

THE KWAJALEIN HOURGLASS

The new school year starts Friday. Seven new teachers have joined the Kwajalein school staff. To meet them, see Page 4.

Kwajalein parents are too complacent

In the past few weeks there has been quite a bit of controversy dealing with parenting on Kwaj.

It seems to me the parents on island are more worried about the repercussions of alerting the police that they have a missing child, than the repercussions of not watching their child altogether. If you don't watch your kids then the police or child services need to get involved. I can't even count the amount of times I've seen toddlers roaming the island with no supervision, or playing in the middle of the street. And when the parents of these children are made aware of the situation their remark is almost always "oh it's Kwaj, what's the worst that could happen".

It's this sort of complacency that will end up having a harmful effect on Kwaj kids.

But why are the parents so complacent, very few of the drivers on island actually drive the speed limit, or stop at stop signs, there are ditches and storm drains every other block, and not to mention we live on an island, you can't walk too far before hitting water. I fear that it will take something tragic to happen before the Kwaj frame of mind changes. What happens when these families PCS back to the mainland where there is more traffic and the criminal element?

USAKA

Person of the Week

Janet McPhatter is the Kwajalein Range Services workers compensation administrator. Since taking over responsibilities for the Workers Compensation last September, McPhatter and her assistants Sue Ellis, and more recently, Wanda Nugent have improved and regularized workers compensation claims handling, and have worked cooperatively with Kwajalein Hospital staff to provide the best care for our workers. She has received three unsolicited letters of thanks from hospital staff.

Roi safety record recognized

Roi-Namur goes 14 months without recordable accident

By J.J. Klein
Reporter

Everyone who flew aboard the commuter plane from Roi-Namur to Kwajalein on July 26 owes Hart Rubon a huge kम्मol tata. Rubon, a traffic agent at the Roi airfield, stopped the pilots from taking off when he saw that the handle on the aircraft door was not in the locked position.

"Reuben recognized something was wrong and he took the safety initiative to stop something before it turned into a later mishap. That is something all of us share; the desire to be safe, recognize mishaps and correct them," said Don Davis, Airport Operations manager.

This commitment to safety, at all employee levels, is why the people on Roi-Namur celebrated 14 months of unrecordable accidents with a party on Saturday, where Hart was publicly recognized with a special certificate for his actions.

"We had another [party] like this last year and it was just as big, but this one is even better because we don't have any recordable accidents in the past year. I think it gave everyone a good feeling that they not only went a whole year without an accident but that they're actually getting recognized for it," said Power Plant Supervisor Joe Woods.

The Safety Celebration, attended by the U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll commander and Kwajalein Range Services upper level management, was kicked off with a lunch feast of chicken, barbeque ribs, deep sea fish, reef fish, lobster and coconut crab provided by Café Roi and the Roi-Namur community. Several employees donated the deep sea and reef fish they caught the day before, making even the meal a "community effort" according to Tony Stephens, Community Activities director.

Employees were treated to an afternoon off to relax and enjoy music from the Dirty Rascals, or participate in a game of volleyball, softball and golf.

After lunch Col. Steveson Reed, USAKA commander, John Pickler, KRS president and Jeff DeLong, Radar manager complimented the Roi-Namur community for its exceptional safety record and presented each department with a plaque for excellence. More than three quarters of the departments were 41 months accident free.

The potential for accidents is great considering the nature of the work on Roi-Namur, where employees wear harnesses to conduct weekly maintenance on a radar antenna and are exposed to potentially lethal circumstances.

"It's really a remarkable accomplishment when you talk about any industrial workplace, which is what all of Roi-Namur is, going 14 months without any kind of accident, especially a recordable accident," said Woods. "Anyone who is involved in any way whether they are working or planning the work, has got to be proud of themselves."

The last recordable injury for Roi-Namur occurred last June when an employee accidentally stabbed himself in the abdomen. He was trying to cut a scoop out of a plastic container when his knife slipped. Recordable accidents are injuries requiring medical attention beyond first aid.

"It is impressive to not have a single OSHA [Occupational Safety and Health] recordable," said DeLong. This is the first time in history that Roi-Namur has not had an OSHA recordable over a 12 month period." That is a significant safety improvement when compared to the six recordables from 2004 according to statistics compiled by Safety Engineer II John Pyle.

USAKA and KRS management have been very visible in preaching safety as a priority, but DeLong pointed out that "the entire Roi workforce is highly engaged" in this issue. This is a sentiment

"We've led the way in safety during the past year, and I don't see us changing that. We're going to continue moving forward, so if anybody says we're lucky, we are."

held by many in the community including Ricky Everette, ALCOR/MMW Radar Field Maintenance engineer. In Everette's workplace they use the acronym B.A.S.E. - Behavior, Attitude, Sense and Environment- to educate employees about and reinforce safety in the workplace. "We use that for everybody from the administrative secretary to the people climbing the radar antenna," said Everette. He attributed Roi-Namur's recent safety record to his observation that "for someone to be safe it doesn't have to come from Floyd [Corder, Operations manager]. Everybody's point of view is important, everybody contributes."

Corder has heard people downplaying Roi-Namur's safety successes as just a matter of luck. On Saturday he asked the community to consider the idea that luck is a byproduct of preparation. "You guys take a look at your jobs and the hazards associated with them and then [you] plan and prepare for them. You're going to have luck," he said. "We've led the way in safety during the past year, and I don't see us changing that. We're going to continue moving forward, so if anybody says we're lucky, we are."

It was a little little bit of luck and a whole lot of training, preparation and safety awareness invested in Rubon, that kept a plane load of passengers safe last month.

IT'S BACK-TO-

New teachers bring very diverse backgrounds to Kwajalein schools

Christina Davis, high school social studies teacher

When Christina Davis moved to Kwajalein from Colorado Springs, Colo. she was ready to trade in her ski boots for scuba gear. Having grown up in Okinawa, Japan, Davis really missed the ocean and “Kwajalein definitely has a lot of that to offer.”

Davis is just as enthusiastic about her position at the high school. “My goal as a social studies teacher is to facilitate students to become active, independent, and effective contributors to a global society,” said Davis. “I realize I have the responsibility to communicate clear expectations to my students and to recognize each student’s unique personality and individual abilities.”

Davis brings a unique outlook to teaching social studies as she is fluent in Japanese and can speak knowingly of the Japanese culture. Ask her what is the best thing about being a teacher and she is quick to say the students. Good answer.

Anne Jahnke, Sixth grade teacher

Living and teaching overseas is nothing new for Anne Jahnke. Although she is British, Anne grew up in Brazil and has taught elementary and middle school in England, Brazil and Bulgaria.

Ten years of teaching has taught Anne that it is her job “to motivate students to want to learn. This means providing them with opportunities to explore interesting and relevant subject matter. Students also need guidance in making the most of their learning experience.” This sixth grade teacher plans to connect with parents by communicating what is happening in the classroom, asking for parental input, and expecting parents to monitor their children’s homework.

Weekends, according to Anne, were made for swimming, tennis and playing the piano.

Anne arrived on Kwajalein with her husband, Jonathan, a new teacher at the high school, and her three school-age boys. “My husband and I enjoy the overseas experience,” said Jahnke. “We like to travel and meet new people. We believe Kwajalein will be a good experience for our children.”

Jonathan Jahnke, 8th grade world history; 7th grade keyboarding; high school computer applications and athletic director

Wearing many hats seems natural for the man from the small town of Alden, Minn. In the northern burg of 700 people, Jonathan taught, coached, led and had his fingers in just about everything.

“I was the athletic director, varsity volleyball coach and head boy’s and girls’ golf coach,” he said, this was on top of his teaching duties while working for the last five years in his hometown.

“We were quite happy in Minnesota, but I wanted to give our kids another perspective on the world,” Jonathan said. Jahnkes’ sons are Jake, in the 7th grade; Sam in the 3rd grad and Ben in the 1st grade. “When we were overseas before, the boys were really too young to remember much. I hope that while we are here they will be able to see and do some things that they couldn’t living in rural Minnesota. I also think the school will give my boys a top education and I like it that they will have classmates from a various places.”

Jonathan’s philosophy in the classroom is simple, “I think you have to believe that every child can learn

SCHOOL TIME

Some kindergartners have a say

By J.J. Klein
Reporter

All over the island children and parents are getting together their school supplies and focusing on heading back to school. For those little people in their Wonder Years, the age five set, this is the exciting beginning of their 13 year academic journey. If it is true that all I really need to know I learned in kindergarten-ten then there is a lot of wisdom to be found at the sandbox at school. The Hourglass asked the newest students, "What do you think you are going to learn in kindergarten?"

Celeste Fazioli

"I don't really know. My mom's been telling me a lot about sea animals and all sorts of things about school. I know a lot about dolphins. And playtime."

Jazzmyne Craven

"Lots of big kids go to kindergarten and they have to clean up the toys. And I'm going to learn my ABCs and my numbers, and wear dress up clothes. There are lots of numbers and lots of learning and homework."

Joe Miller

"Reading and science. Learning stuff. Play on the playground. Music. Computer Class. Math."

Nicholas Reese

"How to subtract, and just learn. They have Halloween parties and Christmas and Valentine's day parties. I think they do it every single month, but January. They move all the desks and put up decorations."

and that what you are teaching is important."

He added, "I like the interaction with the students between classes and after school. They keep me young, (well, active, anyway). I also like to learn and to keep doing and trying new things. Teaching allows me to still be a student."

Jonathan is just as busy out of school as in. "Most of my activities are athletic - golf, basketball, sailing and triathlon training. The Sunday before we came out I finished my first Half-Ironman [1.2 mile swim, 56 mile bike, and 13 mile run], I also hope to scuba dive some more. The last time I dove was in Brazil 15 years ago."

While it might be hard to believe, Jonathan hope is to learn how to relax and enjoy life during his tenure on Kwajalein.

Debra Johnson, elementary school assistant principal as well as adult and community education lead

"Call me Deb," said the tall blonde with a dazzling smile.

Johnson's move to Kwajalein is a big change; she's coming from the mountains of Colorado.

"I don't know how, but want to learn how to sail, spearfish, surf, and all of the other water related sports," Johnson said. That's a switch from the llama treks she used to take in the summer in Colorado, as well as downhill skiing in the winter.

Though being out of doors has always appealed to Johnson, her heart belongs with students. "Although I'm not currently in the classroom, I believe you need to make learning relevant and meaningful to the student; they are more likely to be intrinsically motivated for their own learning,” she said.

Johnson learned about teaching on Kwajalein from a Kwaj kid, Ed Taylor. He worked at the same school as Johnson near Denver. “He said the people and location are a cut above the majority of places I could go. Let me think,” she mused, “the opportunity to come to a tropical paradise? I wanted to combine my two biggest loves, working with kids and new adventures.”

Judy Kirchner, kindergarten teacher

Everyone in Kirchner’s classroom will be new to Kindergarten this year, including Kirchner. A 13-year resident of Kwajalein, most people will recognize Kirchner as a coach of the Kwajalein Swim Team, a Yokwe Yuk Women’s Club Education Assistance Committee member and a volunteer at the Jabro Private School on Ebeye. Add Kindergarten teacher to the list.

“I love teaching kindergarten because it’s the first actual school experience for most children and they usually arrive at school fresh and eager to learn. Kindergarteners (and their parents) are almost always excited about reaching this milestone,” said Kirchner. “I want to take advantage of the enthusiasm and fill every day with hands-on activities, lots of learning opportunities, fun and laughter, and read, read, read!”

Kirchner is married to Tim Kirchner, Technical director at Reagan Test Site and has a 14-year-old daughter, Julianne, and 12-year-old son, Graham. “My husband jokes that he has to work to ‘support my teaching habit’ because I spend so much of my income on teaching supplies,” said Kirchner. “Most teachers I know also spend a good bit of their own money on supplies.” For Kirchner this expense is offset when she observes “the pleasure they [her students] take in their accomplishments as they master so many skills.”

Melissa Heilman, elementary computer and remedial reading

“The best thing about being a teacher is getting to be a part of a child’s life-long search for knowledge. Being a teacher is the perfect job for any mom – I have the same schedule as my son.” Heilman’s son, Raul Herrera, 16, will be a senior at Kwajalein High School this year.

Heilman has been teaching for eight years, “As I’ve never had the luxury of working in a school with a computer teacher, I’ve always been responsible for teaching computer curriculum and typing skills to my students.”

When not in the classroom, Heilman likes to read, bake, quilt, and do ceramics, paint, crafts, and “Anything to do with the water.”

The Texan described her teaching philosophy as “Creating a positive, hands-on learning environment where the children feel safe to be curious and inquisitive. Learning is fun and can be contagious.”

She added that she enjoys getting parents involved in their child’s education by recruiting their help, keeping them informed and making sure they feel welcome in the class.

She thanked the Kwajalein community for their warm welcome, “Their generosity, advice, and kind ways have helped us feel welcome in our new home.”

Veda Fritch, math teacher

Mississippian Fritch is experiencing her first overseas job and thinks living on Kwajalein will be a unique experience for her and her family. Fritch’s husband, Tommy, works at Environmental, Safety and Health. They have three children, Ashley, 17, a senior; Edwin, 11, a 6th grader and Beth Ann, 7, in the second grade.

Armed with ten years as a high school math teacher, Fritch has learned a thing or two about helping students learn.

“Each child learns differently. I try to use a variety of teaching strategies to help each student. I am very open to students’ questions and work individually with students as much as possible. I feel the most important thing for a student to learn is a positive attitude.”

She will be teaching 7th grade intermediate algebra, 8th grade algebra I, pre-calculus and AP calculus.

School begins Friday, with Kindergarten orientation on Thursday at 3 p.m. in their assigned classrooms.

There will be an elementary school parent open house, in the classrooms, from 6 to 8 p.m., Aug. 24.

There will be a junior and senior high school back to school night will be from 7 to 8:45 p.m., Aug. 25. The back to school night begins in the multi-purpose room and continues through the classrooms.

Yard care requirements are resident's responsibility

Hourglass reports

The U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll Directorate of Public Works wants to remind residents of their yard care requirements to support the commander's island beautification goals. These requirements apply to all residential areas including family housing, trailers and bachelor quarters. Segregate discarded items and place curbside for pick-up by building and grounds.

- Remove, prune, and/or thin out excess plants, trees and shrubs. Yards may not be filled with plants from front to back, and plants used for yard borders must be spaced approximately two feet apart or far enough to allow access and visibility to the structure.

- Plants must not block egress from windows or doors and must be 42 inches away from the structure.

Remove small newly planted coconut trees.

- Plants at BQs must be a minimum of 12 feet from the structure.

- Remove or repair tarps, wind-screens, awnings and/or any structures (fences, decks, walls, decorative curbing, etc.), in disrepair.

- Do not store wooden pallets and construction materials in yards, except during permitted work in-progress.

- Remove concrete blocks (blocks supporting decks are OK)

Do not use rocks from the shore line for landscaping because they are there for shoreline protection.

- Replace or remove broken pots, planters or other items from front porches, yards and patios.

- Do not place shelves, bookcases, shoe racks, milk crates or other types of storage containers on front porches or yards.

- Storage sheds must be inside fences or permitted if free standing in the yard. Do not store excess items on the front porch, walkway or in the yard.

- All structures such as fences, decks, and storage sheds must be permitted IAW SPI 2600, through the self-help office.

- Do not store or hang articles from rafters in front of the structure (bikes are acceptable).

- Store small watercraft (rafts, kayaks etc.) in rear of structure and inside the fence if yard has a fence. Larger watercraft must be stored at the small boat marina.

- Do not use vacant quarters for additional personal storage.
