1900D being considered as replacement for Dash-7 fleet

By Peter Rejcek

The Dash-7 may be in the final years of its service at USAKA/KMR if a proposal to replace it with a newer, faster airplane is approved. Meanwhile, the end of the UH-1 helicopter era may also be on the horizon.

One possible candidate to succeed the trio of Dash-7s, an aviation staple here since the early 1990s, was on display this weekend. The Raytheon 1900D is a two-engine, 19-passenger commuter airplane that is still rolling off the production line.

"It's an eminently supportable airplane because there are a lot of them operating, there is a large supply infrastructure, and there are a lot of qualified pilots and mechanics that have worked and flown on the airplane," observed Skip MacQueen,

Aviation Services manager. "It's a very comfortable airplane. We wouldn't miss a beat as far as comfort and performance."

Saying the Dash-7 is entering its twilight years, MacQueen said three 1900Ds would be used by the Aviation Department to cover all existing USAKA/KMR missions with more reliability.

"[The Dash-7s are] safe, good, flyable aircraft, but our support base for them is diminishing," MacQueen explained, adding that it is increasingly harder to find parts and qualified repair depots for the airplanes. In some instances, he noted, spare parts are sometimes so scarce that it takes up to nine months to get them on island.

In contrast, a broad base of sup-

JAG reviews criminal and admin policies

From the Command Judge Advocate Office

The USAKA/KMR Legal Office recently received some queries about how the justice system works here. We thought this would be a good opportunity to explain the criminal and administrative processes that occur when an individual violates rules, regulations, and statutes at USAKA/KMR.

Just the facts

The process starts with the Kwajalein Police Department. When a crime or violation is reported, police investigators initiate a full investigation — they gather the facts. They explore all avenues to obtain the evidence relevant to the case. They talk to witnesses, examine evidence, and visit the scene of the incident. When they have gathered the relevant evidence, they prepare a report of their findings.

The report is then forwarded to the USAKA/KMR Legal Office, where it is evaluated to determine what forum, if any, is appropriate. The forums available include the United States Federal Magistrate's Court on Kwajalein for misdemeanor criminal cases, United States District Court in Honolulu for felonies, the Juvenile Review Board for juvenile matters, and the USAKA/KMR command for adverse administrative actions. The decision as to which forum is appropriate depends on the seriousness of the offense, the evidence, and the status of the individuals involved. If an individual leaves the island before the investigation is completed or the decision is made as to forum, the case still continues on to completion. If appropriate in a criminal case, the file can be forwarded to the local U.S. attorney in the area to where the individual has moved. In addition, the USAKA/KMR commander can impose an administrative bar on top of any criminal punishments that have been imposed.

Cases serve as examples of Kwajalein judicial system ...

Case in point

To see how this works, I will examine a few recent cases. In one instance, an adult on Kwajalein purchased liquor for minors. The individual was tried in front of the U.S. magistrate at Kwajalein. The individual pleaded guilty and was sentenced to pay a fine of $200.

Three recent incidents involving juveniles were handled using the Juvenile Review Board process. Rather than barring the individuals from USAKA/KMR, the USAKA/KMR commander offered the youths the opportunity to resolve the matters at a JRB. This board consists of three local site managers who consider the evidence to recommend appropriate sanctions against the juvenile to the commander. The commander may accept or modify the recommendations. The JRB does not decide guilt or innocence. Rather, it is used only in those instances in which the individual admits guilt. The philosophy of the board is to encourage youths to take responsibility for their actions. It allows them to remain on Kwajalein and avoid the stigma of a criminal record. The most recent JRB cases included the offenses of damage to government property by burning government-owned items, breaking and entering a residence, assault against another individual, and damage to a traffic sign. The sanctions recommended by the Board included restitution, curfews, community service, and one essay about the dangers of throwing rocks.

Bar actions

The USAKA/KMR commander also has the authority to impose an administrative bar against an individual who commits an offense. When an administrative bar action is appropriate, the violator is given notice of the commander's intent to bar him through a letter. That person is provided time to respond to this notice in writing. The report with the response is then processed for recommendation by appropriate USAKA/KMR staff sections.

For example, if a Marshallese person is involved, the Host Nation section will review and comment on the report and make a recommendation. After all of the pertinent staff sections have made their recommendations, the file is sent to the commander. The commander can choose to do nothing, send a warning letter, impose a suspended bar, or impose an actual bar. The difference between a suspended bar and an actual bar is that a person may enter USAKA/KMR when a suspended bar is in place, whereas an imposed bar prohibits the individual from entering any areas controlled by USAKA/KMR. If a person commits another violation while under a suspended bar, however, an actual bar will be imposed. After the commander has made his decision, he sends a letter notifying the individual of it.

A person receiving an imposed or suspended bar has the right to request the commander to reconsider the decision in light of any additional evidence the individual provides. The individual also has the right to appeal the commander's decision to the SMDC deputy commander in Huntsville.

Administrative bars are also effective after a person leaves Kwajalein. That is, if a person leaves Kwajalein after committing an offense, the commander may still administratively bar him from returning to USAKA/KMR for a period of time.

As you can see, there is a well-developed process for responding to incidents of misconduct on Kwajalein and a wide range of options for handling the individuals involved. This process and these options give the commander the tools he needs to ensure the mission and quality-of-life remain unaffected by the misconduct of a few.

Play brings historical meeting to Kwajalein MP room

By Jim Bennett

A historical hypothetical came to life last weekend as members of the Washington D.C.-based Pin Points Theatre presented "The Meeting."

The one-act play, sponsored by Armed Forces Entertainment and Community Activities, centers on the supposition of what might have taken place had Malcolm X, played by Ersky Freeman, and Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., portrayed by John E. Walker, ever met. Historically, they never did.

"It was intriguing to consider the thoughts of these great men," said resident June Foltz. "It was helpful to understand a little more of the problems they encountered and methods they used to deal with them. It was delightful to have the intellectual stimulation. Most of all, it was thrilling to feel as though I was in the presence of the great man of God, the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr."

In the play, the two meet in a Harlem hotel, at Malcolm X's invitation. Malcolm X's home has just been firebombed, and he laments that he likely will not live long amidst the violence surrounding the civil rights movement. He was assassinated a week after the day the play supposedly takes place.

On meeting, the pair begin to debate their respective and opposing views on fighting civil rights injustice — Malcolm X's "by any means necessary" philosophy versus King's philosophy of nonviolent opposition.

In a humorous scene, the two men take their debate from the theoretical to the physical, engaging in an arm-wrestling match.

Who would really have won the arm wrestling match?

"I don't know," Walker said with a chuckle. "He's lean, but I'm mean."

Through that and other scenes, the show offered up the human side of the two historical figures, something Freeman and Walker have worked to add to the production, Walker said.

"[Freeman] brought some humor to the role [of Malcolm X]," he said.

Malcolm X jokes with his bodyguard, Rashad, played by Mark Anderson. He thinks back to an encounter with singer Billie Holliday, played by Joy Thigpen. But Malcolm X also appears as a man frustrated by the fight and tired from the turmoil. King seems a man dedicated to his beliefs, but also tired from the constant battle.

"What would we have become if we had been born at another time?" Malcolm X asks.

"Quite dull, I'm afraid," King said.

Written by playwright Jeff Stetson, the play has won numerous awards, such as the Louis B. Mayer Award and eight 1987 NAACP Theatre Awards, including Best Play and Best Writer.

Freeman formed Pin Points Theatre 20 years ago, in the "belief that theater should be enlightening as well as entertaining." Since then, the group has performed more than 3,000 times, with such shows as "1001 Black Inventions;" "No Dressing," a musical about stress and its prevention; and "Hooked on Love," a musical comedy about relationships written by Freeman.

The theater group has taken "The Meeting" to all 50 states, mostly at colleges and universities. This trip represents the first time the performers have traveled with Armed Forces Entertainment. From Kwajalein, the actors are headed to Guam, South Korea, and Japan.

Visiting U of M lecturer teaches computer applications, supervision

By Barbara Johnson

Saying that Dr. John Knarr likes to travel is something of an understatement. Knarr, University of Maryland's visiting lecturer for Term V, has logged 101 countries in his travels so far, and he's hoping to add a few more to his list during this term at Kwajalein.

Since becoming a lecturer for University of Maryland in 1979, Knarr has lived in 14 countries, most recently Japan.

"I love it here," Knarr said about his new job site. "In Japan, I lived in a tiny apartment. Here, my trailer is twice the size. And the commute — in Japan, I left work at 4 p.m. and got home at midnight."

Knarr said that his love of travel is what first interested him in becoming a visiting lecturer. He also credits a year's mission at a tuberculosis hospital in Haiti and his undergraduate major in anthropology with spurring his interest in learning about different cultures.

Knarr received degrees in social science from Ohio State University and in business and management from University of Maryland's University College. He has graduate degrees in finance and organizational studies and a Ph.D. in management information systems.

In the U.S., he taught at University of Akron, Kent State University, and West Virginia Graduate College. From 1979 to 1992, he taught in U.M.C.'s European Division in numerous countries, including Belgium, the Netherlands, Germany, the Azores, the United Kingdom, Iceland, Turkey, and Italy. From 1997 to 1999, he taught in Vladivostok, Russia, and last year, he was lecturer in Seoul, Korea, and Tokyo, Japan.

Knarr said that his favorite post so far has been Russia, where he taught in a combined U.S.- Russian university program.

Dr. John Knarr, University of Maryland lecturer for Term V, discusses his love of traveling with feature writer Barbara Johnson during a recent interview in Grace Sherwood Library conference room.

At Kwajalein, Knarr teaches Computer Applications in Management, where students explore computer applications for the business environment, and Principles of Supervision, a skills-oriented course focusing on specifics such as performance feedback and conflict resolution.

When he's not working on academic pursuits, he likes to play bridge and is hoping to find some players here.

After his stay in Kwaj, Knarr will be posted in Singapore and plans to visit a number of Pacific nations en route.

The University of Maryland's Asian Division offers academic programs to U.S. military communities in Asia and the Pacific. Students can take a single class or a number of classes leading to a degree.

Summer Fun Tips

- Participants in outdoor activities, such as sailing or swimming, should remember to wear sunscreen and, if possible, a hat and sunglasses. Also, bring a water bottle or sports drink for these classes.
- Roller hockey/skating participants must wear proper safety equipment, including helmets, knee pads, and elbow pads. Wrist guards are also recommended.
- Sneakers and gym shorts are part of the attire for active classes, such as racquet sports.
- Swimmers should bring a swimsuit and towel.
- Bowlers and dancers must wear socks.
- Arts and crafts can get messy, so wear clothes that can get dirty. Closed toe shoes are also recommended for safety reasons.

you have the freshness of new faces and Kwaj kids returning, giving back to the community," Sasano said.

Summer Fun session I runs for four weeks, until July 15. Cost is $80 or $20 for any portion of a week, with a $10 late fee after June 15. There is a discount for families with more than one child. Session II begins July 25 and ends Aug. 12. About 100 kids, including 50 from Ebeye, are registered for the first session.

Children are divided into four groups based on age: Gugeegue Aerobees, kindergarten to first grade; Eniwetak EKV's, second and third grades; Gellinam Peacekeeper, fourth and fifth grades; and Bigej Minute-man II, sixth through 10th grades.

Summer Fun classes run five days a week, morning and afternoon, except for the Gugeegue Bees, who end their day at the Family Pool at 11:30 a.m., Tuesday through Friday, and at CRC Room 1 on Saturdays at the same time.

Activities vary depending on age category, but include everything from sports to computers to sailing lessons courtesy of Geoff Tyre and Mike Herrington.

Two instructors, Brian Greene and Spencer Dohrman, are marine biology college majors who will lead ocean exploration classes.

Dash-7 era at USAKA/KMR may be coming to a close ...

port is available for the 1900D, with more than 750 already in operation. MacQueen said the airplanes that could be leased would probably be five to seven years old.

"They would be relatively new airplanes," he said.

The $5 million airplane was on public display over the weekend, with a demonstration flight to Roi-Namur Sunday. The plane was en route to Sydney, Australia, and was diverted to Kwajalein for review. Pilot Kevin St. Germain flew the plane solo from Wichita, Kan.

"This is state-of-the art," said St. Germain, making his 25th flight across the Pacific Ocean. "This is a very quick aircraft."

With a cruising speed of about 325 miles per hour, MacQueen said the 1900D could make the Kwaj-Roi run in less than 15 minutes.

"By the time you buckled your seatbelt and opened up your paperback, you would be landing on Roi," he said.

Its two Pratt and Whitney engines are more fuel efficient than the four engines sported by the Dash-7, MacQueen added, and would not require refueling after each round trip, as the Dash-7 does now.

While the 1900D has less than half the passenger capacity of the Dash, MacQueen said aviation would simply fly two airplanes during each run between Kwaj and Roi. With a maximum of 19 passengers, the Federal Aviation Administration does not require flight attendants, he added.

Maj. Matt Reed, USAKA/KMR Supply and Transportation chief, said there are no firm dates as to when the Dash-7 might be replaced, but he did confirm that it will be phased out in the future. He also said the Army will divest itself of the UH-1 helicopter no later than 2004, meaning that aircraft will also need to be replaced.

"We're looking at 2003-04," he said of the UH-1 replacement timeframe. "Helicopters will remain [part of USAKA/KMR aviation]."

A replacement for the UH-1, an icon of the Vietnam War, has not been found.

MacQueen said both types of aircraft — the Dash and the UH-1 — are straining the department's resources. As they increase in age, particularly the UH-1 because the Army must ensure safe worldwide operation of its UH-1 fleet, additional requirements are made on its maintenance.

"It's an intensive management exercise to work the UH-1 because there are periodic air worthiness directives that come out," MacQueen explained. "Most of these are age-related, use-related." For example, the department has avoided a recent grounding directive by replacing a tail rotor gearbox in the helicopters with beefed-up Cobra gearboxes.

While commute requirements are expected to decrease in the coming years as USAKA/KMR continues to modernize, MacQueen said helicopters will continue to play an important part here.

"We're trying to find more and more roles where the helicopters can be used. They are a valuable asset," he said. "They have always played a critical role as our prime means for medical evacuations."

Basketball season ends with big games

By Peter Rejcek

Five teams became champions this basketball season. In the women's division, Y&R went undefeated at 11-0, beating WD40 (8-4) in the championship game, 47-35. Three of those losses came against Y&R in the regular season.

Spartans I Men dominated A Division with a 11-1 record, defeating INYAZ (8-4) in the final game, 77-48, after beating them three times in the regular season.

In B Division, Mor Mor (7-5) avenged a regular season loss against Queen of Peace Doves I (8-3) in the championship game, 46-43.

Go Mavs! were a perfect 10-0 in C Division, dispatching Spartans White Boys (7-5), 51-35, in the final game.

YBU (6-6) beat Queen of Peace II (5-7) twice during the regular season, as well as the D Division final, 52-45.

Darby O'Gill and the Little People (G)
An Irish storyteller's tall tales come to life as he comes face-to-face with leprechauns, the banshee, and other Irish folk characters. (Sean Connery, Albert Sharpe, Janet Munro) (93 minutes)
Richardson Theater, 7:30 p.m.

The Talented Mr. Ripley (New Release, R)
Tom Ripley is a bright and charismatic sociopath who makes his way in mid-1950s New York City as a men's room attendant and sometime pianist, though his real skill is in impersonating other people and running second-rate scams. He is sent to Italy by a wealthy tycoon to bring back the man's decadent son. Enamored with the lifestyle he finds, Ripley murders the son and assumes his identity. (Matt Damon, Gwyneth Paltrow, Jude Law) (139 minutes)
Yokwe Yuk Theater, 8 p.m.

Hanging Up (New Release, PG13)
Three sisters must make peace among themselves as they pull together to deal with their ailing, alcoholic father, who has grown argumentative and increasingly difficult to handle. (Meg Ryan, Diane Keaton, Lisa Kudrow, Walter Matthau) (93 minutes)
Tradewinds Theater, 8 p.m.

Sunday

Jailhouse Rock (Classic, 1957)
Considered Elvis Presley's best musical, though this 1957 film is handcuffed by a sappy plot. A good-hearted Presley gets stuck in the slammer, only to hook up with a conniving manager. (Elvis Presley, Mickey Shaughnessy, Dean Jones, Judy Tyler) (96 minutes)
Richardson Theater, 7:30 p.m.

Susan Sasano, Community Activities youth supervisor, talks with aide Brendan Greene about a role-playing skit that teaches staff how to handle young kids.

Summer Fun program blasts off Tuesday

By Peter Rejcek

One child anxiously stomps his foot against the wall. Another keeps raising his hand, disrupting the class. The youthful instructor appears to be at a loss as to how to bring his charges under control.

That's OK — this is only a drill. Jonathon Ching, along with about 20 other teens and young adults, still has a few days to perfect his child psychology techniques before Kwajalein's version of summer camp begins.

Summer Fun session 1 blasts off Tuesday, and this week Susan Sasano, Community Activities youth supervisor, is preparing her instructors and aides in everything from basic first aid to how to spot signs of child abuse, as required by the Army. Sasano even uses role-playing exercises, in which some instructors play petulant children, causing an array of problems for other young instructors.

"I like the role playing," said Sandy Hillman, senior recreation assistant. "It was so much fun because I got to be a little kid."

Sasano said she has an interesting mix of helpers, from Marshallese and Kwaj teens to college students visiting parents over the summer holiday.

"This should be exciting, because
