What are your children doing online?

“Computers are the devil,” said a friend of mine one day.

I laughed and said that was for sure, thinking about all the times I said bad words to my computer when it would crash, ruining hours worth of work, or finding some other way to get my blood pressure to squirt out of my ears.

But the more I thought about his statement, the more I didn't find it all that amusing.

I recently saw an article (I read a lot when I'm supposed to be working) about Web sites that are directed at young teenage girls promoting anorexia and bulimia.

These sites teach girls how to starve themselves and how to hide the signs of starvation from their parents and friends.

I wondered how such sites can be allowed, but then I just stopped and thought about that.

There are sites on the Internet that will actually teach terrorist skills such as bomb making, how to build home-made guns and other deadly weapons.

Then there are the sites that spew hatred of blacks, gays, lesbians, Jews, Christians and on and on.

And of course there are the sites that Islamic terror groups use to boast of their killing of innocent people.

And for a change of pace, there are the 'chat' rooms into which sexual predators can lure children.

I read somewhere that something like 75 percent of the sites on the Internet are porn sites.

Isn't that a really good use of Internet technology?

I'm not what you would call computer savvy. I know how to turn one on and then scream at it when it doesn't do what I want it to.

But isn't there a way to police the Internet?

The answer to that question is apparently not.

It's not easy to swallow, but the First Amendment protects hate sites, porn sites and the sites that tell young girls how to starve themselves to death. The trash that run these sites hide behind freedom of speech.

The only people who can control what children get into on the Internet are their parents.

We are lucky on Kwajalein since we have filters on the public Internet and that helps prevent children from getting into sites they shouldn't be on.

But like everything in the computer world, the people who want your children to see stuff figure out a way to get around filters, firewalls and all the other guards that are supposed to prevent it.

Children are sometimes lured into porn sites or chat rooms by going to a site that looks like a children's site such as popular children's movies or cartoons.

Then, when they are in the site, they see images of porn or are lured into a chat room.

Parents might think they know what their children are doing, but there's no way they can watch their child 24 hours a day. Besides, a lot of children know more about computers than their parents do and they can get around safeguards if they want to.

Parents need to know what signs to look for that could mean their child is involved in anorexia or with an online predator or other behavior that might mean they're in trouble.

Don't forget, even if you check the history to see where your child has been, some of these sites don't appear to be what they really are. You would actually have to go into them to see if they are legitimate sites.

Parents tell their children not to talk to strangers on the street. These days they need to be told not to do it online.

It may not be much of a problem on Kwajalein, but eventually, children on the island will go back to the real world.

Like it or hate it, the Internet is here to stay and will probably always be unregulated, so parents are the first and last line of defense.

The island names of Jaluit and Mili were misspelled in Wednesday's article on the Nimitz' strategy. The Hourglass regrets the error.

New takeout procedures at Café Pacific, Café Roi and Café Meck go into effect on Tuesday.

“The KRS [Kwajalein Range Services] dining services team under the leadership of Steve Cummings is dealing with an admittedly challenging issue,” said Kevin Finn, vice president/deputy program manager, Community Activities. He added that the take-out meals are a service that island residents clearly enjoy and that he and his staff have been getting a lot of good comments from residents concerning the change.

Beginning on Tuesday there will be a $2 charge for takeout meals and the meals will be packaged by Dining Services personnel.

Finn and his staff have developed a Frequently Asked Questions document. This document can be viewed at: K:KRS Newsline\Takeout

Backpack weight needs to be monitored

Mig Owens
Assistant editor

With the start of the school year, backpacks in every size, shape and color accompany students wherever they go. Though backpacks are a convenience most wouldn't want to do without, improper use can lead to spinal injuries.

Approximately 4,928 emergency room visits each year are attributed to overloaded and incorrectly worn backpacks, according to the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

Studies also show that children are experiencing an increase in spinal distress, postural misalignments, and conditions that put them at risk for disc herniation.

Mike Moore, U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll Installation Safety officer, says that backpacks themselves are safe; it's the load and how you wear them that make the difference.

"Improperly carrying the backpack can cause problems from the get go," Moore said. "Backpacks should be supported by both shoulder straps and adjusted properly."

Preventing injury is something parents and children can work at together. According to Backpack Safety America, the following guidelines can help.

Step 1 ...Choose right. Be sure to select a backpack that is sturdy and appropriately sized.

Padded shoulders and waist straps are a plus.

Step 2 ...Pack right. The maximum weight of the loaded backpack should not exceed 15 percent of the wearer's body weight. See Backpack Safety America's weight guidelines below. If the wearer is forced to arch forward, the backpack is too heavy.

Step 3...Lift right. Face the backpack, bend at the knees, use two hands and check the weight. Then lift with the legs and apply one shoulder strap then the other. If possible, place the backpack on a surface that is hip high and then slip on the straps to reduce stress on the shoulders and back.

Step 4...Wear right. Use both shoulder straps – snug, but not too tight. Use the waist strap, if one exists, to help position the backpack over your hips.

Dan Frazier, Kwajalein school superintendent, also suggests that students store backpacks in their bicycle basket on the ride to and from school. "Wearing a backpack raises the center of gravity for a child and increases the chance for accident or injury," Frazier said.

He added that the number of books handled by older children with mature muscles and bone structure differs from the number smaller children can handle, encouraging parents to monitor backpack loads. Parents can also help by prioritizing what is carried in a child's backpack to eliminate unnecessary items and by teaching children to evenly distribute the backpack's contents.

"Parents need to practice what they preach," added Moore, who says that he's seen many instances where backpacks worn by adults are slung over one shoulder.

"Younger kids have growing spines and are at risk, but anyone with a backpack is vulnerable to back-related injuries," Moore said, calling them a "tax on backs."

Moore tells his own children, "Unless you're studying every subject that night, don't bring all your books home." If there is no alternative to lugging numerous books, Moore advises them to carrying some under their arm. Children also have a responsibility to let parents know about back and neck pain, Moore said. Pain is a signal from your body telling you something is wrong, he said, adding that that's when it's time to see your healthcare provider.

"Backpack responsibility rests with children and parents," Moore said.

BACK TO SCHOOL

Allison Kickhofel

Kickhofel holds a bachelor's degree in Physical Education for Kindergarten through twelfth grade and is in her third year of teaching. The Pensacola, Fla. native will teach both Physical Education and Health and Wellness this year. Among her hobbies are all styles of dance, which she enjoys learning, choreographing and teaching. She also enjoys spending time with her husband, Mark, and two children Iley and Oden. "Kwaj is wonderful!" she said. "It is family oriented. People are very relaxed, but go out of their way to help." She added that among her goals is to "catch a big fish!"

Mark Wayland

Junior/senior high school computer teacher, Wayland, holds a master's degree in Educational Technology and a bachelor's degree in Psychology. He has been teaching for 14 years. Wayland said his goal is to "provide a positive outlook for technology at our school." The former resident of Camano Island, Wash., said he and his family enjoy all water sports, fishing and spending time with family and friends. "I also enjoy playing Xbox," he said, "My favorite game is Halo 1." He added that his first impression of Kwajalein is that it's a great place for a family and that he is happy to be here.

Julie Atkinson

Atkinson, who will teach tenth and twelfth-grade English and Newspaper, has been teaching for eight years, two in Rosenberg, Texas and six in Apple Valley, Minn. She holds a bachelor's degree in English. Atkinson said she considers Kwajalein "very friendly and welcoming." Her hobbies include camping, backpacking, reading, canoeing and traveling. She said, "I am looking forward to learning how to scuba dive and enjoy more snorkeling."

Kris Wayland

Wayland, a third-grade teacher, holds a bachelor's degree in Elementary Education and Mathematics and a master's degree in Educational Technology. Along with her spouse, Mark, she comes to Kwajalein from Camano Island, Wash. and has 14 years of teaching experience. The couple has two children: Emily will enter the fifth grade and Trey is entering third. Wayland said she finds Kwajalein to be family oriented and filled with activities. She characterizes the island community as "friendly, helpful and warm."

Casey Schuh

Fort Wayne, Ind. native, Schuh, holds a bachelor's degree in Elementary Education and an endorsement in Kindergarten. She will be teaching second grade and has one year of teaching experience at the elementary level and five years at the early childhood level. "My personal goal is to grow and learn as an individual and meet new people," Schuh said. Of Kwajalein, she said she is enjoying it. "I have already gone snorkeling and seen the sunset. The people have been wonderful." Schuh added that while living on Kwajalein, she hopes to learn to scuba dive and looks forward to traveling to other islands.

Deanna Cain

Cain gained her teaching experience in Idaho and Oregon and holds a bachelor's degree in Elementary Education from South Dakota. This school year, she will teach fifth grade. "It was a beautiful day as we landed [on Kwajalein] and I immediately thought I'd made the correct decision to move here," she said. Already enjoying some of what the island has to offer, Cain said, "I went snorkeling my first week on island and am hopeful to continue conquering my fear of water." She added that she loves to travel and take photos and hopes to take up golf.

Grace Sherwood Library maintains variety of services for community

By Nell M. Drumheller
Editor

The Grace Sherwood Library is located on the second floor of Building 805.

Open a variety of hours, six days a week; it is the public library for Kwajalein.

The library has four specialty areas:

- The McNaughton Collection – book subscription service providing a revolving book collection of the latest most popular sellers.

- The Pacific Collection - features covering all aspects of Micronesia and the Pacific region from geography and local history, to local government, from marine life to local legends.

- A children's section – featuring oversized books; movies, popular series, and nature and learning videos; multimedia discovery packs; Leap Pads, Quantum Pads and 40 Leap/Quantum Pad Books and a comfortable reading environment.

- A young people's section – with study tables, bean bag chairs, a cartoon corner, a selection of the McNaughton Collection of latest fiction and non-fiction books geared for the youth.

The library has 18,000 books, more than 2,200 videos, 350 books on tape and subscribes to 60 magazines as well as six newspapers.

The Summer Reading Program, which is open to children, continues through Aug. 20. Participants win a prize for every seven books they read.

Also continuing through Aug. 20 is the summer story hours from 1 to 2 p.m. on Mondays. This is open to supervised children 4-8.

Avid readers who want to know the latest available for check-out from the library can receive the monthly, e-mailed newsletter. "The newsletter has information on new book arrivals and programs going on at the library for kids and adults," said Amy Hansen, librarian. She added that the library also has a "birthday club" for children 2-12. "Children can sign up to receive a special gift from the library on their birthday," Hansen said.

Patrons can register for the monthly book drawing. Two books are given away, one for an adult and one for children. Registration is limited to one per customer per month.

Hansen added that during the school year, which begins on Thursday, the library holds book discussions.

The library can be used by all island residents, TDY personnel, and C-badge holders according to Hansen. Residents can allow visitors to sign library material out on their card,

The library has business machines available for patrons. There are four computers, a fax machine, a copier and a computer printer. There is a ten cents per page cost to use the copier or printer.

The library also has old copies of the Kwaj Ekataks yearbooks and Windows on the Atoll.

Check-out periods differ:

- Books, audio books, magazines – three weeks (20 cent daily late fee – have a $1 daily late fee – maximum is $6)

- Videos and travel books – three days ($1 daily late fee – maximum is $7)

- Discovery Packs, Quantum Pads, Leap Pads – 10 days ($1 daily late fee – maximum is $7)

- Paperback exchange – several paperback book racks inside and outside library are part of paperback exchange program. Patrons are free to take a book and when they are done, bring the book back or bring one in to exchange for it. Many people come by to take advantage of these books when they are going on vacation.

The library accepts donations. "Much of our collection is from community donation. If we do not have a book or video that you are interested in, let the librarian know. We may be able to buy it or retrieve it through an interlibrary loan from one of the Hawaiian military libraries," Hansen said.

Kingdom of Heaven. Balian (Orlando Bloom) is a humble French blacksmith who is searching for a reason to go on after the death of his wife and children. Balian is approached by Godfrey of Ibelin (Liam Neeson), a fabled knight who has briefly returned home after serving in the East. Godfrey informs Balian that he is his true father, and urges the blacksmith to join him as he and his forces journey to Jerusalem to help defend the holy city. Balian accepts, and he and Godfrey arrive during the lull between the Second and Third Crusades, in which the city is enjoying a fragile peace. Both Christian and Muslim forces are temporarily in retreat, thanks to the wisdom of the Christian King Baldwin IV (Edward Norton), his second-in-command Tiberias (Jeremy Irons), and Muslim potentate Saladin (Ghassan Massoud). Violent agitators on both sides are foolishly eager to end the peace in a bid for greater power, and Saladin bows to pressures from Muslim factions; Godfrey is one of a handful of brave knights who has thrown his allegiance behind Baldwin IV and his community of diversity, and Balian joins him as they use their skills as warriors in a bid to build a lasting peace. Kingdom of Heaven also stars Eva Green as the princess Sibylla, David Thewlis as Hospitaler the priest, and Brendan Gleeson as Reynald.

Kicking and Screaming. Immaturity and poor sportsmanship once again find their firmly established place in children's athletics (at least among the adults) in this sports comedy. Phil Weston (Will Ferrell) is a tightly wound suburban father who had a competitive streak worn into him by his father, Buck (Rober Duvall), who never seemed to feel that his son measured up. When Phil's son joins a Little League soccer team, Phil signs on as coach, only to learn that Buck — who also has a ten-year-old son these days — will be coaching a team in the same league. Determined to show his father he can do the job, Phil impresses upon his young charges that winning is the only important thing, and soon gains a few enemies as he humiliates not only the kids on his own team, but their opponents as well. Directed by Jesse Dylan, Kicking and Screaming also features Kate Walsh and legendary football coach Mike Ditka.

School orientations scheduled

By Elizabeth Davie
Reporter

Summer is winding down, it's almost time to grab the backpack and head back to school.

The first day of school will be Friday.

According to Dan Frazier, school superintendent, orientation for Kindergarten will be at 3 p.m. on Thursday at the elementary school in Rooms 26 and 27.

Elementary school students are invited into their teachers' classrooms starting at 2:30 p.m. Thursday to meet their new teachers and unload their supplies in their desks.

"We are looking forward to an exciting year. We have new school improvement goals that we will be implementing. The high school will renew emphasis on research skills, and the elementary is implementing a new 'literacy laboratory' to boost student reading performance," Frazier said.

Teacher assignments will be received through mail.

"Enrollment has fluctuated a great deal for the coming year with all the families moving on and off the island. Currently at the elementary, our numbers are stable for the coming year to maybe up by four students. We are anticipating 236 students K-6, compared with 232 last year," he added.

According to Steve Howell, high school principal, there will be an orientation for the seventh graders and their parents at 7 p.m. on Thursday in the multipurpose room to assist the students with the transition from grade school to junior high school.

"This is different than past years when we held parent and student meeting separately," Howell said.

There will also be a "Back to School Night" at 7 p.m. on Aug. 19 in the MP Room. This is for parents and students to walk through their classes and meet the teachers.

"I am looking forward to another great year; we have a great bunch of kids, great staff and a bunch of parents who want to be involved in their child's education. It should be a great year," Howell said.

Any questions can be addressed to Howell at 52011.

Responses 1.doc.

Finn said the purpose of the document is to share the comments with the community to help residents better understand the restraints KRS is dealing with, as well as to clarify how the new program will work.

Three of the issues covered in the FAQ document are:

1. Q: Having meals provided by the Pacific Dining Room is one of the benefits of our contract that we shouldn't have to pay extra for if we want to eat someplace other than the PDR.

A: Meals in the Café Pacific, Café Roi and/or Café Meck are guaranteed by most employment agreements for unaccompanied assignments – typical wording reads "Meals are provided without charge for unaccompanied Employees when assigned housing lacks adequate food preparation facilities. Any unaccompanied or accompanied employee residing in a house or trailer will not be authorized a meal card." Our contract Performance Work Statement charters buffet-style service in existing dining rooms. Preserving a compliant takeout option for resident convenience will drive costs for labor and material in excess of what our contract requires, hence the need for an administrative fee ($2 per meal). We believe this vastly preferable to discontinuing the service entirely.

2. Q: How will a fee of $2 fix sanitation problems when people still serve themselves on the buffet?

A: Our PWS requires buffet-style self-serve meals be provided. It is recognized that certain risks exist from this practice, and we continually educate our patrons and employees on processes crucial to maintaining safety of all. Contrasting with the buffet service, takeout service is not chartered in our PWS and is specifically prohibited by food safety regulations. This change will greatly improve food safety compliance and lower overall risks of our operations.

3. Q: During times when boxed meals are delivered to work areas and charged to meal card holders, will there be a $2 charge?

A: If such meals are determined necessary to mission needs (i.e., with approved ration request), there will be no administrative charge.
