America still world's best hope for freedom

Japanese visitors come to Kwajalein frequently to pay respects to their countrymen and relatives who died here in WWII.

Japanese soldiers who were killed during the battle in February, 1944 were buried in a mass grave with haste and no ceremony.

But if you look at it now, the Japanese cemetery is well-tended and respected.

There is a plaque that honors the Japanese soldiers and says they were gallant for giving their lives in defense of Kwajalein.

U.S. Soldiers, Marines and Sailors who fought here and on other bloody islands called them anything but gallant at the time. The savagery and hatred of the Pacific battles were terrible. Only the ones who experienced the carnage know what it was like.

Some of the Marine Raiders who visited this past November spoke of it. It's hard to believe what those men endured and yet most of them bear no malice toward their former enemies.

At the end of the war, when the Japanese surrendered, they feared harsh reprisals and vengeance from Americans.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who commanded the occupying forces, ordered that all Japanese be treated with respect and dignity.

The war was over. So was the savagery. It was time to start building a better world.

That was the American attitude. Not only toward the Japanese, but the defeated Germans also.

The Marshall Plan rebuilt war-torn Europe and our former enemies' countries without plundering and taking the "spoils of war." What other nation on the planet would have done that? America has never sought to conquer or subjugate.

In contrast, Russian dictator Josef Stalin told Franklin Roosevelt and Winston Churchill that he thought the best way to treat the Germans after the war would be to liquidate 50,000 of them so they would learn a lesson.

Can you just imagine what the world would have been like if Hitler's Germany and the Japanese had won the war?

Americans who fought the battles in the Pacific and in Europe, who saw their comrades die terrible deaths, now shake hands with former enemies and befriend them.

I don't think that would be the case if it was the other way around.

America appears to be the most disliked nation on earth right now. It seems everything is our fault. But it's always been that way until somebody needs us. Then we're not so bad.

America is not a perfect country with a perfect government, but show me one that is.

I wish people in countries that enjoy freedom and democracy, those trying to attain it and those who shrilly blame America for all that is wrong with the world would take a moment and imagine what the world might be like if there was no America. What if the only superpower was Soviet Russia, Nazi Germany or Red China?

I'm proud of America's record in the world as flawed as it has been at times and despite the efforts of "revisionist historians."

We are embroiled in Iraq now. History will be the judge whether it was the correct thing to do or a colossal blunder.

There's no doubt mistakes have been made in the past, but I still believe America is a beacon and the planet's best hope for freedom, justice and peace. I wouldn't want to see the world without her.

Community voices frustration over policies

Hourglass reports

Concerned parents and teachers gathered Wednesday at the School Advisory Council public meeting in an effort to gain understanding of new policies affecting teachers and for answers to questions surrounding contracts.

The meeting was held in the Davy Davis Multi-Purpose room instead of the elementary school music room to accommodate the larger turnout expected because of what Maj. Craig Holton, deputy operations officer and acting SAC chairperson, referred to as these "hot button" topics.

Teacher concerns

Cassandra Rubly, teacher representative, said in her monthly report that the teachers received their contracts last week, and as a result of the KRS evaluative process and the new merit pay system of raises, several questions arose from the staff. Rubly said a list of questions was drafted and sent to the HR office. A response is awaited, she reported.

Though the meeting provided an opportunity for voices from the community to be heard, Holton explained at the start that the council does not have a supervisory capacity and its role is to advise USAKA and KRS senior leadership only.

An attendee asked for clarification on the new teacher merit and pay raises. Kevin Finn, KRS vice president and Community Services deputy program manager, responded that KRS is using a merit-based system across the entire KRS team and that the school is the "last to come into the fold."

When asked for details on merit/raise criteria, Finn responded that dialog on the topic was not appropriate in an open forum. He said that dialog is ongoing between KRS and its valued teaching employees.

The sentiment that "teachers aren't happy" was voiced by several in attendance. A common complaint was that the teachers have not gotten adequate response regarding their concerns.

One parent said, "We're partial customers. We have very strong feelings on this." Said another, "Teachers make a huge difference in the quality of life...make sure they feel heard and have answers."

Finn said he agreed and stated that a lot of thought went into the corporate compensation program.

When asked if teachers were given self-evaluations forms for consideration for raises as do other KRS workers, Dan Frasier, superintendent, said there was "not time for any feedback" from teachers citing a timeframe different from the previous year as the reason for the omission. Finn explained later that no KRS employees are given self evaluation forms pertaining to raises.

Finn explained that the evaluation process used for teachers was different than the yearly evaluation and that it is a separate process, "Annual performance reviews are not the same as the rating and ranking process."

Bob Clark, Boeing representative, said, "we are customers of education and are concerned with the quality and implementation of the proposed merit pay system..." Finn responded that KRS was not proposing but has implemented a project-wide standard process for annual salary reviews adding that KRS has an open door policy. He also referred attendees to Human Resources for the company's philosophy of how business is conducted.

Finn then reiterated that individual concerns with teachers' contracts would not be handled in a public forum. He added that teachers had access to one-on-one time with the superintendent on the matter.

Rows of meeting attendees donned pink and wore ribbon-shaped pins in support of a perceived injustice toward a long-time member of the school faculty.

Finn in a later interview said, "Again, specifics are not possible to discuss without violating employee confidentiality rules. The case concerns an employee currently absent due to an extended illness who has been offered a full salary renewal in the next school year (but has not been guaranteed sole responsibility for that specialty in 05/06)."

Regarding policy questions that led to the demonstration of solidarity, Rubly said in her report, "A number of questions have been posed from teachers regarding new KRS policies, specifically decisions made regarding staffing and the process used in contract renewal decisions...It is very important to teachers that decisions where contracts are not renewed for the current positions be made based on documented performance issues and not on the assumption of incapability. We also feel strongly that staffing decisions are best made by direct supervisors, who see our teaching on a regular basis and have knowledge of the school vision and needs."

One attendee stated that they were disturbed at the moral issue surrounding the position offered a particular faculty member.

"All in the community know what we're talking about," one parent said, "it may not be illegal because we're not on U.S. soil. Because of our small community, our lives are interwoven and it is shameful that children see employability based on perception instead of fact."

Mark Owens, KRS deputy site manager, said that he can assure attendees KRS is handling employees fairly, following SPIs as well as the Family Medical Leave Act, though not required to do so.

Holton said that the council's responsibility is to notify the command about what's best for the school system. He said the evening's comments would be noted and presented to the commander, adding that this is a "hot button" issue.

Avenues for parents to take such issues up with KRS were debated. One attendee, in light of the fact that "the board can do nothing" proposed a special public forum on the teacher employment concerns. Finn responded, "no, we're not going to do that."

A path forward was suggested by Owens, who said that anyone can call the KRS hotline at 55KRS. Calls are anonymous and the hotline is not tied to any organization; however, if a direct response is required, the caller must leave their name.

Calls are logged, answered, and closed out to the internal auditor's satisfaction, Owens said. He added that employees may not always like the answers.

"KRS is listening to what you have to say," Owens said. "For employees of KRS, you have the responsibility to go to your supervisor. There's an open door policy, so if you're not satisfied, you can go with your supervisor to the next level of management,

Getting off this

Travel takes planning, paperwork, prompt check-in

By Mig Owens
Assistant Editor

Summer vacation planning is in full swing. Don't believe it? Just ask Hope Paier, Kwajalein Range Service Travel coordinator/Diners Card administrator.

"Requests are already floating in for as far out as July," Paier said. "These are typically from the people who want to be sure to get the travel dates they want."

Planning and paperwork

Paier says the first step in travel planning for KRS employees is to fill out a travel request, which can be found on the K drive under forms/travel. Then, get it approved by the appropriate supervisor and manager.

"For TDY travel, the request must be approved by a deputy project manager," Paier said.

The next step is to head downtown to the Continental Travel ticket office to make the arrangements.

The goal of this step is to obtain an itinerary. There is no need to pay for anything at this point, depending on the type of ticket, according to Nancy Opiniano, Continental Travel city ticket manager.

"We'll need basic info. like Kwaj to Hono dates, correct spelling of passengers' names and destinations. Be prepared for the dates that you might want not being available - have a Plan B," Opiniano said.

Once the itinerary is in hand, the travel itinerary and travel request are submitted to KRS Travel in Building 702, through which orders are processed and payment of tickets authorized to Continental Travel when needed. This process takes approximately two weeks, according to Paier.

One of the biggest pitfalls in the travel process, according to Paier, is failing to turn in paperwork on time.

"Planning should start at least four weeks in advance for annuals and TDYs, if possible," she said. Another pitfall is failing to make arrangements at Continental before going to the KRS Travel department.

Travel orders are routinely delivered through the mail, if time permits. In the case of emergency travel, when arrangements are made at the last minute and travel orders have not been approved, employees are asked to leave a fax and contact number with a KRS Travel representative.

Plane tickets may be picked up at the Continental

Travel ticket office for annual leave. Tickets for TDY, medical and emergency/bereavement are picked up at the KRS Travel department. If PCSing, tickets are picked up at the Human Resources department in Building 700 on completion of an exit interview.

Once tickets and travel orders are in hand, Paier suggests employees take with them at least three copies of their orders when they leave the island; one for the airport in Honolulu or Guam, one when they arrive back on Kwajalein and an extra for their records and/or as a backup.

“Travelers should keep the orders on their person instead of packing them in luggage, which could be lost or stolen,” Paier said.

Prompt check-in

Andrew Havard, Airport Operations department manager, advises all residents to not only book their flights early for spring break and summer travel, but to get assigned seats as soon as possible, if available.

One of the most important tips Airport Operations gives is to be on time for check-in and pre-screening. “In certain flight situations (e.g., overbooked) on Continental, seat assignments may not always be available before the day of the flight,” Havard said. “Don’t be late for check-in. In cases of overbooked flights, first come, first served is the general rule.”

Havard said information on how early to be at the airport for pre-screening and boarding is available at K:\Aviation\Flight Schedules\12 Jan International Schedule.doc.

“The Continental Island Hopper is unique, different from most flights. It has six destination points once it departs Guam or Honolulu,” Donna Groth, Airport Operations supervisor, said. “Even if a passenger has an advanced seat assignment, the seat is not guaranteed until the passenger actually checks in for the flight.”

Groth said that Continental does all it can to honor the advance seat assignment in this situation. However unforeseen circumstances, such as a single parent traveling with small children may cause an upline station to take the advanced seat assignment in order to seat the family together.

“Definitely check in early. Once the passenger has checked in, the seat can’t be taken away by another station,” Groth said.

Havard added that check-in is for all passengers, not just those who are checking luggage.

“Some passengers have been under the impression, if they only have carry-on items, they only need to show for the pre-screening. Not so,” he said.

In general, it is a good idea to check either the flight information recording at 53589 or AFN Channel 32 for flight information on the day of travel.

In circumstances where it is known that a flight is running late, Airport Operations representatives said passengers will be advised at the time of check in if their boarding time is different than what is published in the schedule.

What to take

According to Havard, it’s vital that travelers bring with them the proper documents at check-in. He also strongly recommends that everyone obtain a passport.

“All travelers to the Federated States of Micronesia (Chuuk, Pohnpei and Kosrae) require passports. Non-U.S. citizens require passports to enter the U.S. Active duty military members may travel with military ID and valid travel orders,” Havard said.

He added that U.S. citizens entering the U.S. require a photo ID, and said that a copy of their birth certificate is acceptable at this time. This is subject to change on short notice.

Continental’s baggage weight restrictions are two bags at 70 pounds each for checked luggage (50 pounds if international travel is not on the same itinerary). For carry-ons, passengers are restricted to one bag and one personal item, which may be a purse, briefcase or laptop.

“Security checks at each station require half the plane to disembark,” Groth said. “For this reason, passengers may want to keep their carry-on items to a minimum to avoid struggling with it at each stop.”

Travelers should also bring their K-badge with them to the airport, which the Kwajalein Police Department swipes in and out electronically. Keys should be left on island, and office keys must be left with the designated key custodian.

“We handle about 3,500 travel orders a year and coordinate thousands of transactions with the Continental ticket office,” Paier said. “With only one commercial airline servicing the island now, it’s important for people to plan ahead. Help us help you by following the correct procedures when making your arrangements.”

Japanese war bereaved visit Kwajalein

By Mig Owens
Assistant Editor

In a letter to his father, Kazuaki Ikenoue described Kwajalein as what he thought to be a dark, sad place because of the war. He never expected the “peaceful, quiet island” he found on his first visit with the Japan War Bereaved Families Association.

Ikenoue and fellow members of the association made their pilgrimage to the Marshall Islands over the holiday weekend to pay respects to their war dead. Such visits have been taking place since the mid-60s at cemeteries on both Kwajalein and Roi-Namur.

In preparation for the ceremony on Kwajalein Wednesday, members cleared the monument and grounds of debris and hung flags, then placed food and photos on a white cloth draped over an alter set at its foot.

Each stepped forward in turn to read letters aloud to their deceased loved ones, emotions evident in the frequent pauses and trembling hands of the readers.

Though it is now 60-some years later, Ikenoue said that as a son, he is obligated to go back and tell everyone what happened here during his visit, which he believes will serve to protect himself and his family.

His story and others are as translated by Kayo Yamaguchi, a resident of Majuro and University of Hawaii/Hilo student who has been assisting with visiting groups for the past four years.

Ikenoue’s father, Sakae, left home to serve in the military when Kazuaki was 11 years old. He said his father helped injured people, serving as a nurse working out of a communications building. When patients were sent home, Sakae wrote each a letter to take back with them to Japan.

Of his father who died in the war at age 41, Ikenoue said, "He was very hard working and a strict father. He didn't like living what he called a 'crooked road' but instead strived to live properly."

Other sons mourning their loss were Yukihiro and Mikio Watanabe. Their father, Sonsaku, was in the Navy and died at age 36. Mikio was in sixth grade and Yukihiro in seventh at the time.

Mikio said that his father loved sake and he could still recall the smell of it on his father's breath. His father was a humorous man who often made jokes, he said he has been told.

Yukihiro's visit was as much about love as about paying homage. "It's not easy to say, but I'm not satisfied with the relationship with my father," Yukihiro explained with tears springing to his eyes.

Recognizing that others are also resting at this site, Yukihiro said he came not only for himself but to represent those who weren't able to make the journey.

COL Beverly Stipe and 1st Sgt. Dennis Neal exchanged words of appreciation Wednesday with group leaders at the Kwajalein cemetery.

"We are honored that you have come to visit us and happy to be able to host your group," Stipe said. "It's important to maintain this relationship and maintain peace around the world."

Said Toshiharu Yamanda, leader of the tour, "We are grateful the commander came out and that she allowed us to come here, understanding that this is a strict military base."

He conveyed that the children and relatives of those who died on Kwajalein came not only to visit but brought with them hopes of world peace as well.

Taxi, (PG-13) An inept cop suddenly gets a new partner in the person of a cabbie with attitude in this high-rolling comedy. Washburn (Jimmy Fallon) is a police officer who becomes the laughingstock of the department after a series of traffic accidents cause him to lose his driver's license. He takes a taxi, driven by Belle (Queen Latifah) the self-proclaimed fastest delivery person in New York, to a bank robbery. What begins as a wild ride to the scene of the crime gets even wilder as Washburn and Belle become unexpected allies while following the trail of a team of female bank robbers.

Shark Tale, (PG), Oceanic wise guys meet up with a small fish who has a big attitude in this computer-animated comedy. Don Lino (voice of Robert De Niro) is the patriarch of a family of sharks who lord over a bustling aquatic community based along a massive underwater reef. Don Lino has two sons, Frankie (voice of Michael Imperioli) and Lenny (voice of Jack Black); Frankie is a carnivorous tough guy who takes after his father, but Lenny is, at heart, a kind soul who has earned the ire of his dad by becoming a vegetarian. One of Don Lino's cronies is Sykes (voice of Martin Scorsese), who runs a "whale wash" where Oscar (voice of Will Smith) scrubs aquatic mammals for a living. Oscar is a small but ambitious fish who dreams of making something of himself, and when a dropped anchor accidentally kills Frankie, Oscar is suddenly (if mistakenly) celebrated as "the shark killer." Oscar's overnight fame attracts the attentions of Lola (voice of Angelina Jolie), a sleek dragon fish who woos Oscar away from his steady date, Angie (voice of Renee Zellweger); however, Oscar strikes up a friendship with Lenny and has to decide what to do when Don Lino and Sykes decides it's time to "take care" of the "different" shark.

Patch Adams, (PG-13) is the fact-based story of an unconventional physician who attempted to heal patients with laughter, based on his own book and mixing equal doses of scatological humor and pathos. Robin Williams stars as Hunter Adams, a troubled young man who commits himself to a mental institution in the late 1960s. His experiences there convince Adams to become a doctor, and he enrolls in medical school, where he is appalled at the cold, clinical professionalism that alienates patients from their caregivers. Determined to provide emotional and spiritual relief as well as medicine, Adams clowns around for his patients, getting to know them personally. Tragedy strikes, and Adams' career is put in jeopardy, forcing him to defend his style and philosophy before a board of jurists determined to bar him from practicing medicine.

One parent suggested the need for a Town Hall meeting, which Owens said would be a joint USAKA/KRS event held in the next 30 to 60 days, to be announced.

In an interview that followed with Ike Richardson, KRS president, he said, "I am concerned that several people do not know all the facts and are judging without access to all the data. Due to privacy issues some things can only be discussed with the people that are directly affected and in the case of two of the teachers I have done that personally. I am certain that if all the data was made public the community would understand the reason for several recent decisions made by the School Superintendent and the Community Services DPM."

Richardson added, "I am available for anyone to come see me via my 'open door policy' if they have any item that they would like to discuss."

Home schooling

A proposed policy on home school instruction was introduced by Frasier, which stipulates that if a student is determined to be outside the scope of service for the Kwajalein schools, that student is not eligible for home schooling. However, it allows for the right of parents to appeal to the school administration for an exception to policy.

According to the policy, special consideration will be granted to those homes with a documented history of providing successful home school instruction to their children.

An attendee said that, currently, parents sign a waiver for home school instruction that states the school will not be held responsible for harm done through home schooling and asked what right the superintendent has to deny home schooling to anyone.

Frasier responded that the policy represents practice enforced in the past and is now being put in writing and that the school has always had the right and responsibility to evaluate home school programs.

The legality of the policy was questioned by attendees, as were the percentages used to determine of special needs, which drives who is eligible for home schooling. Also discussed were the rights of parents and the possibility that the new policy would be prohibitive to incoming employees.

Holton explained that following input received at the meeting, the proposed policy would be routed through USAKA legal, adding, "it seems obvious that further work is required."

School calendar

Three versions of 2005-2006 school calendar were developed and are under consideration. Calendar A shortens the first semester and the winter holiday break and allows the first semester to end prior to the winter break. Calendar B also ends the first semester prior to the winter break. It retains standard semester length but results in an earlier start to the school year. Calendar C is similar to the calendar that has been used by the school for the past several years.

Both the teachers and superintendent recommended Calendar C because it provides for the later start that the island is used to, with two weeks for a winter break, with a "less complicated end of the school year in June," according to Frasier.

Discussion at the meeting centered on the issue of exams held following Christmas break, teacher classes and licenses and timing for incoming and outgoing students. A decision on which calendar is used will be made at the February SAC meeting. Input by the public is welcome via SAC representatives.

In other business:

- Turnover rates for teachers appear lighter than usual this year, according to Frasier. Open positions are expected to include two at the high school and two or three at the elementary school.

- Teacher recruiting will be conducted at the University of Northern Iowa Overseas Recruiting Fair in February. Frasier reported broadening teacher recruiting to include Internet recruiting, use of the school and KRS websites and video interviews. In response to questions, Frasier said referrals, on-island candidates, and college campus recruits are also considered.

- Angela Ramsey, current speech pathologist, is substituting in the school's Adult and Community Education Office.

- Steve Howell, high school principal, reported that copies of new curriculum revised by the respective committees would be available for review by the community in February. Details will be announced via the Roller and the Hourglass.

- High school report cards were mailed home today.

- The elementary school PTO will meet Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Actors visit Kwajalein, Roi on USO tour

By Nell M. Drumheller
Editor

Living on Kwajalein sometimes means having to do without day-to-day commodities that our state-side friends and family take for granted. But how many of your friends back in Iowa, or Kentucky or Oregon have the opportunity to meet and talk to celebrities?

James Avery and Stephen Root spent a little more than a two days in the Marshall Islands as a part of a United Servicemen's Organization tour.

The two character actors met with residents on Thursday in "meet and greets" on Roi-Namur and Kwajalein.

More than 100 people came out to meet the celebrities and ask them questions.

"I do this for the troops," said Root, an actor whose face is easily recognizable from his many television and film roles including News Radio, Office Space and others. His voice is heard on King of the Hill and he is currently filming episodes of the West Wing. Root and Avery have traveled to Bosnia, Kosovo and other locations where Americans in uniform serve.

Avery, who tried to parent Will Smith in the television series Fresh Prince of Bel Air, recently completed filming several Enterprise episodes.

Avery, who spent four years in the Navy, said he does the USO tours for the troops. "I don't support the war," he said intently, "but I do support the troops."

"I know what it is like to serve in an unpopular war," he added.

Both actors said they started their careers because they wanted to do theater and had no plans for television or movies. "Theater was the thing," Avery said.

Root added, "I didn't intend to do film."

Kwajalein was the second and final leg of their mini-USO tour they started on Guam.

Root said that Kwajalein was a best-kept secret, and he wished he had more time to spend here.
