WWII veterans tour Pacific battle sites

By KW Hillis

Edwin Dawson especially remembers the rain. Sitting on metal seats in a virtual downpour and wearing a poncho, Dawson watched a movie on Roi 58 years ago.

This weekend, Dawson revisited the islands he had spent 21 months on during World War II when he joined other veterans from World War II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War, along with some battlefield history buffs, on a trip to Kwajalein and Roi-Namur for three stormy days.

Four of the 12-member group visited Guam, Saipan and Tinian before landing Friday evening. On Saturday, the

Kwajalein stuffed with turkeys

By Jim Bennett
Editor

There are a lot of turkeys on Kwajalein this month.

Surfway stocked 10,000 pounds of a variety of turkeys for the holidays, said Ray Denham, Surfway store manager, while Café Pacific will prepare 1,000 pounds of bird for its special holiday feast Thursday, according to Farida Straub, Sodexho Area general manager.

That works out to about 4½ pounds of turkey per person on the island, and like a TV infomercial, there's more.

Surfway has also stocked 2,000 pounds of "Farmer John" whole hams, 1,500 pounds of honey-glazed hams and 500 pounds of duck and geese.

"With the shipping strike there was some concern here, but everything seems to be coming through now," Denham said.

Café Pacific will also serve 250 pounds of shrimp cocktail and carved steamship round along with a variety of side dishes including fruit and cheese, mashed and sweet potatoes, squash, green beans and pie and

New air service added to Fiji from Marshalls

Say Bula! to a new destination from the Marshall Islands.

Air service from Majuro to Nadi, Fiji, is just about ready to hit the air, offering residents here a more direct route to the South Pacific island chain than going through Honolulu or Guam.

The international service was to have had its inaugural flight this week, but it's been rescheduled, though a final date has not yet been set.

It takes an island for community relations to work

When someone asked me recently how many people work in the public affairs office, I said, "Just me ... and the rest of the island!"

Last weekend, a group of WWII veterans and relatives visited Kwajalein and Roi-Namur. They were humbled by and grateful for the energy and attention we gave their visit.

Please bear with me while I thank ... Anne Greene and 1st Sgt. Paul Balag; Ted Burris and Scarlett Scholte; Cris Lindborg and Meredith Schubach; Larry Allen, Sarah and Jim Muhich, Jason Bishoff and K.W. Hillis; Turk Cooper and Bert Godlewski; the Automotive and Aviation staff members; Lt. Joanna Bucknam and the Entry/Exit personnel; KPD and their K-9 friends who posed for requested photos; the Kwaj Lodge and cafés Pacific and Roi teams; Christy Pappas-Drabek; Michael Biehn and YYC dining room crew; members of the Kwajalein Pipes and Drum Corps; Tom Hall and the American Legion Post 44; Nancy Tesch and members of the Auxiliary; Russ Camacho and the Post 44 Honor Guard; Debra Oglesby, Chuck Roberts and Jim Schilling; and all the friends who supported Sunday night's shrimp boil at the Vets Hall and made these special guests feel so welcome!

Remember Hillary Clinton's book, "It Takes a Village"? So many times, for me to do the community relations part of my job, it takes an island. Thank you everyone.

President sends out holiday message, warning to terrorists

I am honored to have this opportunity to thank the brave men and women of America's Armed Forces for your service to our nation. This Thanksgiving there's much to reflect upon — and even more to be grateful for.

More than a year ago our nation was attacked, and thanks to all of you, today we find a liberated Afghanistan, and we find that the terrorists are on the run. But more work in the war against terror remains. We will root out all the terrorists who threaten America and our allies. We will not be secure as a nation until all these threats are eliminated. And no matter how long it takes, we will fight the enemies of freedom, and we will win.

This Thanksgiving, we have so much to be thankful for. We are thankful for the goodness and generosity of our citizens. We are thankful for the freedom of America's democracy. And we are so very thankful to you the men and women who wear our uniform.

And thanks to our military, the people of Afghanistan live in freedom and have hope for a better life. Thanks to you freedom is replacing fear throughout the world. And thanks to you we are bringing justice to those who would harm America.

Each and every one of you is dedicated to serving something greater than yourself. You put the protection and safety of others above your own. You are guided by a code, and you fight to bring a promise of freedom to others. I'm honored to be your commander in chief.

Happy Thanksgiving to you all. May God bless you and your families. And may God continue to bless America.

Calendar mistakes deserve a refund

I request a refund on the 10 calendars that I purchased at Ten-Ten.

After reviewing the calendar, I noticed two mistakes on them. One: July has only 30 days. Two: February has no 21st. Now that I have mailed out my lovely calendars as Christmas gifts, can I get a refund?

Badges? We don't need ... yes, at Tape Escape you do

By Jim Bennett
Editor

Badges? Unlike the "Treasure of Sierra Madre," you need your badges at Tape Escape.

Starting Dec. 15, the video/DVD rental store will require customers to have a bar-coded sticker on their badges for rental. TDY visitors will have a temporary pass with a bar code.

The bar code stickers began as a pilot project last year, but this fall officials decided to make scanning a 100 percent requirement.

"This is for higher security and greater accuracy," said Paul Fritz, Retail Operations manager.

Stickers are issued simply by asking the clerk for your sticker and presenting your ID. The clerk will check to see if you are on the family account, and if so, issue you a pre-printed bar code sticker. Anyone over the age of 10 not on a family account may be added by simply filling out the appropriate form at Tape Escape.

On a related note, Fritz wanted to remind customers that reservation movies are due by 5 p.m. the following day, and non-reservation movies are due by 8 p.m. Those turning in movies late will be charged a late fee equal to the rental cost for non-reservation movies, $10 for reservation movies not in by 5 p.m. the following day and $20 if not back by 8 p.m. that same day.

The bar code move is just one improvement as Tape Escape enters the holidays.

Fritz will give out a pair of "door prizes" during the "Rich in the Morning" radio show, Nov. 30. One door prize is an "E.T." collector's edition box set, while the other is a "Spiderman" collector's edition box set. To enter the drawing, drop your name in the box located at Tape Escape. The drawing will be around 8:05 a.m. on 101.1 FM, 1220 AM.

A number of new movies are headed to store shelves, too, including the newly released summer blockbusters "Star Wars, Episode II," "Men in Black II" and "Austin Powers - Goldmember." In December, Tom Cruise and Steven Spielberg's "Minority Report" comes out as does Vin Diesel's "XXX" and Eddie Murphy's "Adventures of Pluto Nash." For the kids, Disney's "Lilo and Stitch" will be out in December, along with "Country Bears," "Stuart Little II" and "Hey Arnold, the Movie."

One thing that hasn't changed is prices. Children's videos are still $1.50. New releases are $2.50 and all other movies are $2.

School addresses concern about teen substance abuse

By Barbara Johnson
Feature Writer

Substance abuse among high school students ranked as one of the top concerns among parents last spring in a districtwide survey.

As one step in addressing the issue, the School Advisory Council asked health teacher AnnElise Peterson to profile the school's drug and alcohol curriculum at Wednesday night's meeting.

"We want to make sure students at all levels are receiving the information they need to make decisions," said Karen Ammann, superintendent.

The approach at the elementary level begins in kindergarten, with identifying harmful substances and builds up through sixth grade, Ammann said.

In the seventh grade, decision-making activities play a part in the curriculum all year, with two to three weeks devoted to discussing drugs and alcohol, Peterson said.

In the eighth grade, refusal skills and role-playing are woven in with decision-making in addition to the three to four weeks spent specifically learning about alcohol and drug facts through the textbook and videos.

One very useful technique from the eighth grade up has been to have the students think about role models they know and ask them to speak to the class, Peterson said.

For example, high school students who have been involved in drinking at Kwajalein are willing to go to other grades and talk about their own experiences.

"Student-to-student teaching is wonderful," Peterson said.

Also to address the issue, high school principal Steve Howell will send letters to all jr./sr. high parents outlining the program and asking for suggestions, Ammann said.

And the school will schedule guest speakers from police and medical staff and will likely hold parent issue sessions with counseling and medical staff in the spring, she said.

"What we want is a community approach," Ammann said, indicating that this could include medical, educational and police staff, along with parents and students.

"We want to make sure students at all levels are receiving the information they need to make decisions."

"If parents have concerns they'd like us to address, we'd like them to tell us," she said.

Making the grades

In other council news,

Ammann reported that 98 percent of elementary school parents attended parent teacher conferences at the end of October. Teachers reported very positive conferences, she said.

Howell said at the high school, 78 percent of parents participated in conferences. He also said that 70 percent of the jr./sr. high school students, or 121 students, were on the honor roll with a B average or better. Fifteen students had a 4.0 average.

In response to a question about whether this is unusually high, he said that consistently over the past years about two-thirds of the students have been on the honor roll. And they earn their grades, he said.

Howell attributes this relatively high rate to several factors: a higher than usual number of parents in this community who are exceptionally interested in their children's progress, an average student-to-teacher ratio of about 10 and a very good faculty.

Former Navy vets make nostalgic return to atoll ...

remaining eight travelers arrived from Honolulu. Dawson and one other visitor, Voit Gilmore, had been to Kwajalein Atoll over 55 years ago as members of the U.S. Navy.

The other visitors, although they did not fight here, were self-declared history buffs and either had been in the service during the war or had a relative in the military. They came to Kwajalein Atoll to learn more about WWII. George Richardson, who joined the U.S. Army in 1946, summed up the reason why most of them had come.

"It is a matter of interest ... it was a turning point in American history, as well as world history, because it was the first time America really came to grips with what their future was," he said.

Richardson, who was born in Hawaii, lived on Oahu when Pearl Harbor was attacked. He said everyone in Hawaii knew about Kwajalein from following the war in the Pacific.

"After Pearl Harbor, we had a fear of invasion," he said. "Then, of course, Midway happened and that fear receded."

The group, accompanied by resident and guide Scarlett Scholte, visited the Island Memorial Chapel, historical markers, Mount Olympus and bunkers on Saturday afternoon. Gilmore pointed out familiar locations to his wife, Josephine, and fellow travelers.

"We have done many trips in the Pacific, but we hadn't done this part," said Josephine Gilmore, as she surveyed Kwajalein from Mount Olympus. "He wanted to come back."

Gilmore, as a Lt. J.G., was assigned to Honolulu's Naval Transport. He flew supplies in and transported the wounded and dead out of Kwajalein, starting in 1943.

"Everything came through Kwajalein ... it was very much the hub," Gilmore said, explaining that late in 1945 his job changed.

"Our principal mission at that time, since the war had just ended, was pulling out the Bikini natives to get ready for the atomic tests ... in 1946," he said. "We got them settled in Rongelap."

Voit Gilmore, with wife Josephine, looks over the various military insignia on the wall at the Veterans Hall. Gilmore was at Kwajalein during the evacuation of the Bikinians before the atomic testing began.

During his visit, Dawson remembered his service time on Roi and Ebeye and left some memories for others to share.

"It is a real pleasure to come back here ... to see where I worked," Dawson said, laying out a yellowed stack of papers, complete with a hand-colored map of the atoll. "I brought with me today, this report I made 58 years ago and am going to give it to the cultural association on Kwajalein." He also left some black and white photos of the Roi movie theater, church, Quonset huts and the Marshallese people.

The group flew to Roi-Namur on Sunday, and resident Ted Burris accompanied the visitors and described the different battle sites. Dawson already knew most of the sites, and visited Green Beach, where his U.S. Navy troop ship landed on Feb. 5, 1944.

"Dawson had a hard time recognizing where he landed because it was so green," said Robert Reynolds, group organizer and WWII Royal Air Force veteran.

Responsible for putting up submarine netting and for the protection of the harbors when he first landed on Roi, Dawson said he switched over to administrative work after living and working quarters were built. Upon promotion to chief petty officer, Dawson moved to Ebeye to work on the special report for the Navy concerning the military government in the Marshall Islands. Dawson donated a copy of the report to the Marshallese Cultural Center.

A history buff, Richardson said stories from veterans like Dawson and Gilmore should be recorded for posterity.

Documenting first-hand experiences from war veterans of all eras is part of a national effort established by the Library of Congress, according to the American Folklife Center at the Library of Congress Web site (www.loc.gov/folklife).

During a dinner hosted by American Legion Post 44 before the group left, Richardson said that he and his wife experienced part of the documentation effort during a recent Pacific cruise.

"We had perhaps 400 veterans of WWII, mostly Marines, some Navy, some Air Force, a few infantry," he said. "One of their projects was to interview 100 of these people during the cruise ... they were trying to get the individual experience of what happened to them."

Recording, rather than transcribing, veterans' experiences is important because it preserves the voices and emotions, Richardson said.

During the war, Reynolds explained, he couldn't talk about his experiences.

"During the war we were told not to talk ... back then there was an unwritten law. I wouldn't tell them anything because Hitler was listening," he said.

"When my children asked me, 'What did you do in the war, Daddy?' I didn't want to tell them," he said. The RAF pilot had flown night bombings against Germany as part of Tiger Force, a joint effort with the American Eighth Air Force.

"I didn't want to tell them I was frightened, because I was scared to death and daddies aren't supposed to be scared," he said. "So there are many reasons veterans don't speak about their experiences."

THANKSGIVING FIXIN'S

Recipes from Sodexo

Bourbon-Spiked Sweet Potato Pureé by Cody Boren

- 5 pounds medium unpeeled sweet potatoes or yams
- 1 tablespoon fresh lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon finely grated lemon zest
- Salt and freshly ground pepper
- 1/4 cup good-quality bourbon
- 1/4 cup dark brown sugar

1. Preheat the oven to 450°. Pierce the sweet potatoes a few times and roast them in a large nonstick roasting pan for about one hour, or until soft and browned on the bottom. Let cool for 15 minutes. Remove the skin, leaving as much caramelized flesh as possible. Cut the potatoes into large chunks and transfer to a food processor. Add the lemon juice and zest, season with salt and pepper and process until smooth.

2. In a large nonreactive saucepan, combine the bourbon and brown sugar and bring just to a boil. Add the sweet potatoes and stir until blended.

Make ahead: The pureé can be refrigerated for up to one day. Warm the sweet potato pureé over low heat, then transfer to a large bowl and serve.

Artichokes Mashed Potatoes by Fre Straub

- 4 large Idaho Potatoes, peeled and quartered
- 1 can artichoke hearts (non-marinated)
- 3 T butter
- 1/4 cup milk
- salt and pepper to taste

Makes 6 half-cup servings
Boil potatoes for 15-20 minutes or until potatoes are tender when pierced with a fork. Drain. In a large mixing bowl, pureé artichoke hearts with half the butter and milk, using a hand blender or mixer. Add potatoes and remaining butter and milk and mix until smooth. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Denham: Island eating habits changing ...

dessert buffet.

Unaccompanied personnel can eat from 10:30 a.m. to 6 p.m., while the entire island is invited to dine at Café Pacific from 1 to 6 p.m. Adults without meal cards will be charged $13 while children under 12 must pay $6.50.

The stock of meat is based on last year's needs, but Denham said that meeting changing island eating habits is a part of his work at Surfway.

"When you have a large group PCSing and coming in, you have a change in how people eat," Denham said. "The basics never change, but the particular items do."

The Surfway manager has been on-island for 14 years and will have seen four different primary contractors after KRS takes over, presumably in January. Groups often represent different regions and, consequently, have different tastes. Currently, a majority on island seem to be "steak-and-potatoes-type of people," though Denham said he's seeing less requests for barbecue-style meats such as chicken and ribs.

"I wonder if people are out socializing less," he said.

In any case, the store is prepping for the holidays with more party snack items such as microwavable hors d'oeuvres and the like.

New air service to open up South Pacific area ...

according to Suzanne Murphy, Marshall Islands Visitors Authority assistant manager.

Air Kiribati has gone international with a French-made ATR-72-200, a twin-prop plane that can seat 66 people.

The planned schedule offers one departure day and one arrival day per week. Departures are Wednesdays at 9:26 a.m., with service including Majuro-Tarawa-Funafuti-Nadi. Arrivals are Fridays at 3:29 p.m., originating in Nadi and going through Funafuti and Tarawa before arriving in Majuro. The schedule has already changed once, Murphy said, and things are still up in the air at this point.

The fare is $820 round trip from Majuro to Nadi, on the country's main island of Viti Levu. Round-trip airfare between Majuro and Tarawa is $200 and another $50 between Majuro and Funafuti, the capital of Tuvalu.

Yvonne Duarte, Continental Travel Agency manager, said that at this time her office has not been contacted in regard to ticketing or other procedures for the new air service.

Murphy said airfare can be booked through Pacific Unique Travel in Majuro (692-625-3409/6109; fax, 692-625-3868).

MIVA is excited about the tourism prospects of the new service, Murphy said.

"This flight will link the RMI to Fiji and the rest of the South Pacific — New Zealand and Australia and them to us. Now we have a better opportunity to tap into the Aussie and New Zealand markets," she said through an e-mail. "In the past, because there wasn't that direct connection, these weren't priority target markets for us. But now we plan on taking full advantage of it."

And by February, Murphy said, Air Nauru is expected to begin an Australia to Majuro service, offering a direct connection to Down Under from the Marshalls.

"This will also provide Kwaj residents with an opportunity to see the rest of the Pacific, and it will probably be more enticing for them to travel down south, as the U.S. greenback is much stronger," she said.

Swim season ends

By Jon Cassel
Hourglass Intern

Kwajalein swimmers persevered through the intense rain Monday to finish up the season at the championship meet.

Makos and the Barracudas renewed their traditional rivalry as the two teams fought it out.

Championship meets differ from regular swim meets in the awarding system. Instead of a normally received ribbon for first, second or third place, the swimmer receives a medal for his or her achievements. Swimmers also receive awards for personal bests and for the person with the most overall points.

Aeromet: Strong winds likely through weekend

By Peter Rejcek

Associate Editor

Boaters beware: The same strong winds that shut down the Gary K. McMillen Small Boat Marina last weekend are likely to blow through this coming weekend as well.

"It's a bit unsettled out there," said Jeff Mullins, Aeromet meteorologist, adding that the station's lightning detection system was lighting up like crazy as of this morning.

A small craft advisory has been in effect since yesterday and is expected to continue at least through today, Mullins predicted. The red flag, which is flown when sustained winds of 20 knots or greater are blowing, was up all last weekend.

"I think it will calm down tomorrow, at least," he said.

The source of the latest weather is from a disturbance in the south. Another disturbance is to the east, near the Dateline, and that could cause problems depending on how close it gets.

West Point

Cadet Anthony J. Desmarais, a 2002 graduate of Kwajalein Jr./Sr. High School, took part in the annual Plebe-Parent Week-end, Oct. 18-20, at the U.S. Military Academy.

Anthony Desmarais

Parents Raymond and Michelle DeMaio and sister Rosie DeMaio visited their cadet for the event. The relatives and friends of plebes, or freshmen, are invited to West Point for the weekend to tour the grounds, meet with staff and faculty members and learn firsthand about the regimen followed by the academy's newest cadets.

Desmarais, one of more than 1,000 plebes at West Point, plans to graduate in 2006 and be commissioned as a second lieutenant in the U.S. Army.
