from the Hawaii chapter of the Red Cross.

Sixth-grader David Rice said, "I think it was great. It was a last-minute thing, but it sure helped a lot of people out."

"I couldn't believe that Mrs. Riordan's class was able to raise so much money on their own," said Seth Corbin, fifth-grade council member, adding, "When they say that every penny counts, it is true. We collected a lot of pennies and it made a difference."

KYC raises $754 for ARC efforts

Ghosts, goblins and Cruella DeVillie attended the Kwajalein Yacht Club's Monster Bash Costume Ball at the Country Club Sunday night — all for charity.

DeVillie (Sam Cathey) won "the most scariest" costume category, but the biggest winners will be the Sept. 11 victims and their families. The costume ball raised $754 for the American Red Cross.

"This is the first year that we designated the proceeds to go to a certain organization," said John Ross, KYC commodore.

He said the KYC committee decided to make the Monster Bash Costume Ball an American Red Cross fund-raiser soon after the terrorist attacks.

"Everything changed; we didn't know if we really wanted to have [the ball] because of Sept. 11," said Charlotte Ross, KYC Monster Bash planning committee co-chairman. "Then we decided to go ahead and do it and donate all the proceeds."

New hours for retail stores, film kiosk planned ...

November barge will bring cases of wrapping paper, greeting cards, wreaths, gift items including NFL-branded items, telescopes, DVD players, clothes and "new, exciting and trendy items," he said.

Customer traffic has increased four-fold on Kwajalein since August and should increase even more over the next few months. The impending holiday season, new merchandise and attractive displays have brought more residents and visitors to the retail stores, Divinski said.

Divinski said that the store managers and retail clerks are also putting in extra time and effort to make their stores attractive.

"I'm riding by [Macy's early in the morning] ... I looked up and saw the fish chimes hanging there," Divinski said. "It made me want to go in the store and shop. Annemarie [Jones, Macy's manager] is working a lot of hours to give the store a fresh look."

Quality of life survey

As a result of the recent survey, Divinski said he is working on store hours, customer service and "achieving efficiencies [and] making it easy for the customer ... so they can walk in [the stores] and see things for themselves."

Retail hours

Within four weeks the stores, including Gimbel's, Macy's, Macy's West and Surfway, will have hours that meet the needs of the community, Divinski said, explaining that the proposal will be going to USAKA and Raytheon within two weeks.

"We're going to tweak the hours, but we're not going to be open 24 hours," Divinski said.

Customer service

Role playing and going back to basics are the focus of customer-service training, Divinski said.

"Dave [Fearon, Macy's West manager] walked through with each clerk and did some role playing," he said. "People assume too much that people know how to help ... they come from different backgrounds ... so I'm getting back to basics."

More to come

• A film kiosk or drop-off will be available at Ten-Ten Nov. 10, Divinski said. Processed film will still be picked up from Macy's service desk.

• General stock material on sale at Macy's West will be more visible and accessible, he said. A computer to access available items, along with a board displaying lumber and other building materials, will make it easier for customers by Nov. 10.

"I have one of the biggest workforces on this island," Divinski said. "Retail is not [just] merchandising ... Retail is people management and satisfying the community."

The result of all this work is evident to even a 3-year-old standing near a display of small gift books and picture frames in Macy's.

"Look at all the neat things," said David Sholar, waving his arms to include the entire store.

Training exercises include defibrillators, IV therapy ...

we're out here," Finley said.

Chick, who acted as the safety officer during the exercise, also discussed how to handle a variety of obstacles often associated with an accident, from hazardous material spills to controlling public access to the scene.

"[Bystanders] don't realize what they could be getting into," he said.

Eighteen firefighters from Kwajalein, Roi-Namur and Meck are taking the EMT Refresher, which is required of the department's emergency medical technicians every two years, according to Jerry Leverett, assistant fire chief.

Besides the vehicle extrication exercise, the course includes such subjects as patient assessment, trauma/medical, cardio arrest management, spinal immobilization, air way management, IV therapy and oxygen administration. The course also includes cardiac emergency care with early defibrillation and definitive airway devices. Training involves classroom lectures and hands-on work, such as doing IVs.

Firefighter Paul Richter said that while working in the field is the best experience, it's very helpful to head back to the classroom, as well.

"It's good to get back to basics," he said.

Leverett explained that Tuesday's

RMI residents take, pass military test

By Peter Rejcek

Seven residents of Majuro successfully passed the entrance test to join the U.S. Armed Services, according to the U.S. Embassy in Majuro. Eleven applicants of Kwajalein Atoll are still awaiting word on whether or not they passed the exam.

"It is a very hard test," said Maryanne Lane, USAKA Host Nation specialist, of the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery test. "The vocabulary is very hard for a second language [speaker]."

The test, given earlier this month, consists of 10 sections and takes upwards of 3½ hours to complete, according to Lane. Skill assessment includes everything from mechanical to English and math. But it is the verbal and mathematical sections that determine whether an applicant passes or fails, Lane said.

Twenty people took the test at Kwaj, she said. Of those, nine did not pass the pre-test. The remainder of the applicants, seven U.S. citizens and four Marshallese high school students who attend school at Kwaj, should find out the results in about a month, Lane said.

The seven Majuro residents who passed the exam are now eligible to proceed with their applications to join the military, said Mike Senko, U.S. ambassador to the Republic of the Marshall Islands and the Republic of Kirabati.

"The embassy congratulates them and thanks all who interviewed and took the test," he said.

Lane said a second visit by military recruiters is scheduled for April.

"This is the first time it's being given twice a year," she noted.

The Majuro residents who passed the test were Scottie Anuntak, Maria Bucad, Rebecca Domingo, David Enne, Franklin Henry, Donald Jeik and Agnes Jibke.

Podunkers, Thirty-Something claim A division titles

By Kim Parker
Sports Writer

After what seemed like the longest short-season ever, it's finally time to put away the softball cleats, at least for a few months. So, with the cleats in the closet and gloves at the Gear Locker, here is a recap of the champions:

Thirty-something throttled Homeplate 16-4, finishing the season undefeated, and taking home the Women's A division crown. In Women's B division action the Scrubs shellacked Lady Spartans II for the title.

The Spartans II fared better in the Men's D division. Rising from the loser's bracket, Spartans II spanked Da' Bomb for the championship, 23-13.

Time constraints did not allow the Men's C-West and C-East divisions to play one another, but individual champions were crowned. Brothers All beat the Ebeye Doves, 26-10, for the Men's C-West championship and Mixed Plate mashed the Barnacles in the Men's C-East final, easily taking the title 18-5.

Finally, the Men's A division championship proved as exciting as ever, with the Podunkers pounding the Criminals 13-6.

"We jumped on them 6-0, then let them back in the ballgame," lamented Flynn Gideon, Criminals manager/coach. Despite the early lead, the Criminals could not hold on to win the crown.

So what does it take to beat a team that's won the A Division title six of the last seven seasons? "Experience," said T.C. Cassiday, Podunkers manager/coach. "The Criminals have as good of a team as we do, maybe better," Cassiday said. "We just have more experience playing together."

Did you have any special motivation to win this season?

"Elliot [Moseley] was our inspiration [that night]," Cassiday said. "It was his last game on Kwaj; we wanted to win it for him."

Moseley, reflecting back on his softball career, simply said, "Podunkers rule."

En masse, the Criminals chanted, "Next year."

So, until next year, both teams set aside their differences, and in true Kwaj fashion, gathered together for a barbecue after the game.

Soccer season gets underway this week

By Peter Rejcek
Associate Editor

Marshallese teams will account for a full third of the leagues during this year's soccer season.

Six of the 18 teams come from Ebeye this year, which represents something like a 400 percent increase, according to Ian West, Community Activities adult athletics supervisor.

Calvary and Queen of Peace schools are fielding men and women's teams, with Calvary being represented by four teams, two in each division.

West said there are normally only one or two Marshallese teams every season.

Participation is up across the board, he added, with the most soccer team registered this year than over the last six years.

In the men's division are Calvary I, Calvary II, Queen of Peace, Spartans I, Spartans II, Spartans Red, Spartans White, Kobeer and Locals. The women's division includes Calvary I, Calvary II, Queen of Peace, Spartans I, Spartans II, Spartans Red, Spartans White, Play On and Pupules.

The season got underway this week, as action began Wednesday. Regular season continues through the end of November, with both divisions playing a round-robin format, meaning each team will play a total of eight regular season games.

Both divisions then split into three leagues consisting of three teams. Those three teams will play each other, with the top two teams playing for the championship, for a total of six league champions.

Health, safety on show at annual fair

Blood and tire pressure, dental and mental health, bike and food safety and wart removal were some of the topics covered at Monday's annual Health Fair.

"It was a good turnout from the community, and we had a lot of different [health and safety] aspects represented," said Dr. John Janikowski, Kwajalein Hospital staff doctor.

At times, it was standing room only under the two big tents — one dedicated to health and the other to bicycle safety. An ambulance and two emergency medical technicians completed the scene.

"The EMTs are an important part of the medical community," said Valerie Gray, Kwajalein Hospital Out-Patient nurse manager, explaining that they give the first, or "pre-hospital, care."

Under the health tent, Kwajalein Hospital nurses measured blood pressures and blood sugar levels.

In the safety tent, Macy's West bike mechanic William Boutu performed minor bike repairs. Decked out in helmet and pads, RSE Safety engineer Amber Morse helped children with a safety questionnaire.
