How a company slaps a country in its face

In a time when more and more American companies are showing just how 'patriotic' and greedy they are by outsourcing jobs and moving their headquarters offshore, one company has to stand out as the epitome of all that's bad with American business these days.

This company, that we all have come to know and 'love,' has received more than $20 billion in war contracts in Iraq and billions more for the Gulf Coast and New Orleans after Hurricane Katrina. Of course, these contracts were all no-bid. Why have honest competition?

This loveable American company has been accused of serving spoiled food and contaminated water to our troops in Iraq. In addition, an investigation is underway to determine if the company overcharged the government to the tune of $2.7 billion or more.

It's been said that even the contract-security people this company hired in Iraq were shortchanged on proper equipment they needed for protection.

To top all of this off, the company, after having been slopped like pigs in the trough of American taxpayer money, is moving overseas to Dubai in the United Arab Emirates. You might recall that certain people in our country tried to push through a deal selling a few of our seaports to a Dubai company.

The reason for this move is undoubtedly to avoid taxes on some of the billions in profits the company has made. Yeah, that's the way to give back to your country, guys. It almost makes me misty-eyed just thinking about how 'American' you are.

So, not only will this company probably continue gobbling up government contracts, but it won't have to pay U.S. taxes on most of its profits.

As one congressman put it, 'What a slap in the face to American taxpayers and the troops in Iraq and Afghanistan.' I couldn't agree more.

There are cynics who say the company is leaving America because of the accusations of overcharging, mismanagement, waste, fraud and the possibility of subpoenas and congressional hearings into all of their shady dealings.

Oh, gee, I don't believe that for a minute. Do you?

One of the company's executives said the reason for the move was that business opportunities in the west are drying up and more opportunities exist in the Middle East and Far East.

Well, heck, then go ahead and leave the country where you built your wealth. We're just your countrymen. That's no big deal to you.

I don't think you bleed red, white and blue do you? Probably just green. I guess you want to be the poster child for corporate greed. Some say you're a national disgrace and embarrassment.

But, hey, the bottom line is all that counts these days, isn't it? It trumps patriotism, loyalty and giving back to your country any day of the week, right?

I guess it doesn't make any difference to you that your headquarters will be in a country where money was laundered for the 9/11 terrorists and where some of them lived and at least one was a citizen. Hey, no big deal, right?

Well, I'll tell you what. I think America should throw you a going away party.

I think Americans should stand on the shore and as you're saying goodbye to us and your country, you should also be saying goodbye to any and all U.S. government contracts funded by U.S. taxpayers—forever. If you don't need us, you don't need our money either. But, what the heck, maybe we'll have a few less crooks in our country if you go.

So hey, good luck and all that.

And don't worry too much about terrorists kidnapping and beheading you big shots. I hear that only happens every now and then.

Women's History Month

Women have distinguished record of military service

Hourglass reports

Each year, March is designated as National Women's History Month to ensure that the history of American women will be recognized and celebrated in schools, workplaces, and communities throughout the country. The stories of women's historic achievements present an expanded view of the complexity and contradiction of living a full and purposeful life.

The theme for Women's History Month 2007 is "Generations of Women Moving History Forward." This theme celebrates the wisdom and tenacity of prior and future generations of women and recognizes the power and impact of generations working together.

Women have played important roles in maintaining the freedom of America.

Even before America won its independence from Great Britain, women, though often with subterfuge, were key to the fight for freedom.

Deborah Sampson

Sampson's family was very poor. She was the oldest of six children. At the age of 8 to 10 years old, she became an indentured servant. She worked on a farm and worked very hard. She learned to sew and spin. She could hunt, ride a horse, and even do carpenter's work. She loved to learn and would get the boys in the family to teach her the lessons they were learning in school. She learned so well that she later became a teacher.

During the Revolutionary War she wanted to help, but girls were not allowed to join the Army. She decided she could join the Army if she pretended to be a man. She practiced walking and talking like a man until she could even fool her mother. She was ready.

In October, 1778 she became an enlisted "man" using the name Robert Shurtleff. She was tall for a woman; 5 foot and 7 inches, so her fellow soldiers thought she was a short man. They teased Shurtleff because he didn't have to shave, but they just thought this boy was too young to grow a beard.

Things were going well until she was wounded in battle. She let the doctor treat the wound on her head, but she removed the bullet from her leg by herself with a penknife and a needle. Her leg never did heal properly, but her secret was still safe. She was afraid if they found out she was a girl, they would shoot her. Later she developed a fever and was put in the hospital. The doctor discovered that Shurtleff was actually a woman. He took her to his family's home to get well. She was given an honorable discharge from the army.

After she left the army, she married a farmer named Benjamin Gannett and they had three children. She taught at a school and also gave talks or lectures about her experiences in the war. At the end of her lectures, she would leave the stage and then come back onstage dressed in her uniform and go through the soldier's routine with the gun.

Paul Revere wrote a letter to Congress asking for her to be given a pension. She began receiving four dollars a month. She died at the age of sixty-six.

It is uncertain how many women posed as men to fight for America's liberty.

During the Civil War hundreds of women fought alongside men for both the Northern and Southern armies.

Dr. Mary Walker

Born in Oswego, N.Y., the daughter of Alvah and Vesta, Walker taught school as a young woman to earn enough money to pay her way through Syracuse Medical College where she graduated as a doctor in 1855. She married a fellow medical school student, Albert Miller, and they set up a joint practice in Rome, N.Y. The practice did not flourish, as female doctors were generally not trusted or respected at that time.

At the beginning of the American Civil War, she volunteered for the Union Army as a civilian. At first, she was only allowed to practice as a nurse, as the Army had no female surgeons. During this period, she served at the first Battle of Bull Run (Manassas), July 21, 1861 and at the Patent Office Hospital in Washington, D.C. She also worked as an unpaid field surgeon near the Union front lines, including the Battle of Fredericksburg and in Chattanooga after the Battle of Chickamauga. Finally, she was awarded a commission as a "Contract Acting Assistant Surgeon (civilian)" by the Army of the Cumberland in September, 1863, becoming the first ever female U.S. Army surgeon.

She was later appointed assistant surgeon of the 52nd Ohio Infantry. During this service, she frequently crossed battle lines, treating civilians. On April 10, 1864, she was captured by Confederate troops and arrested as a spy (there appears to be some support to the idea that she actually was one). She was sent to Richmond and remained there until Aug. 12, 1864, when she was released as part of a prisoner exchange. She went on to serve during the Battle of Atlanta and later as supervisor of a female prison in Louisville, Ky., and head of an orphanage in Tennessee. After the war, she was recommended for the Congressional Medal of Honor by Generals William Tecumseh Sherman and George Henry Thomas. On Nov. 11, 1865, President Andrew Johnson signed a bill to present her the medal, specifically for her services at the first Battle of Bull Run (Manassas).

After the war, she became a writer and lecturer, supporting such issues as health care, temperance, women's rights and, quite naturally, dress reform for women. She wore men's clothes exclusively for the rest of her life.

In 1917, the U.S. Congress, after revising the standards for award of the medal so that it could only be given to those who had been involved in "actual combat with an enemy", revoked more than 900 previously-awarded medals, including that of Dr. Walker and William F. "Buffalo Bill" Cody. Although ordered to return the medal, she refused to do so and continued to wear it until her death.

President Jimmy Carter restored her medal posthumously in 1977.

In World War II, a Liberty ship, the SS Mary Walker, was named for her.

Cathay Williams

Williams was born into slavery near Independence, Mo. in 1842. She grew up and worked as a house-girl for wealthy planter William Johnson in Jefferson City, Mo. During the Civil War, Union soldiers liberated Williams and she spent the remainder of the war as a paid servant of the Union Army. On Nov. 15, 1866, shortly after her job with the Army ended, Williams disguised her gender and joined the 38th Infantry, Company A, in St. Louis, becoming a Buffalo Soldier. At the time, there was no requirement for a physical examination and she enlisted using the name William Cathay. She was discharged from the Army at Ft. Bayard, N.M. on Oct. 14, 1868.

and Navy Nurse Corps opened the door for women in the military, but ever so slightly. It wasn't until the United States got involved in World War I that some parts of the government got serious about using woman power.

As the Army stumbled around bureaucratic red tape trying to figure out how to enlist women, the Navy simply ignored the War Department dissenters and quickly recruited women. Nearly 13,000 women enlisted in the Navy and the Marine Corps on the same status as men and wore a uniform blouse with insignia. The Navy's policy was extended to the Coast Guard, but personnel records from World War I contain scarcely any references to the Coast Guard Yeomanettes. A handful of them apparently were employed at the diminutive Coast Guard headquarters building in Washington, D.C. uniformed women in the Coast Guard. With the war's end the Coast Guard Yeomanettes, along with their Navy and Marine Corps counterparts, were mustered out of the service.

It was the service of women in the military and the defense works that gave a huge push to the passing of the 19th Amendment. President Woodrow Wilson was won over to the suffragists' side in part because of the bravery of women serving on the front and their proven abilities as they replaced men in offices and factories. In September 1918, Wilson addressed the Senate, urging that they follow the House in passing the 19th Amendment. His dramatic plea asked that the Senators recognize the contributions made by American women in the war. Wilson proclaimed ... "...Are we alone to ask and take the utmost that our women can give, service and sacrifice of every kind, and still say we do not see what title that gives them to stand by our sides in the guidance of the affairs of their nations and ours? We have made partners of the women in this war; shall we admit them only to a partnership of suffering and sacrifice and toil and not to a partnership of privilege and right?"

World War II

While Hitler was moving across Europe, the military minds in Washington, D.C. were stonewalling women's organizations, patriotic pressures, and anyone who had the temerity to suggest that women should be in the military. The politicians made promises of considering an auxiliary of sorts while quietly hoping it would all go away and secretly trying to figure out how to stop it. Fortunately, Congresswoman Edith Nourse Rogers and Eleanor Roosevelt thought otherwise.

Rogers introduced a bill on May 28, 1941, to establish a Women's Army Auxiliary Corps for service with the Army of the United States. By virtue of its being an auxiliary corps, there was no hint of full military status for women. The bill was dissected, bisected, stalled, lost, amended, sandbagged, and all but trashed until General George C. Marshall took an interest

While several government departments cooperated, the Bureau of the Budget continued to stall in spite of pressure from Roosevelt, Marshall and other interested parties and groups. By late November of 1941, there was still no definitive action. At this point Marshall literally ordered the War Department to create a women's corps.

The Japanese attack at Pearl Harbor on Dec. 7, 1941, left 2,235 servicemen and 68 civilians dead. Eighty-two Army nurses were serving at three Army Medical Facilities in Hawaii that infamous December morning. Hundreds of casualties suffering from burns and shock were treated by Army and Navy nurses working side-by-side with civilian nurses and doctors. Nurses at Schofield Hospital and Hickam Field faced similar overwhelming numbers of wounded personnel. The chief nurse at Hickam Field, 1st Lt. Annie G. Fox, was the first of many Army nurses to receive a Purple Heart and the Bronze Star. Four days after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, and twenty-three years after the idea of women in the military was born, the Bureau of the Budget stopped objecting, planners began to plan and cooperation suddenly became the watchword. The bill was amended, reintroduced, stuck in committees, and stalled. The search was on for a director, a training center and the appropriate equipment. The military men in charge of logistics searched for ideas, for no regulations existed. Finally on May 14, 1942, the bill to "Establish a Women's Army Auxiliary Corps" became law and Oveta Culp Hobby, wife of the former governor of Texas, was named director.

While bills were being bandied around Congress, women were being trained at the first WAAC Training Center in Fort Des Moines, Iowa. With a nudge from Roosevelt, the Navy got its act together and began authorizing a Women's Naval Reserve and the Marine Corps Women's reserve. The Coast Guard followed soon after. The first director of the WAVES - Women Accepted for Volunteer Emergency Service - was Lt. Cmdr. Mildred McAfee, president of Wellesley College. The SPARS, which came from the Coast Guard motto Semper Paratus - always ready, were led by Lt. Cmdr Dorothy C. Stratton. The Marine Corps Women's Reserve was headed by Maj. Ruth Cheyney Streeter. The WAAC was changed to the WAC establishing it as a part of the Army and not an auxiliary by a second bill in July of 1943, signed into law by President Roosevelt. While decisions were made by the politicians, the first WAAC contingent was serving at the Allied Forces

Headquarters in Algiers, North Africa. By January 1944, the first WACs arrived in the Pacific, and in July of 1944, WACs landed on the beach at Normandy. There were over 100,000 women in uniform at this point in time. Nurses were already serving in England and Egypt.

Women continued to serve overseas through 1945, and at one point there were more than 2,000 WACs serving in North Africa alone. From there women were sent to Italy to serve with the 5th Army, and these women moved all over Italy during the Italian campaign handling the communications; they earned commendations, Bronze Stars and the respect of their fellow soldiers as they sloughed through mud, lived in tents, dove into foxholes and dugouts during the Anzio air raids. During the battle on Anzio, six Army nurses were killed by the German bombing and strafing of the tented hospital area. Four Army nurses among the survivors were awarded Silver Stars for extraordinary courage under fire. In all, more than 200 Army nurses lost their lives during World War II.

Toward the end of the war in Europe, the European Theater boasted WACs stationed across England, France, and Germany in cities like Berlin, Frankfurt, Wiesbaden and Heidelberg. If you're wondering where were the women of the Navy, Marines and Coast Guard, ironically regulations did not permit them to serve overseas until the war was almost over. But Navy nurses were serving on board hospital ships, in air evacs, and every place from Australia to the Pacific.

As the war escalated in the Pacific, women were sent to New Guinea, Leyte and Manila in the Philippines, as well as the China-Burma-India theater. More than 5,000 women served in the Southwest Pacific area. Army nurses served throughout the Pacific in increasing numbers between Dec. 7, 1941, and the end of the war. Nurses were stationed on the islands of Guadalcanal, New Guinea, Saipan, Guam and Tinian.

A Japanese suicide plane bombed the hospital ship USS Comfort off Leyte Island. In the attack six nurses, five medical officers, eight enlisted men, and seven patients were killed, and four nurses were wounded. Often ignored by history is the story of the women prisoners of war taken captive during World War II. Sixty-seven Army nurses and 16 Navy nurses spent three years as prisoners of the Japanese. Many were captured when Corregidor fell in 1942 and were subsequently transported to the Santo Tomas Internment camp in Manila, in the Philippines. Santo Tomas was not liberated until February 1945. Five Navy nurses were captured on Guam and interned in a military prison in Japan. Two days after the bombing of Pearl Harbor, five Navy nurses, Lts. j.g. Leona Jackson, Lorraine Christiansen, Virginia Fogerty and Doris Yetter, under the command of chief nurse Marion Olds on Guam were taken prisoner by the Japanese. Nurses received 1,619 medals, citations, and commendations during the war, reflecting the courage and dedication of all who served. Sixteen medals were awarded posthumously to nurses who died as a result of enemy fire. Thirteen flight nurses died in aircraft crashes while on duty.

Sixteen women received the Purple Heart. The Bronze Star was awarded to 565 women for meritorious service overseas. More than 700 WACs received medals and citations at the end of the war. Countless women served in all branches of the service stateside and relieved or replaced men for combat duty overseas. Women performed admirably in every job imaginable including the dedicated Women's Air Service pilots who flew military aircraft to destination bases, suffered casualties, and yet were denied full military status.

Korea

After World War II, women who were serving in the military were released from duty and expected to return to their more traditional roles as wives and mothers. Not all of America's leaders felt that a woman's place was in the home. Gen. Dwight Eisenhower strongly recommend that women become a part of the U.S. military. He was backed by several other senior officers who had worked with women during World War II and had nothing but praise for their efforts. On the 12th of June, President Harry Truman signed on the dotted line, putting Public Law 625, The Women's Armed Services Act of 1948 into effect. It opened the door for dedicated women to serve their country in peacetime. One thing it did not do, that is often misinterpreted, is create separate women's branches, corps or forces. The only unit to retain that distinction was the WAC. The rest of the women in the other branches of service were, for all intents, but not every purpose, fully integrated. Or, so the law implied. It just didn't happen that way.

Two years later, in June of 1950, as the overall numbers for women in the military dropped to a post-war low, the North Korean Communists crossed the 38th parallel. Truman ordered troops into South Korea, and within a few days the Army Nurse Corps was also there.

More than 120,000 women served in the armed forces during the Korean War era.

chon with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, and by the end of 1950, more than 200 Army Nurse Corps officers were in Korea. In addition to the nurses actually in Korea, many women served at support units nearby, in Japan and other far eastern countries.

By this point in time, the 1950s, almost a million women had worn the uniform of the United States Armed Forces. They had been prisoners of war, they had been wounded, they flew planes, planned strategies, nursed the casualties, and died for this country.

One of the women who served was Capt. Lillian Kinkela Keil, a member of the Air Force Nurse Corps and one of the most decorated women in the U.S. military. Keil flew more than 200 air evacuation missions during World War II as well as 25 trans-Atlantic crossings. She went back to civilian flying with United Airlines after the war, but when the Korean conflict erupted, she donned her uniform once more and flew several hundred more missions as a flight nurse in Korea. Keil was the inspiration for the 1953 movie Flight Nurse and served as technical advisor to the film. Her decorations include the European Theater of Operations with Four Battle Stars; the Air Medal with Three Oak Leaf Clusters; the Presidential Unit Citation with One Oak Leaf Cluster; the Korean Service Medal with Seven Battle Stars; the American Campaign Medal; the United Defense Medal; and Presidential Citation, Republic of Korea.

Vietnam era

“Women are warriors the same as men are warriors, and what this country owes them, if ‘owe’ is the word, is the same as we give any warrior.

And that everytime we sing “The Star-Spangled Banner”— and we really get off on ‘the rockets red glare, bombs bursting in air, gave proof through the night that our flag is still there’— that there are Soldiers, both men and women, that have given that assurance, and you ‘owe’ for that assurance. And if you don’t want to pay it, don’t sing the song,” said Liz Allen, RVN, 67-68

All women who served in Vietnam were volunteers, whether civilian or military. At one time there was discussion about drafting women nurses, but this was never implemented. Some women military asked to go to Vietnam, and some were sent against their wishes and even against recruiter’s promises, but all were volunteers because they voluntarily signed up for the military.

“The military, which prided itself on the records it kept in Vietnam — counting the enemy number of weapons captured, for example — cannot, to this day, say with certainty how many women served. The army that sent them never bothered to count them. The estimate most frequently given is that a total of 7,500 served in the military in Vietnam,” said Laura Palmer, former Vietnam War correspondent.

Desert Storm

The conflict in the Persian Gulf began on Aug. 2, 1990, after talks between Iraq and Kuwait did not resolve grievances over oil pricing. Iraq’s President Saddam Hussein, sent armies to invade Kuwait. On the day of Kuwait’s invasion, President George H.W. Bush placed a U.S. economic embargo against Iraq. The United Nations Security Council quickly followed suit. On Aug. 7, after Saddam Hussein refused to remove his troops from Kuwait, Bush ordered Operation Desert Shield to begin. Efforts by the U.N. Security Council for a peaceful resolution with Iraq proved futile. On Jan. 15, the council appealed to Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait — nothing happened — at noon the deadline for peace had passed. On Jan. 16 Operation Desert Storm began. By Feb. 25, thousands upon thousands of Iraqi soldiers abandoned their stockpiles of equipment, weapons and ammunition and surrendered. On Feb. 27, the Iraqi military was scattered and defeated, and Kuwait was liberated.

Mobilization for the Gulf War included an unprecedented proportion of women from the active forces (seven percent) as well as the Reserve and National Guard (17 percent). It was the largest female deployment in U.S. history. Over 40,000 U.S. military women served in key combat-support positions throughout the Persian Gulf Region. Women in Desert Storm did everything the male troops did except engage in ground combat — they could essentially get fired upon — they just weren’t, by existing regulations, theoretically allowed to shoot back! “I was a female paratrooper with the 82nd Airborne Division during Desert Shield/Desert Storm. I want to make you aware of the fact that the females in the 82nd were among the ground troops that pushed into Iraq during the ground war...and we most definitely could shoot back,” said an anonymous Soldier

Sixteen women died during the war, and two were held prisoner.

More than 40,000 were deployed and several thousand more served stateside in essential mission-support roles. The service women of the ‘90s served in the mainstream of the mission goals of Desert Storm and demonstrated that women perform as well as men.

Officer Jamie Lynn Fallon, 23; Spc. Chin Sun Pak, 24; Staff Sgt. Maudlyn A. White, 38; Lt. Col. Karen J. Wagner, 40; Petty Officer Marsha Dianah Ratchford, 34; Petty Officer Melissa Rose Barnes, 27 and Sgt. Tamara C. Thurman, 25.

The following women have died in support of Operation Iraqi Freedom:

Among the Marines killed in the C130 crash in Pakistan was Radio Operator, Sgt. Jeannette L. Winters, 25, of Du Page, Illinois. She joined the Marine Corps in 1997. Winters was the first woman Marine killed in a hostile fire zone.

Lost at Sea —Lt. Terri Sue Fessner, pilot, HH-60B helicopter crash.

Air Force Staff Sgt. Anissa A. Shero, 31, of Grafton, W.V. was killed in a plane crash in Afghanistan. She was a Loadmaster with the Air Force's 16th Special Operations Wing of Hurlburt Field, Fla. on duty in Afghanistan.

1st Lt. Tamar Archuleta, a JJ-60 Pavement pilot, 41st Expeditionary Rescue Squadron, died in a helicopter crash in Afghanistan while performing a medical airlift mission.

Pfc. Lori Piestewa, 23, was the first Native American woman killed by enemy action in our nation's wars.

Sgt. Melissa Valles, 26, of Eagle Pass, Texas, died in Balad, Iraq as a result of non-combat injuries.

Staff Sgt. Kimberly A. Voelz, 27, of Carlisle, Pa. was killed in Iskandariyah, Iraq, as her unit was responding to an explosive ordnance disposal call.

Spc. Alyssa R. Peterson, 27, died from what was described as a "non-combat weapons discharge."

Pfc. Analaura Esparza Gutierrez, 21, of Houston, was killed in Tikrit, Iraq. Esparza Gutierrez was in a convoy that was hit by rocket-propelled grenades.

Pfc. Rachel Bosveld, 19, was killed during a mortar attack in Baghdad, Iraq. Bosveld, a member of the 527th Military Police, is from Waupun, Wis.

Pfc. Karina S. Lau, 20, Livingston, Calif., was killed in a helicopter crash in Iraq.

Spc. Frances M. Vega, 20, of Fort Buchanan, Puerto Rico, assigned to the 151st Adjutant General Postal Detachment 3, Fort Hood, Texas, was killed in a helicopter crash.

Chief Warrant Officer Sharon T. Swartworth, 43, of Virginia was killed when her UH-60 Black Hawk helicopter was shot down in Tikrit. Swartworth was the regimental warrant officer for the Judge Advocate General Office, based at Headquarters, Department of the Army, Pentagon.

Capt. Kimberly N. Hampton, 27, of Easley, S.C., was killed in Fallujah, Iraq. Hampton, was the pilot on a Kiowa, OH-58, observation helicopter when it was shot down by enemy groundfire and crashed. She was assigned to 1st Battalion, 82nd Aviation Battalion, 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N.C.

Sgt. Keicia M. Hines, 27, of Citrus Heights, Calif., died when she was struck by a vehicle on Mosul Airfield in Mosul, Iraq. Hines was assigned to the 108th Military Police, Combat Support Co., Fort Bragg.

Helicopter crew chief instructor Staff Sgt. Lori Anne Privette, 27, died when a UH-1N Huey helicopter crashed during a training flight. Privette joined the Marine Corps in August 1994, and had just returned from serving in Operation Iraqi Freedom.

Army Pfc. Holly J. McGeogh, 19, of Taylor, Mich. was among three Soldiers killed when a homemade bomb exploded along a road near Kirkuk, Iraq, as their convoy passed by. She and the two other Soldiers were assigned to Company A, 4th Forward Support Battalion, 4th Infantry Division, from Fort Hood.

Pfc. Nichole M. Frye, 19, of Lena, Wis., died in Baqubah, Iraq, when an improvised explosive device struck her convoy. Frye was assigned to Company A, 415th Civil Affairs Battalion, U.S. Army Reserve, Kalamazoo, Mich.

Capt. Gussie M. Jones, 41, died in Iraq. Jones was a surgical nurse assigned to the 31st Combat Support Hospital from Fort Bliss, Texas. Her death was as a result of a non-combat cause, possibly a heart attack. Jones served in the military for 15 years rising from the ranks to become an Army nurse in 1998.

Spc. Tyanna S. Felder, 22, of Bridgeport, Conn., died in Balad, Iraq, of injuries sustained in Mosul when her convoy vehicle was hit with an improvised explosive device. Felder was assigned to the Army's 296th Brigade Support Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Wash.

Pvt. Michelle Witmer, 20, died when her Humvee came under attack. She had been stationed in Baghdad with the 32nd Military Police Company of the Wisconsin National Guard. Her sister, Rachel, 24, is with the same unit, which had been expected to prepare within days to leave Iraq. Charity Witmer, Michelle's twin sister, was sent to Iraq as a medic with Company B of the Wisconsin Guard's 118th Medical Battalion.

Spc. Isela Rubalcava, 25, of El Paso, Texas, died in Mosul, when a mortar round hit near her. Rubalcava was assigned to the 296th Combat Support Battalion, 3rd Brigade, 2nd Infantry Division (Stryker Brigade Combat Team), Fort Lewis.

Pfc. Leslie D. Jackson, 18, of Richmond, Va., died in Baghdad when her military vehicle hit an improvised explosive device, as she was returning to Camp Eagle. Jackson was assigned to A Company, 115th Forward Support Battalion, 1st Cavalry Division, Ft. Hood.

Stranger Than Fiction A socially isolated IRS agent whose every move is documented by a disembodied female voice discovers that his life is the subject of a book currently being written by a best-selling author, whose creative block has stunted her repeated efforts to kill him off, in a quirky fantasy comedy written by Hollywood hot property Zach Helm and directed by Finding Neverland's Marc Forster. Harold Crick (Will Ferrell) lives a life of solitude. Kay Eiffel (Emma Thompson) can't seem to find a way to finish her latest book. Though Harold and Kay have never actually met, their fates are about to become intertwined in a most unusual manner.

Happy Feet In the world of the emperor penguin, a simple song can mean the difference between a lifetime of happiness and an eternity of loneliness. When a penguin named Mumble is born without the ability to sing the romantic song that will attract his soul mate, he'll have to resort to some fancy footwork by tap dancing his way into the heart of the one he loves. Directed by Babe mastermind George Miller, Happy Feet tells the tale of one penguin's quest for love, and features an all-star cast of vocal talent that includes Robin Williams, Hugh Jackman, Elijah Wood, Nicole Kidman, and Brittany Murphy.

Blood Diamond A South African mercenary and a Mende fisherman find their fates forever intertwined as they embark on a quest to obtain a rare and highly coveted pink diamond in director Edward Zwick's frantic adventure drama. Ripped from his family farm and forced to toil away in the sweltering South African diamond fields, Solomon Vandy (Djimon Hounsou) discovered an extraordinary rough stone of immeasurable value. Danny Archer (Leonardo DiCaprio) is a hired gun who specializes in the sale of so-called "blood diamonds" that are used to finance rebellions and terrorist organizations, and is currently serving time for smuggling. As a bloody civil war rages in Sierra Leone and Archer learns that Vandy has safely hidden the diamond in a place where no one would ever suspect, the pair enlist the aid of disillusioned American journalist Maddy Bowen (Jennifer Connelly) in recovering the treasure that has the power to save Vandy's family and provide the desperate Archer with a much-needed chance for redemption.
