Intern learns worklife lessons in newsroom

By Krystle McAllister

Hourglass Intern

When I first came to be an intern for the Hourglass, I was nervous. I figured I'd have to start mopping the floors, dusting and vacuuming before I'd ever get the chance to try any stories.

I figured this internship would be like the ones I'd heard about, like the ones in the movies. The intern works day in and day out, gets to do all the work that no one else wants to do and after three years of working, other employees still can't remember your first name.

I was surprised to find that it was very different. It actually didn't take me too long to kind of fit in. Before I knew it, I was laughing and joking with the other employees.

Jim Bennett even let me do my own story, not too long after I started. After the story was done, Jim complimented me on how, when he just threw me into the water, I floated. I was so proud of that article. I look back on that article now and think, "That was horrible. I can't believe he published it!"

I got better as time went on, and everyone at the office looked through my articles and pointed out what didn't make sense, or that I had been spelling "groovy" wrong since the sixth grade.

I learned that if it bleeds it leads; photos should draw the reader's eye into the page not away; if I were to say "caption" rather than "cutline" in the newsroom, I would be laughed at; and a pica pole is a strange object used for many strange purposes.

I even became friends with my coworkers. One in particular, Jan, has been the friend I never thought existed. Every day when I come in, before much work at all is done, she and I share what is new in our lives. And that is one part of my day that I look forward to since the moment I wake up. I sit up and think, "Today I get to talk to Jan. Now get up and face the day." This woman taught me that writing is an art, you should write with all your heart and you should enjoy writing, no matter what anyone else thinks.

And whenever Dan wants me to run an errand for him, "Hey Intern!" is usually heard throughout the room. I try to reply with, "Yo." I wish I ran more errands, just so that I could've heard that more often.

Mig recently joined us. I don't know much about her, but she seems like a great lady. I know you'll take pleasure in getting to know her.

So here I go, into the summer and then into senior year with all these memories and knowledge. I'm ready to go break into the next chapter one page at time, and I intend to have fun doing it.

Reader finds no fun in program price

I just received the flyer informing me of all the fun and excitement available to the Kwaj kids this summer. For those of us not in a financial position to spend the entire summer off of Kwaj, we depend a lot on the Summer Fun program for safe and organized activities for our children during the long, "boring" (as my son puts it) Kwaj summer days.

However, I noticed a significant change this summer. Last year we paid $20 per week, this summer $70!

WOW! Why the huge increase? Maybe it's due to the rising cost of crude oil? Perhaps the value of KRS stock has decreased? No wait, I'll bet that due to increased security risks, they have been forced to hire additional security personnel to oversee the activities. I could waste energy wondering who is trying to make money off of this, or complaining about the rampant price fixing we endure: insurance, day care, phone and grocery bills, 401K — nothing is left. How long before we are paying KRS to work out here? But I have been on Kwaj long enough to know it's not worth my energy.

I'm just really disappointed for the kids. Last summer's program was incredible! We were very impressed with the leaders of that program and our kids had a blast! The kids have been looking forward to this year's program with fond memories and great excitement. Now I'm afraid that for many of the Kwaj kids, summer may not be so much fun. Or will it? I hope the ER is staffed well.

Cooks enter 'Olive Battle' for Iron Chef title

By Jan Waddell
Reporter

Anthony Moore and Ryan Krogh went head-to-head in the Kwajalein Iron Chef "Olive Battle" Monday, with Moore edging out Krogh by 3.6 points to take the win and become the second Kwaj Iron Chef.

Moore said he would like to be known as Kwaj Iron Chef Hapa.

Held at the Multi-Purpose Room kitchen, the event allowed each contestant two sous chefs to help prepare items, but only the contestant could actually cook the dishes.

Moses Moreno assisted Moore while Debra Oglesby and Shelly Easter assisted Krogh.

As in the first competition, the competitors picked up the secret ingredient early Monday morning and then had until 11:30 a.m. to decide on recipes and shop for the ingredients.

The added feature to this second Iron Chef competition was guest judge, Chef Walter Turner. Other judges for the "Olive Battle" were Steve Metta, Iron Chef American Celeste Gainey, Josh Brazeal and Carl Overman, who gave the contestants the rules and kept the time.

Around 11:30 a.m., both contestants had finished shopping and returned to "Kitchen Stadium" with an array of food.

At noon, Overman counted down the time and said, "Go ahead. Enjoy."

The sous chefs busied themselves with washing and chopping the fresh vegetables while the contestants quickly dove into the cooking.

Moore started with a mushroom, olive and basil sauce to pour over his steaks.

"I am not sure what it is called," Moore said. He added that he had only planned two dishes but "We will pull a third one out of some where."

Moore added he had "Cooked a little before I started for Raytheon."

Krogh said he planned three dishes for the competition.

After an hour of cooking both chefs picked up the pace and the kitchens became a flurry of activity.

"This is intense," Krogh said.

Moore joked with the judges stating, "If it is not good just tell me."

With only 20 minutes left in the cooking battle, judges and spectators were lulled into anticipation.

"I'm so excited," Metta said. "They seem so calm."

Anthony Moore, left, and Ryan Krogh duel in the high school kitchen for the title of Kwajalein Iron Chef in a competition held Monday.

Metta added he had always thought his wife was the best cook, but he couldn't wait to taste some of the dishes being prepared.

"It feels great to see how calm these guys are," Gainey said. "I was so excited for them. It all smells so good and it is great to just sit here."

Moore finished three dishes and tried for a fourth in the final minutes of the competition, but the stuffed mushrooms never made it to the judge's table. The stuffing burned during cooking, and Moore dumped the dish.

At 1:25 p.m. both chefs started to plate their dishes. Krogh would be the first to serve.

Overman counted down the final seconds and then banged two cookie sheets together to sound the Kwaj gong and end the cooking.

The two chefs then had an additional five minutes to plate their dishes and serve.

Krogh first served an olive martini along with his toasted brochette spread with an olive paste.

He then followed with a Greek-style salad with feta cheese, olives, fresh greens and assorted vegetables and a thyme, vinegar and oil dressing. His main course was chicken breast stuffed with olives and goat cheese and linguini smothered in an olive, basil and garlic sauce.

"It is very olivey," Krogh said to the judges. "[It is] a fresh flavor."

Turner remarked he was going to keep his salad and finish it later along with the olive martini.

It was then Moore's turn to serve his dishes. His first course was also a fresh salad, but his twist was artichoke hearts and balsamic vinegar.

He then followed up with a seafood platter of prawns, scallops, mussels, tomatoes and olives in a tomato sauce poured over angel hair pasta.

Brazeal asked why he chose not to peel the prawns before serving and Moore said, "If your elbows aren't dripping you aren't eating."

He then served a blackened filet, smothered in a mushroom, olive and garlic sauce along with mashed red potatoes blended with black olives.

The judges took a few minutes to mark their score cards as to creativity, presentation and taste, and then read the scores.

"It was really different," Moore said.

Krogh said, "I am not a big olive fan." But he added, "I love the [Iron Chef] show. I love to cook and I would love to do this, as many times as possible."

Krogh and Moore will choose the next two people to compete for the third Kwaj Iron Chef.

The Kwaj Iron Chief competitions are held by a private group of individuals who enjoy cooking.

The first Kwaj Iron Chief competition was held in January. This is the second of four competitions held to determine four Kwaj Iron Chefs. The next competition date is undetermined.

Marshalls, USAKA feel loss of former president

By Jan Waddell
Reporter

Ronald Reagan's life, and his death last week, impacted a broad range of people including the Marshall Islands and people living and working at U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll, on the Ronald Reagan Ballistic Missile Defense Test Site.

Republic of Marshall Islands President Kessai Note and Ambassador Benny deBrum will represent the RMI at Reagan's state funeral at the National Cathedral in Washington D.C.

Col. David G. Farrisee, chief of staff for U.S. Army Space and Missile Defense Command, said USAKA and RTS will join the rest of the nation in a day of mourning to honor Reagan.

The national day of observation is June 11, but employees, both federal and KRS, will observe a holiday tomorrow to coincide with the continental United States.

Farrisee quoted President George Bush stating, "Ronald Reagan won America's respect with his greatness and won its love with his goodness. He had the confidence that comes with conviction, the strength that comes with character, the grace that comes with humility and the humor that comes with wisdom. He leaves behind a nation he restored and a world he helped save. I appoint Friday, June 11, 2004, as a National Day of Mourning throughout the United States. I call on the American people to assemble on that day in their respective places of worship, there to pay homage to the memory of President Reagan. I invite the people of the world who share our grief to join us in this solemn observance."

Farrisee added, "Let us remember Mr. Reagan's inspiring words from his first inaugural address, "If we look to the answer as to why, for so many years, we achieved so much, prospered as no other people on earth, it was because here in this land we unleashed the energy and individual genius of man to a greater extent than has ever been done before. Freedom and the dignity of the individual have been more available and assured here than in any other place on earth. The price for this freedom, at times, has been high, but we have never been unwilling to pay that price. As for the enemies of freedom, those who are potential adversaries, they will be reminded that peace is the highest aspiration of the American people. We will negotiate for it, sacrifice for it, we will not surrender for it - now or ever."

Note offered a letter of condolence to the U.S. Ambassador Greta Morris, in Majuro, prior to his departure to the United States.

In his letter Note said, "The Republic of the Marshall Islands will always be indebted to President Reagan for bringing the Compact of Free Association between our country and the United States to fruition in 1986. Furthermore, his steadfast commitment to the cause of freedom and the preservation of peace in every corner of the world weathered the peril of the Cold War. To honor his legacy, we are proud to host in his esteemed namesake the missile defense test site on Kwajalein Atoll. President Reagan will always be remembered for his courage during a tumultuous period in the history of mankind, and in particular for having been a beacon for those who aspired to be unbound from domination in order to be able to exercise the basic human right of self-determination."

"U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll/Kwajalein Missile Range" was the original name of the range on Kwajalein. It was changed in June 15, 2001, during the 226th Army Birthday Ball.

Maryanne Lane, USAKA Host Nation officer, said at the 20th Constitutional regular session of the Republic of the Marshall Islands Nitijela, in 1999, resolution number 85 was enacted stating, "To recognize the value of continued friendly relations between the Republic of the Marshall Islands and the United States of America, to honor President Ronald Reagan, to recognize the strategic military importance of Kwajalein Atoll to the development of the U.S. National Defense Program, and to respectfully request the United States and the U.S. Army to rename the United States Army Kwajalein Atoll the Ronald Reagan Strategic Defense Initiative Test Site at Kwajalein Atoll."

Lane added, bills were introduced in the U.S. House and Senate in January 2000, renaming the Army missile testing range at Kwajalein Atoll as the, "Ronald Reagan Ballistic Missile Defense Test Site at Kwajalein Atoll," now known as the Reagan Test Site.

Reagan introduced many initiatives during his presidency, including social reform measures, reducing restrictions on business and tax cuts, but two of his biggest projects impacted Kwajalein specifically — the MX missile system, today known as the Peacekeeper, and the Strategic Defense Initiative, better known as “Star Wars.”

Reagan’s long string of accomplishments began in his teenage years as a lifeguard saving 77 lives over seven summers.

He enlisted in the Army Reserve in 1937 and was promoted to second lieutenant in the officers reserve corps of the cavalry. During World War II he served in the Army’s movie-making branch. This is also where he was “discovered” and cast in his first film “Knut Rockne – All American,” which started his acting career that spanned 20 years and 53 films.

He became interested in politics. In 1960, campaigned as a Democrat for Republican Richard Nixon for President. In 1962, Reagan officially became a Republican.

In his political career, he first defeated California incumbent governor Edmund Brown in 1966 and then made a bid for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1968. After that bid failed, he again ran for California governor and was reelected in 1970.

In 1979, Reagan finally earned the Republican nomination and, in 1980, he was elected the 40th President of the United States over incumbent President Jimmy Carter.

He took his presidential oath of office on Jan. 20, 1981, and 69 days later, would-be assassin John Hinckley Jr., shot Reagan. He quickly recovered from his wounds and returned to duty.

Reagan appointed the first woman, Sandra Day O’Connor, as a Supreme Court Justice.

In 1984, Reagan ran for his second term as president and at age 73 became the oldest man elected, receiving 525 electoral votes — the most ever received by a candidate.

“[1984] was the first election that I voted in,” said Polli Keller, USAKA Public Affairs specialist. “I was a huge Reagan fan. He was the first president that I ever voted for and his politics were in line with mine.”

Local observances

- The flags will be flown at half-mast for 30 days in respect for the death of President Ronald Reagan.
- Federal offices in CONUS will be closed on June 11 in observance of Reagan’s death and both federal and KRS offices at USAKA will be closed July 12, except where noted on the Hours of Operation chart at right.
- Due to June 12 observance of former President Ronald Reagan’s death, the Holiday Ferry Schedule will be in effect on Kwajalein and Roi Namur.

In 1987, Reagan and Russian President Mikhail Gorbachev signed the Intermediate Nuclear Force Treaty. The agreement was to eliminate intermediate range nuclear missiles. The Reagan administration also began the Strategic Arms Reductions Talks, which reduced the nuclear arsenal by 50 percent.

His foreign policy was “peace through strength,” and during his presidency he increased defense spending by 35 percent.

Maj. David Coffey, USAKA Host Nation chief, said under Reagan, “You were proud to have a short haircut and wear your uniform. It was important to have pride in your country.”

Coffey added the Reagan years boosted morale and combat readiness and support for the military from the commander in chief.

Reagan will lie in state at the Capitol Rotunda prior to the June 11 funeral service at the National Cathedral.

After the cathedral service a motorcade will transport the casket from the cathedral to Andrews Air Force Base. The casket will then be transported to the Point Mugu Naval Base in Ventura County and then to the Ronald Reagan Presidential Library in Simi Valley, Calif. where a private funeral service will be held. He will be interred at the library.

KRS reviews new insurance carrier bids

By Jim Bennett
Editor

Kwajalein Range Services employees could see a new insurance carrier beginning Jan. 1, according to Ike Richardson, KRS president.

Speaking in a pair of employee forums, on Roi-Namur Wednesday and Kwajalein Thursday, Richardson outlined the bidding process for a new carrier to replace Staywell, the current provider.

"It's a business decision, but I'd like you to be a part of it," Richardson said.

The insurance question, compensation and other incentives highlighted the forums which addressed a number of corporate and quality of life issues.

"It's a business decision, but I'd like you to be a part of it."

— Ike Richardson
KRS president

Richardson said employees have complained about Staywell's name recognition in the states, the size of the coverage network and the timeliness of payments for services.

Staywell, in fact, entered the bid process, and Richardson compared the other prospective carriers to the incumbent. Two carriers contacted, United Healthcare and Blue Cross-Blue Shield, declined to bid, while Great West provided an incomplete package that would not guarantee a percentage for out-of-network coverage, Richardson said. That left Staywell and Aetna, which covers KRS corporate partner, Bechtel, and its 50,000 employees. Richardson said KRS piggy-backed on Bechtel to secure the bid prices from Aetna.

Besides Bechtel, Aetna currently serves more than 13 million people with 100,000 of them overseas in over 100 countries.

In a series of slides he showed the two companies' monthly fees for individuals and employees with two dependents with Aetna showing the greatest savings. The slides also outlined maximum caps and coverage limits for various types of procedures including annual exams, heart surgery and organ transplants, to name a few. Aetna showed more comprehensive coverage in the slides.

"You can see how buying power makes a difference," Richardson said.

Richardson added, Aetna would not offer a cash-back incentive, similar to Staywell's.

In the Kwajalein meeting, Lucy Gallagher, KRS risk manager, stated Aetna carries a mail order prescription program along with dental and vision coverage. Richardson said he will investigate long- and short-term disability coverage with Aetna.

Asking both crowds for a show of hands, the groups unanimously supported Aetna.

Richardson said he will put the comparison information on the Web in a week or so to give employees an opportunity to give feedback and ask questions.

Richardson a final decision could come in the August-September timeframe.

Richardson said any change likely would occur Jan. 1, so that employees would not be hit by a second deductible in the same year.

Richardson further briefly outlined a new compensation plan designed to standardize pay rates across the island based on national wage surveys.

The changes should be transparent to employees, but may include raises in November, to be followed again in March, to bring underpaid employees in line with the national average curves.

"The complete process may take up to two years to complete," Richardson said.

He said managers would receive slides in order to give more detailed presentations to their particular staffs.

Along with pay and insurance, employees might receive bonuses in the fall, if they continue to perform at current levels and the company receives high marks from the government. Under the contract with the Army, if KRS achieves the same or better score from the last evaluation and operates under budget, the company may award bonus money derived from a percentage of the savings.

"If KRS does well, we do well," Richardson said.

In other business on Roi-Namur:

During the meeting Mike Nicholson addressed Roi-Namur's fly problem.

Nicholson said he didn't want to use a truck-based fogger because it killed everything, not just flies. Instead, he suggested the way to eliminate the fly problem was to seal garbage bags, the greatest source of the flies, and attack "hot spots" identified by fly traps or those residents call in to the trouble desk. At the hot spots, Nicholson's team could use back-pack sprayers that specifically target flies.

That prompted an exchange with one Roi resident stating, "We have a fly problem and I refuse to believe it's all our fault."

Richardson ended the discussion, proposing that Nicholson submit a plan of action to him by Thursday.

- KRS must, by law, solicit bids for an orthodontist. The current orthodontist is in the running, but if he does not win the bid process, patients will not lose money if they are turned over to another orthodontist, Richardson said.

- While Roi residents approved of the availability of goods at Gimbel's, they asked that the store stock a better, increased selection of DVDs for rental. They also asked for more sales, similar to the discounts given at Macy's. In addition, Macy's and Macy's West on Kwajalein may remain open later on Saturdays, rather than Fridays, to correspond with the additional flights from Roi to Kwajalein, thus giving Roi residents greater access to the retailers.

- Roi will receive two new trucks, courtesy of Johnston Island. Other vehicles have been received; however, many were in poor condition

Phillip sets example for scholar

By Jan Waddell
Reporter

Donald Phillip set an example for his four children and 12 grandchildren, that with hard work and dedication you can accomplish many goals.

One of those grandchildren has followed his grandfather's advice.

Billson Joseph proved Phillip's philosophy worked when the junior at Waipahu High School in Oahu recently received news that he was selected for the 2003-04 National Honor Roll.

"I feel very proud of him," Phillip said.

Phillip said Joseph started school on Ebeye, before moving to Hawaii with his aunt.

According to Phillip, "When [Joseph] was a little boy on Ebeye he always said he wanted to be a pilot." He added, "I will go with whatever he wants."

Phillip has worked on Kwajalein for 31 years, first at the tire shop and then aviation.

"I worked my way up," Phillip said.

He became one of four Marshallese employees to be FAA-certified as an Airframe and Powerplant Technician and is the only Non-Destructive Inspection Technician.

Phillip was the first Marshallese to obtain his FAA license and currently the only one left.

To become FAA certified he spent 15 months working on airframes and then another 15 months as a powerplant technician. The next step was a written and practical test, which was given in Honolulu.

That was "more than 20 years ago," Phillip said.

"I am one of the few lucky Marshallese," Phillip said. "I get all the good bosses."

In his off-work time Phillip also said he enjoys fishing with nets, handlines and spears.

"I am a professional at that," Phillip said.

But he hasn't had a chance to teach Joseph any of his fishing skills.

"Billson has a good brain," Phillip said. "He is a really smart guy. I feel really proud. We said keep on doing what he is doing."

KRS charters December trips to down under and could only be used for parts. The island will also receive new boats and boat engines as part of the J.I. close down.

- Supply embarked on a two-month pilot program to reduce the backlog of procurements, with a particular emphasis on operational needs, according to Janet Burki, deputy program manager for Logistics. Under the program, three procurement specialists have been detailed to focus on obtaining needed parts supplies for distribution through GSK.

- Four information technology professionals will make house calls. Though not associated with KRS, they will, for a fee, fix privately-owned computers. They can be reached through the Help Desk at 52444.

- Roi residents requested IT training at Richardson's forum three months ago. Since then, three classes have been held, and the sign-up list filled in all three. Unfortunately, as many as 50 percent of those signed up did not attend the class, one resident reported.

- A privatization initiative for new construction on-island has netted contractors willing to put up $25 million each and others have expressed interests for up to $100 million each, Richardson said. The contractors would build new facilities, particularly housing, a multi-purpose facility and child development center, then lease those facilities to the government in a lease-to-buy agreement.

- KRS will charter trips to Australia in December making the land down under even more accessible. Air Nauru announced service from Majuro to Australia earlier this week. (See related story, page 6.) Under the KRS charter, residents may purchase four- and eight-day packages that will run over a period from Dec. 18 to Jan. 4, said Joe Marshall, deputy program manager for Community Services. Flights will originate on Kwajalein and fly directly to Australia with only one refueling stop in Guam along the way.

- Richardson reminded Roi residents to maintain operational security during the upcoming Equis II mission when several foreign nationals will be on-island. He reminded people to make sure everyone in classified spaces is either known, escorted or has a reason to be in that space. In mid-July program managers with Equis II will host a town hall meeting on Roi-Namur to brief residents on the upcoming missions and their impacts. Industrial security will also speak at that time.

- Roi residents disputed a proposed spending measure for funds obtained through the Army Performance Improvement Criteria award. On the table is a plan to build an enclosure around the Roi swimming pool. Residents at the meeting said they'd rather spend the money on improving the television receiving equipment on-island that is now dated. They said TV improvements would benefit all, while pool improvements would benefit only some residents. Richardson agreed to revisit the issue with the USAKA commander.

RMI interns graduate program, set sights on UH

By Jan Waddell
Reporter

June 17 will mark a special day for two young women who have spent the last year in a program designed to help Marshallese further their education.

Twilyn Sheets and Loanne Bulles started the Host Nation intern program June 17, 2003. They have worked in three different command positions, rotating every four months. Sheets started out in Public Affairs then moved to Host Nation and then Protocol. Bulles worked Host Nation, Protocol and then Public Affairs.

The intern program is designed to help the interns earn money for college and give them additional work-place skills.

Each intern earns $200 a week, $150 of which is put in a savings account for college and the intern is given $50 weekly for expenses.

According to Maryanne Lane, Host Nation officer, the interns are also given housing and a meal card during the internship.

United States Army Kwajalein Atoll and the Work Force International Act of the Republic of the Marshall Islands jointly fund the program, Lane said.

"After being in this program I have learned how to work with people," Sheets said. "It was a really good experience, especially for my major."

Bulles said, "It has taught me

"If we can do it, any Marshallese can. It just takes effort and the willingness to do it."

how to be around new people, get to know them and talk to them. It has taught me how to coordinate [events]."

Both girls admitted the big plus was the teamwork they have experienced working at the command office.

"Everybody works together," Sheets said.

Sheets said she was thankful for the opportunity because it would have been impossible to save the money to attend college if the intern program had not been available.

Each intern has $7,500 to put toward their college tuition and housing at the end of their year.

There also is a Majuro Scholarship Board which has around $800,000 a year in grant-money they can allocate to Marshallese students, Lane said.

Lane added, "I will encourage them to work on campus."

Sheets graduated from the College of the Marshall Island with an associate degree in liberal arts. She was also one of the guest students who graduated from Kwajalein Jr./Sr. High School. Bulles was also a Kwajalein guest student graduate.

Both girls plan to attend the University of Honolulu with Sheets majoring in political science and Bulles in general studies, for now.

"We decided to pick Hawaii as our starting point," Sheets said.

"It is closer to home," Bulles said.

Currently, they are working on obtaining student housing since the deadline for student dorms is past, Lane said.

Bulles said she is thinking of going into nursing and "helping my country because I know there are few nurses."

Sheets said, "I like working here in government."

She added she wants to give back to her country.

According to Lane, there were 14 applicants for the program. Maj. David Coffey, USAKA Host Nation chief, chose a panel of five people to review each application. The skills required were strong English and writing skills. The panel also required each applicant to return to the RMI after graduation and "work in their country," Lane said.

Both girls said after college graduation they will return to the RMI and find jobs.

Bulles' father has worked on Kwajalein since 1982 and Sheets' mother works as the Ebeye fish market manager.

"If we can do it, any Marshallese can," Sheets said. "It just takes effort and the willingness to do it."

Sensing Session looks at flies and other issues

Mig Owens
Assistant Editor

An increase in flies, loud music, rental tape availability and B-Boat maintenance were among topics brought forth by Larry Roberts on behalf of Roi-Namur residents at Wednesday's sensing session meeting.

Some of the same issues came up again in a forum with Ike Richardson Wednesday night. (see story, page 6)

Addressing these and other quality-of-life issues is a team of representatives from organizations across the island who meet monthly to take action on concerns in the areas of health, retail, recreation, education and food service.

The team agreed that an increase in flies has been noted on both islands. Paul Divinski said that pest control products are currently in stock and are available at Self Help. He also said new products that have passed a safety review will hit the stores in August.

Simone Smead offered to convey complaints of loud music at Community Service events to staff on Roi. This prompted discussion of the noise level at movies played at the Richardson Theater, during which Smead suggested that customers with complaints work directly with the projectionist.

Because of plane schedules, Roi residents asked that Macy's stay open on Saturdays until 7 p.m., instead of late on Fridays. Divinski explained that the current hours were set taking into consideration survey results and offered the possibility of conducting a separate survey aimed specifically at Roi residents.

Roberts commented on the decrease in the number of tapes available on Roi due to space limitations following Tape Escape's move into Gimbel's almost a year ago.

"Roi gets every movie that Kwaj does and one out of the four copies gets sent directly to Roi as soon as we receive it," Divinski said. He encouraged Roi residents to follow the movie request procedure in place by using the master list in Gimbel's or the Intranet to see what is available.

Responding to complaints that B-Boats are poorly maintained, Smead said that this is a difficult topic to address without specifics.

"We have a preventive maintenance program, and we track failure rates," Smead said. Smead encouraged residents to send their comments to the Small Boat Marinas. She said that boats are continuing to arrive from Johnston Island. Also, plans are in place for new assets and, in six months, residents may see new vessels here.

On the status of new airplanes, Kevin Finn said, "Plans previously advertised for the new airplanes are on hold while USAKA weighs the options."

In addition to the planned agenda items for Roi residents, Roberts added that residents would prefer rooms over Macy's, when available, to those at the Kwaj Lodge, when staying overnight. He asked that the rate difference be looked into.

"Currently, residents are charged $75 for a room over Macy's and $15 for a room at the Kwaj Lodge," Roberts said. Finn agreed to investigate the matter, as well as a separate concern that the cover at the checkpoint on Roi is not large enough to accommodate those waiting for boats.

In other business:

- Building structure constraints limit solutions to the lack of privacy issue at the pharmacy, according to Finn. An interim solution includes markings on the floor to indicate a perimeter around the pharmacy window.

- Scheduling problems at the Dental Clinic are a result of a shortage of staff. Finn explained that the current wait list approach is being used to get people in as soon as possible, while leaving the required time for emergencies. When the new dentist arrives in July, Finn said, the clinic will revert back to conventional scheduling.

- Community Services has asked that people not park their bikes on pathways and amidst the seating area at the Richardson Theater. They are also working to install bike racks to help alleviate the problem.

- Solutions to rats in the walls in New Housing were discussed. The team agreed that preventative measures need to be put in place at intrusion points.

- A tear in the tennis court is scheduled to be repaired by a sub-contractor in early August, Smead reported.

- A DVD cleaner that eliminates surface scratches has arrived and one more is on the way, which will be used to maintain the stock of movie rentals. According to Fritz, this service eventually will be offered to the community at a cost of $1.50 to $2.50 per DVD. Migration toward the purchase of DVDs instead of VHS rental tapes was also discussed by the team.
