Israel lives by one creed ‘never again’

In 1948, the year I was born, my father was keeping a secret he had kept most of his life.

If his secret was known, he couldn't have stayed in certain hotels. He couldn't have joined certain clubs and lodges. He wouldn't have been able to go to a public swimming pool or join a public country club. He might have been refused service in some restaurants. In most places in the country, he couldn't have run for or held public office.

What was his 'terrible' secret? He was Jewish.

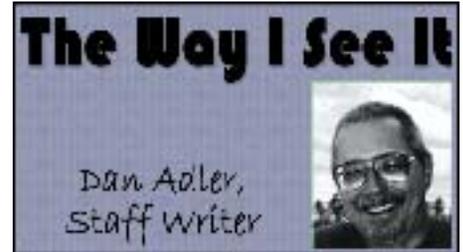

Even in 1948, three years after World War II had ended and all the horror of the Holocaust and the deaths of six million Jews at the hands of the Germans were revealed, Jews in America were still second-class citizens, even those who had fought for their country against the Nazis and the Japanese.

My father had seen those death camps with his own eyes during the war.

Prejudice in America against Jews wasn't referred to as segregation. Hotels, swimming pools and country clubs were called 'restricted.' That simply meant no Jews allowed. So how did people know Jews were Jews

If any of you have traveled to the United States and happened to be listening to any radio station on a Friday at 5 p.m., you probably heard a number of announcements indicating the start of the weekend. We hear bells, gongs, whistles, horns, etc. There are songs about it being 'party time' at 5 o'clock on Fridays. The rush hour traffic begins to snarl the roadways. Are we any different here on Kwajalein? I do not believe so.

One look at the roads on Saturday afternoon, or any afternoon, at 4:30 pm and you will see the Kwaj rush hour. Throngs of bike riders and pedestrians headed to the marina, a dive, the ball field, home, a party, the bar, or the barge. It does not matter to what destination they are headed, most are thinking about the weekend and the evening's activity before them.

I would bet that all of us think more and more about our planned off hours activities during the latter hours of the afternoon, particularly on Saturday. That means that we are not thinking about our work, and this could lead to an accident.

This actually occurred last week. An employee, eager to leave to catch the barge, hurried and put himself in harm's way. His injuries were significant.

On any afternoon, especially Saturday, we need to be aware of the fact that we need to establish a stopping point for our work. This is to prevent hurrying through and taking a chance on compromising safety.

Give yourself enough time to safely complete the task before leaving to catch that barge or attend that party.

Letter to the editor

Human Resources addresses concerns about employee survey

I read with interest the letter to the editor in the July 12 Hourglass discussing the ongoing Kwajalein Range Service employee survey. Although supportive of the idea of a survey, the letter questioned the timing – because so many people are off island right now.

Let me assure your readers that we thought of that problem when we issued the survey. We wanted to get the survey out as soon as we could prepare it, but we did not want to exclude anyone from responding. That is why the survey period is as long as it is; responses may be returned any time between now and July 29. At the same time, we wanted to get responses back in time to allow analysis and meaningful

Emergency preparedness conference held on Kwaj

By Nell Drumheller
Editor

Maritime, security and health officials from the Republic of the Marshall Islands, U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll, Kwajalein Range Services, Australia and a team from the U.S. Navy's Center for Asymmetric Warfare exchanged ideas last week at a conference focused on emergency preparedness.

The conference, sponsored by USAKA Host Nations, was presented by a team lead provided through the Joint Task Force Homeland Defense from Ft. Shafter, Hawaii.

"Partnerships are forged through these kinds of engagements," Lt. Col. Stanley Toy, assistant chief of staff, G3 operations and aviation, U.S. Army Pacific/JTF-HD said. He added that the relationships built at this type of conference ultimately facilitate more efficient emergency responses.

The conference was all day Friday and Saturday and half a day on Sunday. This was the first conference of The Department of Defense was represented with personnel from all branches of service. Each representative gave input on what their service could provide in an emergency.

"The aim is to identify the key stakeholders involved in emergency response and to define roles and responsibilities during a crisis situation," Toy said.

Toy provided the presenters, and Klein brought the audience. He invited "all agencies that would have a role to play in a response to an all-hazards-type event; e.g. tropical storm, pandemic influenza, transnational crime, etc.," Klein said.

"The purpose of the conference was twofold: First, to provide training and enhance awareness of the threats to well-being in the Marshall Islands; and second, allow for networking and mutual understanding between USKA, KRS, and RMI agencies," Klein added.

The team Toy put together was multi-talented. "We look at a full complement of subject matter ex-depth of experience and knowledge our regional partners possess. The RMI delegation was great," he said.

Toy said that they chose to hold their first maritime security conference and table top exercise in the RMI based on site assessments conducted when he was in the RMI in February. "We identified capabilities and vulnerabilities in the RMI's all-hazards response plans," he said.

The aim for this conference was to "identify the key stakeholders involved in emergency response and to define roles and responsibilities during a crisis situation," Toy added.

Through a question and answer period, attendees identified what they thought were the top all-hazard threats to the RMI. "The collective opinion of the conference attendees was that natural disasters such as storms are the number one threat to the islands," Toy said. He added that the avian influenza was the second ranked all-hazard threat followed by international fishing violations.

"Overall, the conference was very

"In the immediate future, I see a real need to assist the RMI Ministry of Health in validating their pandemic influenza plans. The military is very good at putting together evaluative exercises and I believe we will see this happen in Majuro very soon. Long term plans should include training on the incident command system. This simple and flexible command and control is useful for any incident response and is scaleable for any level of an organization.

its kind presented through the JTF-HD. "The idea is to conduct similar events among the compact states," Toy said.

"This visit was initiated by the U.S. Army Pacific/Joint Task Force Homeland Defense as part of a comprehensive plan to provide training and awareness of potential homeland defense threats in the Micronesian region," Maj. Jeff Klein, USAKA HNO, explained.

RMI Secretary of Health Justina R. Langidrik headed the Marshallese attendees that included doctors, an attorney, nurses, police officers and representatives from maritime, immigration and customs offices on Majuro and Ebeye.

The focus was on all-hazard emergency responses. Attendees identified what they thought were the top hazards to this area and then the well-seasoned conference presenters bounced back their ideas on how to plan for such contingencies.

perts to facilitate a dynamic dialogue of all-hazard issues," Toy said. On his team were seasoned veterans in the emergency response arena such as Californians Jim Petroni and Hal Kempfer who have been planning for and responding to emergency situations for more than 30 years. Petroni conducted sessions covering subjects such as strategic approach to managing terrorism and major disasters; all-hazards risk analysis; the incident command system and Sunday's afternoon seminar on the avian influenza. Kempfer helped the audience understand the difference between intelligence and information and how the two subjects support one another. Another presenter, Dr. Eric Shibuya, is an expert on maritime security issues in the Pacific. While the experiences of the presenters were important, input from the attendees was what made the conference valuable, according to Toy. "I am always amazed at the successful. It met its objectives and provides a way forward for continued engagement by JTF Homeland Defense," Klein said.

"In the immediate future, I see a real need to assist the RMI Ministry of Health in validating its pandemic influenza plans. The military is very good at putting together evaluative exercises, and I believe we will see this happen in Majuro very soon. Long-term plans should include training on the incident command system. This simple and flexible command and control is useful for any incident response and is scaleable for any level of an organization," Klein said.

Toy defined the role of JTF-HD in the Pacific as a conduit for training needs. "We can tailor mobile training teams that can rotate island to island to address regional needs," Toy said.

Klein thinks last week's conference hit the mark.

Marine police rescue couple from sinking boat

By J.J. Klein
Reporter

Kwajalein Police Department answered the mayday call of a sinking powerboat, towing it and the owners to safety into the harbor.

At 2:17 p.m. on June 30, the Harbor Master received a distress call from Marie and Walter Dixon reporting that their boat had struck something in the middle of the Search and Rescue Pass and was taking on water, fast.

Initially the Dixons thought they would be able to turn the boat around and make it back to the harbor safely, until they lost an engine. Although not worrisome, the couple knew that the situation was serious enough to put in a distress call.

KPD responded immediately and notified the Marine Police onboard the Peacekeeper, the KPD patrol boat, docked at the Ebeye pier. Establishing radio contact with Dixon, the Peacekeeper asked for the boat's location and headed for the harbor side of the SAR pass as Dixon had reported.

Unable to visually locate the sinking boat because of heavy rains, the Peacekeeper radioed Dixon again inquiring after the boat's location. This time Dixon said she and her husband, Walter, were knee deep in water with both engines flooded, near Coral Sands.

Less than 20 minutes later the Peacekeeper arrived to find the Dixon boat was dangerously close to the rocks on the shoreline and in very shallow water. A Peacekeeper crewmember was able to throw a line to the damaged boat and get it undertow when the SR-001, the Marine Police Search and Rescue boat, arrived to assist in the rescue effort.

The SR-001 tried to position itself close to the sinking boat.

Unable to get a crewmember aboard the boat safely, "all we could do was watch Marie and Walter Dixon, almost exhausted, bailing water from their sinking vessel," said Lt. Michael Herrington of KPD Marine Police.

As the Peacekeeper towed the still sinking boat toward safety, the Small Boat Marina dispatched a rescue boat, getting close enough to put a crew on board to help with the bailing. "The Marshallese crew from the small boat marina was fabulous. They jumped into our boat, pulled me out," Marie said, "took the bucket from me and told me to sit down and relax."

Safely in the harbor the SBM staff loaded the boat onto a waiting trailer and pulled it out of the water.

"We want to extend a big thank you to the small boat marina, the harbor control tower and the KPD for making a bad situation better," said Dixon.

"I believe the actions taken by Lt. Mike Herrington and his KPD Marine division, in concert with Harbor Control and the Small Boat Marina, bring great credit upon this entire installation as a 'team event' that possibly saved lives and property," said Paul Sefcik, KPD resident manager.

Marine Police inspected the scene of the accident the next morning and discovered a displaced concrete anchor in the SAR pass. According to Herrington, "something had hit this concrete anchor hard enough to roll it over on its side in the direction of the ocean."

KPD Marine Police remind all who pilot boats to know your location at all times, make your mayday call as quickly as possible, keep personal flotation devices close by and navigate mid-channel.

U.S. prepares for evacuation of Lebanon

Cruise ship chartered to remove Americans to Cyprus

By Jim Garamone
American Forces Press Service

A contracted ship has docked in Lebanon to evacuate U.S. citizens caught in the fighting there, and U.S. officials have ordered the expeditionary strike group based around the USS Iwo Jima to assist in the effort, DoD officials said in Washington, D.C. today.

DoD contracted a Greek ocean liner, the Orient Queen, to evacuate American citizens from Beirut.

The liner can hold up to 750 people for the five-hour voyage to Cyprus. In addition, six CH-53 helicopters -- three from the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit and three from U.S. forces based in the United Kingdom -- are evacuating American citizens from the American embassy compound in Beirut. The air evacuation is aimed at citizens with special needs. The helicopters deliver the refugees to Cyprus. DoD is building to a capacity of 300 people evacuated by air per day. "We will increase that number if needed," the official said.

The destroyer USS Gonzalez is providing security for the Orient Queen, officials said.

The official said DoD is finalizing contracts with up to four other vessels with capacities ranging from 200 to 300 people to over 1,000.

State and defense officials did not specify the number of Americans that U.S. forces would evacuate from Lebanon, saying they will evacuate however many Americans want to leave the country. There are around 25,000 American citizens in Lebanon, but not all will want to leave the country, an official said. "It could be 5,000 [who want to leave]; it could be 10,000," a State Department spokesman said.

The headquarters of Task Force 59, commanded by Marine Brig. Gen. Carl Jensen, is directing the evacuation operation from Cyprus.

U.S. military assists with Lebanon evacuation

U.S. Navy release

U.S. Sailors and Marines from the Iwo Jima Expeditionary Strike Group and the 24th Marine Expeditionary Unit have been directed to assist in the authorized departure of American citizens from Lebanon.

The U.S. Embassy in Lebanon has requested military assistance to help American citizens who wish to depart Lebanon to leave in a secure and orderly manner. Commander, Task Force 59, Marine Brig. Gen. Carl Jensen, is in Cyprus directing military efforts to provide support to the Embassy.

The ESG and MEU are operating in the U.S. 5th Fleet area of operations and expect to be in place to provide assistance later this week.

The USS Iwo Jima Strike Group includes the amphibious ships Iwo Jima, USS Nashville and USS Whidbey Island. USS Trenton and high speed vessel Swift have also joined the strike group.

The 24th MEU, commanded by Marine Col. Ron Johnson, is composed of its command element, 1st Battalion, 8th Marines; Marine Medium Helicopter Squadron 365 (Reinforced) and the MEU Service Support Group 24.

CH-53E helicopters from the 24th MEU operating from Cyprus have assisted 68 American citizens in departing Lebanon Sunday and Monday. The helicopters are currently continuing those transportation flights.

The USS Iwo Jima is headed to Lebanon to assist in the evacuation of American citizens to Cyprus.

input into the FY-2007 budget process. The new fiscal year starts Oct. 1.

While we're on the subject, here's another frequently asked question about the survey: Why does it have a serial number? Is KRS trying to identify which response came from which employee? The answer is a firm 'no.' We added serial numbers so that people could not photocopy the survey and submit multiple responses per person. That would skew the results. With the survey period open so long, we considered this a potential problem. If you are concerned that your result could be tracked back to you, here is a simple solution: trade your survey form with somebody else. We'll still have one vote per person, and a secret ballot.

Finally, if anybody has a question like this in the future, I welcome their input directly. My number is 50767. We don't always get things right the first time, but we're always looking to improve.

just by looking at them? Do you think racial profiling is something new?

Many Jewish immigrants who came to the United States from Europe in the early 1900s Americanized their names so they wouldn't sound Jewish. Some abandoned their Jewish roots and became Christians to be able to live in a society rife with anti-Semitism. Most of them though, kept their Jewish identity and lived with the times as they were.

At least in America, they didn't have to fear Russian Cossacks riding into their villages and slaughtering them. They no longer had to fear the European pogroms which killed them and plundered them for no reason other than they were Jews.

The Jewish people of Europe lived with those fears for centuries. Persecution of the Jews was almost the law on the European continent. Jews saw the horror of the Inquisition when their people were burned alive and suffered agonizing tortures if they refused to convert to Christianity.

If you don't think Jews were really hated in Europe, read some of Shakespeare's plays. Anyone who has read The Merchant of Venice knows how Shylock, the Jewish money lender, was portrayed. The Jew wanting his pound of flesh is bested by the Christian lawyer.

All of the pogroms, the terrors of the Inquisition and all of the persecution through the centuries culminated with Nazi Germany and the Holocaust.

In the years leading up to Adolf Hitler and World War II, the Palestine territory was controlled by Britain. Some European Jews were going to Palestine to live with fellow Jews in that territory and also to escape the rise of the Nazis. The Arabs weren't happy about Jews coming to that land and the British, fearful that Arabs would side with the Germans and disrupt oil supplies, refused to allow any more Jews into Palestine right before and during the war. Many who could have escaped the Germans instead perished in the Nazi death camps. Almost every country in the world, including the United States, refused entry to Jews who tried to get out of Europe ahead of the Nazis.

Even when the war ended and the Holocaust was revealed, the British still refused Jews entry into Palestine. So Jews came however they could. Fighting broke out between the Arabs and the Jews with the British in between. The British still feared Arab anger would shut off the oil, so they tried to keep the Jews in check.

Finally, after fighting both the Jews and the Arabs, the British decided it was time to get out and in 1947 informed the newly formed United Nations that they would be leaving Palestine. The United Nations passed Resolution 181 which partitioned the Palestinian territory between the Arabs and the Jews with the idea that each would have a separate state but would be overseen by the United Nations. The Arabs were furious.

On May 14, in the year of my birth, 1948, the Jews of Palestine declared their independence. President Harry S. Truman, much to the dismay and anger of people the world over, recognized them as independent and the present day nation of Israel was born. It almost died the next day when the armies of six Arab nations, including Egypt, Lebanon, Syria, Iraq, Jordan and Saudi Arabia attacked. It was a life and death struggle in which more than 6,000 Israelis were killed. In one of the most heroic stands of all time, the ragtag Israeli Defense Force stopped the Arab armies and saved their country. They finally had their own nation where they and their children could be Jewish without fear and hatred.

Golda Mier, the future prime minister of Israel, made the comment that the world was seeing something new in its history — 'the fighting Jew.' She also made another statement to the Arabs. She said, "I can forgive you for killing my sons, but I can't forgive you for forcing me to kill yours." It seems some things will never change.

The Arabs tried to destroy Israel twice more, in the Six-Day War in 1967 and the Yom Kippur War in 1973. Each time, six Arab nations joined together to make war on Israel.

Now, Israel is once again at war with its Arab neighbors. And once again, as usual, most every nation is condemning Israel for its actions. It seems nothing angers some people of the world more than Jews fighting back.

Some leaders around the world say the Israelis have overreacted and are doing nothing but creating future generations of enemies.

But how would Americans react if the Cubans were firing missiles into Miami or crossed our border and took our citizens captive? How would the British react if France fired missiles into London? How would the Russians react if terrorists were firing missiles into Moscow? What nation would worry about 'overreacting' when its citizens are being killed?

And who else would defend Israel against its enemies?

The United Nations? All they do is argue impotently and pass resolutions nobody pays attention to.

Israel stands alone except for the United States.

Israel has been the western world's point man against terrorism. It was Israeli warplanes that bombed Saddam Hussein's nuclear facility into rubble which kept him from actually having those 'weapons of mass destruction.'

As far as Israel making more enemies, they'd have enemies no matter what they did. They got out of Gaza and Lebanon. They removed their settlers, sometimes by force, from occupied territory. But still, they are attacked. Israelis pray for peace as any people on Earth do. But it's hard to make peace with an enemy who says peace will only come if Israel is destroyed and all the Jews dead.

Israel is surrounded by those who have sworn to eradicate it, and the guiding principle of the people of Israel is

A range operation is scheduled for tonight. Caution times are 7:01 p.m. through 3:01 a.m., Thursday.

In conjunction with this operation, a caution area will exist within the Kwajalein Atoll. The caution area is bound on the north by Boked Island on the east reef and Yabbernohr Island on the west reef. On the south, the area is bound by a line drawn north of Bigej Island, on the east reef to a point at latitude 08 54.2N, longitude 167 45.8E, then to a point at latitude 08 52.8N, longitude 167 45.8E, and then to a point north of the high tide mark on Ninni Island on the west reef. From 7:01 p.m., Thursday to 3:01 a.m., Friday.

'never again.' They will never again surrender their right to exist or their right to live. They will never again allow their children to be victims of mass murder. So they fight and answer every threat to their existence with force. What else would the world have them do? Surrender and die?

Jewish history has been difficult and full of tragedy, fear and terror. But it's also rich with courage, honor and faith in God. Even when others in their place would have lost faith.

My mother is an Irish Catholic, and in accordance with my father's wishes, I was raised Catholic and attended Catholic school. I lived in an Irish/Italian neighborhood in south St. Louis. I never knew or associated with any Jewish people. My father thought it would be easier that way for me and my brothers.

I was 35 years old before I found out that I was half Jewish. My father had died the year before and my mother decided it was time to tell my brothers and me.

At first, I was shocked and even dismayed. But after thinking it for some time and gaining knowledge of the people of Israel, I felt something else. I felt proud.
