Know your rep — BQs seek new council members

By KW Hillis

Town Hall meetings; e-mail, mail and telephone surveys; the TIP program, Commander's Hot Line, and the newest venue, Hourglass's "Letters to the Editor" are all places to vent feelings and instigate changes.

But more than 1,000 residents on Kwajalein and their counterparts on Roi are not using one venue the way it was specifically designed for them — the Bachelor's Advisory Council.

"Up [on Roi] the meeting is pretty well attended," said CW4 Gerry Wolf, USAKA/KMRBAC chairperson. "The problem on Roi is that it is not the BAC members that come to the meeting, it is residents with questions. So not all the bachelors are represented."

Residents barred for marijuana use

By Jim Bennett
Editor

Two men have been sent off island within the last month as a result of marijuana.

"We're going to find out who's using and they will be apprehended and dealt with," said Col. Curtis L. Wrenn, USAKA/KMR commander.

A Raytheon employee was barred recently after failing a drug test.

According to Dick Lupton, RSE Programs Support manager, the employee, whose name has been withheld because of company privacy rules, tested positive for marijuana, during a random drug-screening test.

The man was randomly selected from a pool of workers. He gave a urine sample, which was sent off

Cole tragedy hits close to Kwaj

By KW Hillis
Feature Writer

Kwajalein residents recoiled in shock over the terrorist attack on the USS Cole that occurred Oct. 12. But no one was more stunned than Aero-met's acting chief meteorologist John Lee. His 23-year-old grandson, Ens. Kyle Turner III, was on the USS Cole when the explosion occurred.

John Lee

"For some reason I awoke at 4 o'clock Friday morning [Oct. 12 in the states]. I turned on the TV to put me back to sleep," Lee said.

"Right there on the screen sat the USS Cole with a gaping hole in it ... That got my attention, to say the least. I sat there and watched it, stunned, for a while."

Lee then tried to call his daughter, Kyle's mother, who lives in Evergreen, Colo., but got a busy signal. After eating a 5 a.m. breakfast at Café Pacific, Lee found out the Navy's 800 number to get information about relatives on the USS Cole.

"I called the number and got right through, to my surprise," Lee said. "But they didn't have any information yet. They took my number and [my grandson's name] and said they would call me back as soon as they learned something."

Lee didn't know where his grandson was stationed on the ship.

Letters to the Editor

Trick or Treat remains on Oct. 29

Letter to the Editor:

Since Mrs. Burris' letter about Trick or Treat being changed to Oct. 29 was printed in the Hourglass, I have received 11 calls on the Commander's Hotline, and she has presented me with a petition of over 200 names. However, Trick or Treat activities will stay as scheduled.

I respect the fact that many in the community feel the purpose of the 90-day community calendar was completely disregarded. I also respect those who voiced their opinion about Trick or Treat on a Sunday night. And, I respect the opinions of those who said not having Trick or Treat on a school night was better for the kids and their teachers the next day.

All of that considered, I made a mistake and lesson learned! But, mistake or not, I don't wish to complicate matters further by switching the event again. Individuals and groups have rearranged other things on their calendars, and to you I say thank you for your patience, resiliency, your willingness to adapt and your support.

Paint a punishment to fit the crime

Dear Editor:

This is in response to Murray's letter concerning graffiti around the mini-mall area.

Yes, I too, as well as many other Kwaj residents, find it very unsightly. Graffiti easily destroys ambience anywhere you find it.

However, I strongly disagree with your conception of punishment by closing down the Skate Park for 30 days. The crime committed by a few idiots should not affect the whole. Most of those skaters are good kids who should not have to suffer mass punishment.

Originally, I was not for the Skate Park, but I kind of like the idea now. The kids are happy, the skating is safer, and there's someone there to watch them. A parent couldn't ask for more.

Leslie Saulibio

Dear Editor:

In the Oct. 17 issue of the Hourglass, Ms. Murray assumed the culprit responsible for the vandalism on the mini-mall signs was a skateboarder. She, and others, recommend punishment for all skateboarders, since it was "quite obvious" that a skateboarding advocate did this. Why should we advocate punishing an entire group of people for the actions of a few?

Following her reasoning, let's look at something with significantly higher implications. Since it is "quite obvious" who the terrorists responsible for bombing the USS Cole are, let's bomb every nation that follows this religion as a means of retribution. They all have some terrorists. Blanket retribution will assuredly get at least one of those responsible, even if only indirectly. This will show that we will not tolerate terrorist acts.

Sound extreme? It should! But this is exactly the type of all-inclusive punishment recommended by the last letter. We don't know for sure that the culprit who vandalized the signs was a skateboarder. It could have been a disgruntled resident who thought too much money was spent on building the park, or who dislikes skateboarders.

It seems to me that since the kids worked so hard to get the skate park approved, they would not want to do anything to jeopardize their ability to use it. For a skater to do this, he/she would have to be pretty dense. People out here talk, and it will only be a matter of time before the vandal is caught. If he/she is a skater, then suspend that person's rights to use the park for a determined amount of time. But don't punish all skaters just because you think a skater did it.

Some vandals skate, but not all skaters are vandals. Skateboarding, in and of itself, is not a crime!

David Dethlefsen

To the Editor:

The letter printed in the Oct. 17 Hourglass has caused me to pause and think. I feel that the person who wrote this letter has taken a narrow-minded view of the American justice system. A group of people should not be punished for the careless act of one person. The paint that was sprayed on the signs is not graffiti, but vandalism. The author insinuated that the person or persons, who spray-painted the signs, had to be a skateboard advocate. The spray-painter could have been somebody who is against the skate park and figured out a devious way to point the blame at the people who would utilize the facility. The kids that initiated the skate park worked hard and went through the proper channels to see it come to fruition. The work, effort and time these kids put into this process give me hope for the future of our country. These are future responsible and dedicated adults who will be running the country.

Only on Kwaj Same item sells at two prices?

By Bob Fore
Feature Writer

Perhaps you have found yourself at Ten Ten buying some items, when you noticed a different price than on the same item at Surfway or Gimble's.

How can this be?

While not foolproof, work is being done to correct discrepancies. Point-of-sale tracking software currently in place and the new MIMS ordering software system, set to go online Jan. 1, could help.

"Retail sales are managed by a stand-alone point-of-sale computer system," said Earl Davis, Supply and Transportation manager. "The current Kwajalein Enterprise Asset Management System project being implemented in Supply and Transportation does not include retail sales management, but will greatly improve wholesale resupply, stock leveling, inventory accuracy, warehousing and associated wholesale processes. Between POS and KEAMS, overall monitoring of on-hand provision products will be greatly enhanced."

But why is there a problem in the first place?

Items are purchased under fixed-price contracts from vendors in California. The contracts provide an agreed-upon price for the item for a period of six months to one year.

Off Island

There are a couple of reasons for possible price differentials from the vendors in California.

According to Annette Thibodeau, manager of Stock and Material Management for Supply, Transportation and Procurement, there could be a discontinuation of an item by the vendor, requiring a change to a new supplier at a new price.

Another possibility is that a new fixed-price contract period is beginning, and new prices are taking effect.

There are instances when it may be necessary to purchase items from other sources, necessitating a price change, according to Lloyd Jordan, Residential Support manager.

"An example of that would be the barge before last, which had a container of eggs that were rejected," he said. "We had to purchase eggs from Honolulu and fly them out. That made the purchase price from the Honolulu vendors higher, which had to be passed on to the consumers."

On Island

When items arrive on Kwajalein, they have a fixed price, which the retail stores pay equally.

USAKA mandates a markup of between 10 to 35 percent, depending on the item, and the generated profit goes into the recreation fund.

Previously stocked items continue to be distributed at

We had to purchase eggs from Honolulu and fly them out. That made the purchase price from the Honolulu vendors higher, which had to be passed on to the consumers.

Lloyd Jordan

the old price until stocks are depleted. As new stock goes on the shelves, price changes will take effect.

"It is possible for one store to receive an item from a new shipment before the other stores, and it will reflect a price change," Ray Denham, retail and provisions manager, stated. "Facility managers make every effort to ensure that prices are the same in the retail provision facilities. If consumers find a discrepancy, they should check the UPC code bar on the item. If it is the same, bring the matter to the attention of the facility manager."

Also, a 2 percent delivery charge is applied to every sale at Surfway, regardless of whether the customer takes the purchase home or has it delivered. Gimble's and Ten Ten do not have that surcharge, Denham said.

EOD sponsors amnesty days AMC hikes rates; updates times

By Bob Fore
Feature Writer

Don't know what to do with that pesky bomb in your closet or that torpedo under your trailer?

Well, it's no laughing matter to the Explosive Ordnance Disposal team, which is hosting an ammunition amnesty day on Kwajalein Wednesday and on Roi-Namur Friday.

The goal is to provide residents who have found potentially hazardous items a way to turn them in without fear of retribution. And ordnance left from World War II is routinely found here.

"While EOD intends to schedule an amnesty day once a year in the future, it is not our intent to give the impression that we condone the picking up of unknown items," said D.J. Moore, senior EOD technician.

Island residents are encouraged to call EOD to arrange for examination of any suspicious items in their possession. EOD personnel will go to the location of the item for the evaluation. Residents should not handle or attempt to bring the items to EOD, since that would increase the potential for danger.

If the item is found to present a hazard to the public, it will be transported to the EOD bunker on the appropriate island, and stored until the next regularly scheduled demolition operation.

Items found to present no hazard to the public will be left with the resident. Items they do not want will be removed and turned over to the archaeologist for evaluation.

There will be no records kept of where the item was located or who turned it in.

Any questions should be directed to the EOD team at 51433 or e-mail at EODmail@kmr.ll.mit.edu.

From Air Mobility Command Office

Per instructions received from Headquarters Air Mobility Command in Scott Air Force Base, the U.S. Government Department of Defense Airlift Rates for Passengers and Cargo Channels have changed and are effective for all flights from Oct. 1, 2000, to Sept. 30, 2001.

The new rates are $470 one-way between Kwajalein and Hickam Air Force Base and $940 round-trip.

If you have purchased a ticket for personal travel before the new fiscal year, you must return to Finance to pay the remaining balance.

Questions may be directed to Donna at the AMC office at 52169.

Check-in for the AMC C-141 and ATI DC-8 are on time

For Monday and Wednesday (Honolulu time), the DC-8 aircraft show time for duty passengers is not later than 5 a.m. local time. At 5:30 a.m. local time, all unfilled/empty seats will be released to Space-A passengers. On Friday (Honolulu time), the C-141 show time for duty passengers is no later than 6:55 a.m. local time. At 7:25 a.m. local time, unfilled/empty seats are released for Space-A travelers. If duty passengers arrive after the seats are released for Space-A use, the duty passengers will be manifested for the flight only if there are still unfilled/empty seats, and the passenger terminal has sufficient time to process the traveler without delaying the aircraft. The decision rests with the passenger terminal supervisor. Keep in mind, Space-A travelers, once manifested, will not be bumped off the flight due to late-show duty passengers.

Space-A roll call on Monday and Wednesday (Honolulu time) will be at 4:30 a.m. local time. On Friday (Honolulu time), Space-A roll call will be at 6:25 a.m. local time. It is always good for travelers to show a few minutes early; however, as long as the traveler is there on time and ready to travel, they will be considered for the flight.

Call the Hickam Flight Information Recording at 449-1854 for the most current updates on your flight. You may also call the terminal at 449-1515.

Christmas on AMC

This will be the AMC schedule for the period of Dec. 17-31:

Tuesday, Dec. 19, DC-8

Thursday, Dec. 21, DC-8

Friday, Dec. 22, C141

Thursday, Dec. 28, DC-8

Saturday, Dec. 30, DC-8 and C141

There will be no AMC missions flown Dec. 22-28.

island to a certified drug-testing lab. Results were confirmed and returned to the company. The man met with RSE Security and Lupton and confessed to the marijuana use. He was terminated and sent off island Oct. 14.

"We have zero tolerance for that," Lupton said. "Raytheon is committed to a drug-free workplace, and we're required under contract to [test] and will take appropriate actions to enforce our policies.

"Certain members of our workforce are part of a random sampling every month," Lupton said.

This employee is only the second to test positive since Raytheon took over the contract in 1995, the first having tested positive in the first week of the contract, Lupton added.

Another resident, Douglas Wenzel, was caught with less than 2 ounces of marijuana on the morning of Sept. 13 at the Dock Security Checkpoint, according to investigators of the Kwajalein Police Department. Wenzel was on his way to catch a ferry to Ebeye, when, during a routine bag search at the DSC, officers found a Tupperware container with the marijuana.

Wenzel was arrested at the scene and processed at the Kwajalein Police Department. After police filed their report to the Command Judge Advocate's office, Wenzel was given a permanent administrative bar. He left the island Sept. 22.

BQs looking for a few good reps ...

The Kwajalein and Roi-Namur BACs are set up to meet during the workday on alternate months. Representatives from each BQ are either elected or volunteer to be a member and attend the meeting. Each member's job is to bring questions and concerns to the meeting and return answers to the BQ residents, Wolf said.

Four out of eight BQs have a representative, and only one council member showed up at the last BAC meeting, said Trina Royne, Roi Logistics housing supervisor.

"We sent out a notice to all residents in buildings that have a [council] vacancy," Royne said. "Unfortunately, we haven't found anyone who wants to do it."

On Kwajalein, there are only two BQs out of 10 that do not have a BAC representative, but few BQ residents know who their council representatives are, said Susan Kleback, Kwajalein Housing Services superintendent.

"When the council started years ago, we had 10 people in each building volunteering to be a representative," Kleback said. "But that was when most rooms had two people assigned. There were a lot of issues about dealing with a roommate. Anyone who volunteers now will be a representative."

The lack of representatives and low attendance at most of the council meetings recently got attention from both USAKA and Raytheon, Wolf said. He explained that RSE assigned Housing Services the task of recruiting council members and making sure that BQ residents know who their representatives are.

"We're planning a meeting for [Kwaj] BAC representatives to discuss issues," Kleback said. "We also have bulletin boards on order for all the laundry rooms so the reps can notify residents about the upcoming BAC meetings and how to get in touch with their reps."

Royne is also planning to get bulletin boards for each BQ, but wonders if a BAC is needed on Roi since almost all of the residents are unaccompanied.

"Basically the same questions come up at the Town Hall meeting as do at the BAC," Royne said. "There are too many meetings."

Wolf acknowledges that there are differences in the two islands, and he is hopeful that more members will volunteer.

"I'm hoping with the new drive and

Lee's grandson found safe after USS Cole bombing ...

"I didn't have a clue what his job was, therefore I couldn't visualize where on the ship he might be," Lee said. "I know usually when they go into a port for refueling, the crew would be at their battle stations."

Then Lee called his daughter's home again and his son-in-law answered.

"He had gone through the same things I had. He had talked to the Navy," Lee said.

Unfortunately Lee's son-in-law was not only extremely worried, he was alone because his wife had flown to San Antonio to be at a wedding.

"He was waiting to fly to San Antonio ... when he heard about the ship.

"The thing that gave us hope was the numbers. There were about 350 aboard and at that time they were saying four killed, 12 missing and 35 wounded. So the numbers were on our side," said Lee, who is TDY here and also away from his wife who lives in Indian Harbour Beach, Fla.

Around 2 p.m., the Navy called Lee right after they had called his son-in-law.

"They told me [Kyle] wasn't on any of the casualty lists. That's really all I was waiting to hear," Lee said with a smile.

Kyle talked to his parents the same day, Lee said.

"He's still aboard the ship. They're keeping it afloat and keeping it from sinking," Lee said. "My daughter has since told me that [Kyle] was about as far away from the blast as he could have been."

Lee learned something from his grandson's brush with death.

"What I got out of that whole experience with Kyle was that it's peacetime, but it can be dangerous out there — especially in some parts of the world," Lee said.

Lee will return to the states in November, meeting his wife in California to see their first great-grandchild. He lived on Kwaj for 22 years over three tours, first coming here in 1967. He is still a familiar face on Kwaj since he has been here TDY for a few weeks every year since he moved permanently to Florida.

"One other thing I encountered before at various times in my life — never assume the worst until you have solid information," Lee added with a smile.

War of the Worlds

Oct. 31, 2 p.m.

The original broadcast that panicked a nation

CPN presents Orson Welles and the Mercury Theater's original 1938 broadcast of War of the Worlds on 1224 AM, 101.1 FM.

See you at the movies!

Saturday

The Bride of Frankenstein (Classic, 1935)
Considered by some to be the greatest of the Frankenstein movies, it begins where the first one left off. The monster survives a windmill fire and goes on another rampage. Meanwhile, the demented Doctor Praetorius plans to create another monster — this time a woman. (Boris Karloff, Elsa Lanchester) (75 minutes, B&W)
Richardson Theater, 7:30 p.m.

The House on Haunted Hill (R)
An eccentric millionaire invites a diverse group of people to a reputedly haunted mansion that was formerly the site of an insane asylum. He offers $10,000 to each guest that can spend the entire night in the house. (96 minutes)
Yokwe Yuk Theater, 8 p.m.

Mission Impossible II (New Release, PG-13)
Tom Cruise returns as Ethan Hunt, an operative for a top-secret government agency. A fellow agent has gone rogue, stealing a sample of a deadly synthetic virus that could rapidly wipe out the world's population. (123 minutes)
Tradewinds Theater, 8 p.m.

Sunday

The Wolf Man (Classic, 1941)
Lon Cheney tries to rescue Fay Helm from a nocturnal attack by what he thinks is a wolf and is bit by a "wolf man," played by Bela Lugosi. Features great transformation scenes. (70 minutes)
Richardson Theater, 7:30 p.m.

Mission Impossible II (New Release, PG-13)
Richardson Theater, 9:30 p.m.

The House on Haunted Hill (R)

Gooooo Army, Beeeat Navy!

Army units worldwide are psyched to support their West Point cadets for the Dec. 2 Army-Navy game, and Kwajalein soldiers are in the cheering section, too. USAKA/KMR soldiers met on Emon Beach last week to be filmed for their Go Army-Beat Navy spirit video. The 20-second video will be sent to the academy with hopes that it will be among those chosen to be aired during the nationally televised game. Hooah!
