Thumbs Up!

- To Brock Villareal, Joe Logan and Kristin Kornegay for administering CPR to a Kwaj resident who went into cardiac arrest last week.
- For the Roller special on 9/11.
 - To the safety guys, Jack Martindale and Corey Wiley, for the efficient and informative Supervisor Safety Stand Down. Their passion and diligence is appreciated.
 - To all the talented artists who participated in the Island Art show and to Denise Dorn for organizing the event.

It was a fun night out!

- To Mark Houseman for the overall condition of the adult pool and for the working lights. It looks great!
- To the Boy Scouts who placed flags in the housing areas for the anniversary of 9/11. It was a thoughtful tribute to those who lost their lives and a reminder of our resilience in the wake of such devastation.

MANIT MINUTE

Significance of the Marshall Islands flag: The deep blue background represents the Pacific Ocean. The white and orange bands represent the Ratak (Sunrise) and Ralik (sunset) chains, respectively. The customary symbolism of orange as the color of bravery and white as the color of peace are also recognized. The star represents the cross of Christianity, with each of the 24 points signifying a municipal district of the Marshall Islands. The four main points represent the major centers of Majuro, Ebeye, Jaluit and Wotje.

Thumbs Down!

- To the people who trashed the Pacific Club last weekend and left cans, broken bottles, cigarette butts and wrappers on the tables and floor. It's a small island; your actions reflect poorly on the rest of us.
- To the inconsiderate cigar and cigarette smokers at Bingo. Non-smokers shouldn't have to suffer second-hand smoke just because Bingo is held outside. Please be a bit more considerate.

THE RUMOR MILL

Col. Joseph Gaines addresses circulating rumors head-on. Rumors can earn from one to five ears. One ear is an unfounded rumor, while a rumor earning five ears is the truth.

Rumor: The RMI is not going to set up a satellite post office here on Kwajalein.

The government of the Marshall Islands is still working to establish postal services at some level on Kwajalein. Recently, the postmaster from Ebeye took applications from more than 15 residents who would like an RMI post office box on Kwajalein. U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll is not currently aware of any show stoppers for this. Ultimately, this decision rests with the government of the Marshall Islands and its postmaster.

THE KWAJALEIN HOURGLASS

The Kwajalein Hourglass is named for the insignia of the U.S. Army 7th Infantry Division, which liberated the island from the forces of Imperial Japan on Feb. 4, 1944.

The Kwajalein Hourglass is an authorized publication for military personnel, federal employees, contractor workers and their families assigned to U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll. Contents of the Hourglass are not necessarily official views of, or endorsed by, the U.S. Government, Department of Defense, Department of the Army or USAKA. It is published Saturdays in accordance with Army Regulation 360-1 and using a network printer by Kwajalein Range Services editorial staff.

Kwaj Civil Air Patrol member selected to attend prestigious CAP school in October

Hourglass Reports

Chuck Corway, a drafter for Kwajalein Range Services, was selected to attend the Civil Air Patrol National Staff College to be held Oct. 15-22 at CAP national headquarters at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala. NSC is the capstone course in CAP professional development and is designed for members who are or will be assuming positions of regional and national importance within CAP. It is taught by senior leaders and instructors from Air University; students engage in seminar discussions, case studies and exercises throughout the seven-day course.

Corway currently holds the grade of major and the aeronautical rating of observer in CAP. He first joined CAP as a cadet in December 1977, ultimately earning both the Billy Mitchell and Amelia Earhart cadet milestone awards in seven years of cadet service. He rejoined as a senior member in 2005, progressing through increasingly rigorous training and professional development requirements before being selected to attend NSC. On completion of NSC and other requirements, Corway will become eligible to receive the Gill Robb Wilson award – the highest professional development award CAP can bestow a member.

CAP is the volunteer civilian auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force and was founded on Dec. 1, 1941, seven days before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, Hawaii. During World War II, CAP pilots flew more than 500,000 hours for the U.S. Army Air Forces and rescued hundreds of crash survivors. CAP is now tasked with federal inland search and rescue missions in the continental U.S., Alaska, Hawaii and Puerto Rico, and has three primary missions: aerospace education, cadet programs and emergency services. They operate a fleet of over 550 single-engine light aircraft and over 1,125 emergency services vehicles nationwide, flying over 112,000 hours annually.

Corway explained why there is no CAP overseas cadet squadron on Kwajalein, saying, "Current CAP regulations only allow the formation of overseas cadet squadrons at U.S. Air Force overseas bases; the transient nature of Kwaj military and civilian personnel makes it difficult to sustain a membership base. That's why I currently maintain my active membership with my home squadron at Nellis Air Force Base and proudly call myself 'CAP's only active senior member on Kwajalein Atoll.'"

Kwajalein has its first Great American Challenge winner

Article and photo by Sheila Gideon
Managing Editor

Sixth grader Chad Sykes didn't want to finish fifth grade without a grand accomplishment, so he decided he would attempt to be the first Kwajalein student to complete the Great American Challenge. The challenge is open to all fifth grade students, and while some completed two to three parts of it, Sykes was the only one to complete all six tasks.

The challenge requires students to learn and recite six difficult tasks regarding American history. Sykes learned and recited "The Star Spangled Banner," the Pledge of Allegiance, the preamble of the U.S. Constitution, Abraham Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address," the U.S. presidents in chronological order and, finally, all 50 states and capitals in alphabetical order.

Sykes was only 11 years old when he completed the challenge. He practiced with his mother over several weeks to learn all six tasks. He said the hardest ones for him to master were the Gettysburg Address and learning the 50 states and capitals.

When asked why he decided to do the Great American Challenge, he said, "It seemed like a challenge and I like to do stuff that's harder for me."

The Great American Challenge was brought to Kwajalein by fifth grade U.S. History teacher Tarah Yurovchak. Her daughter learned and took the challenge nine years ago and can still recite all six to this day.

This year's fifth graders will also be given the opportunity to take the challenge.

New ferries coming in 2012

One of the four ferries being constructed for use on the runs between Ebeye and Kwajalein was recently completed and is shown here in Rhode Island. Each ferry will have a maximum capacity of 149. Current plans for the old ferries include keeping two of them for intra-atoll logistics.

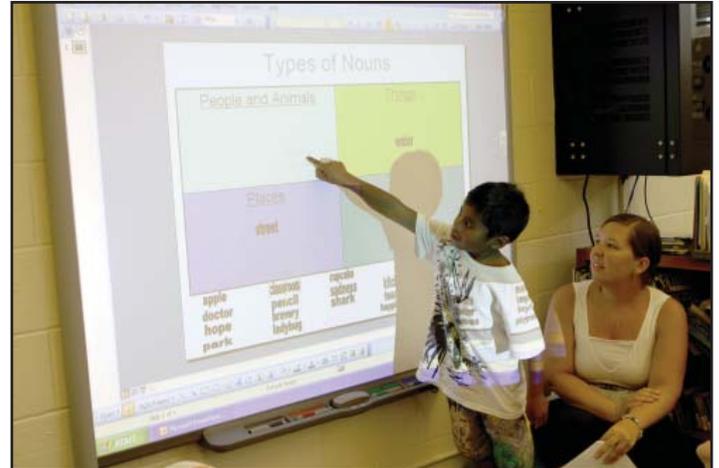

Smartboards encourage hands-on learning

Managing Editor

My, how the times have changed. When I was in elementary school, we used paper and pencil. Elementary students nowadays are much more technologically advanced and George Seitz Elementary School is on the bandwagon. Four new Smartboards were recently purchased for Kwajalein schools – two for the elementary and two for the high school. The Smartboards work with touch-screen technology and are an interactive learning tool that is common in classrooms throughout the U.S. They arrived in Kwajalein classrooms three weeks ago and the students and teachers love them already.

Anne Alrick, elementary computer teacher, has a Smartboard in her classroom. She said before the technology of the Smartboards, they used a sheet of white paper on the wall with a projector hooked up to the computer. Alrick would stand at the back of the class using the keyboard and mouse to give directions. The only visual cue for the students was the tiny mouse icon on the screen. Now, with the Smartboards, Alrick commands attention at the front of the class, using her hands to visually aid in the teaching experience. Especially with the younger classes, she likes to show them step by step exactly what and where they need to push. “To be able to see the process of how to do things on a computer [has] been very beneficial,” Alrick said. The boards are also equipped with markers in various colors which give teachers and students the ability to “draw” on the screen.

So far, Alrick said the biggest benefit is the excitement the kids have towards the boards. They come into class wanting to know what they will be learning on them that day. Second grader Lima Lelet said she likes to draw on the board and thinks it’s cool to do it with her hand. She likes taking turns with other students and said she looks forward to interactive learning games like Bingo.

Second grader Jacob Long learns about nouns using the new Smartboards in Anne Alrick’s computer class.

Besides the excitement factor, the boards are a way for teachers to conduct a group learning activity that also gives individual attention. In Alrick’s class, she used the boards to have the students “drag” different types of nouns into their correct category box. All the students got the benefit of the exercise while the individual student got to work hands-on.

Third graders learn one voice is all it takes

Article and photos by Sheila Gideon

Over ten years ago, one man set out on a mission to establish the first ever annual day of global ceasefire and non-violence with a fixed calendar date. Two years later, this man, Jeremy Gilley, succeeded when 192 member states of the United Nations unanimously adopted Sept. 21 as an annual day of global ceasefire and non-violence on the U.N. International Day of Peace.

This year's third grade class, taught by Tonya Thompson, read Gilly's book, Peace One Day, and began planning their movement to bring peace to Kwajalein.

The third graders designed and put up posters around the community and in the schools asking everyone to wear white on Wednesday as a symbol of peace and non-violence. Students also wrote letters to family and friends on- and off-island asking them to participate. Students and parents used e-mail and Facebook to promote Peace One Day too.

The basic concept of Peace One Day is: one voice is all it takes to make a difference. A difference was made and was easy to see with all the white worn around island Wednesday.

Another part of Peace One Day for the third graders was to make 1,000 paper cranes. The cranes represent their desire for there to be no sickness in our world. The class will box up and send the cranes to Callie Chavana, a Kwajalein resident who has been battling cancer this year. Chavana's daughter, Alakai, is in Thompson's class.

After lunch Wednesday, Thompson's class invited USAKA Commander Col. Joseph Gaines, Sgt. Maj. Hohn Wolf, KRS president Cynthia Rivera and parents to their class to talk about what the day meant to them.

"We want peace because we live in the same planet. Living in the same planet is like living in the same house," said student OJ DeBrum.

"We want to pray that the military people return home with peace," said Hannah Finley.

The class agreed it's important to promote peace now, so the world will be a better place for them when they grow up.

Col. Joseph Gaines thanks third grader Abbie Warren for promoting peace.

DISPATCH FROM ROI

Pies in the face help to raise $8,000 at Roi Chili Cook-off

By Laura Pasquarella-Swain, ECCF president
By Leslie Mead, ECCF secretary

On Monday, the residents of Roi-Namur, Enniburr (Third Island) and visitors from Kwajalein gathered together for the 2011 annual Enniburr Children's Christmas Fund Chili Cook-off.

Volunteers from Roi and Third Island gathered to set up, decorate and cook. They sold tickets, T-shirts, koozies, post cards and manned a beer donation tent. The doors opened at noon and the fun began. The music was a mix of Marshallese and American style. There were hamburgers, hotdogs, chicken plates and lumpia for sale along with sodas, waters and Gatorades.

There were nine chili entrees this year, including variations such as spicy and not so spicy, smoked pork chili, hamburger chilies and a chicken chili. Thirty people signed on as expert chili judges.

The winners were:

First place: Carol Rivard

Second place: Kevin Shoemaker

Third place: Robert Linstead

At 2 p.m., the master of ceremonies, Joe Coleman, got the big show started. First, Laura Pasquarella-Swain, ECCF president, asked Raymond DeBrum, principal of Enniburr Elementary School, to join her on stage. She presented him with a check for $200 to help pay the $10 school registration fee for 20 children on Enniburr. These fees are required by the Marshallese government and many families are not able to pay them. The ECCF committee has worked extensively with DeBrum and his wife Tenita, ECCF vice president, to identify qualifying families on Enniburr to receive this assistance.

Pasquarella-Swain also announced the formation of the ECCF scholarship fund, to assist the families of Enniburr's eighth graders in undertaking the costs of sending their children off-island for further education. The ECCF committed to provide a total of $1,000 in financial assistance to the families of the three eighth grade students with the highest grade point average, in awards of $500 and $250. The scholarship awards will be announced at the school's commencement ceremonies.

Next, the ECCF held their famous pie toss. This year's volunteers for the pie in the face were Cynthia Rivera, Mac McNeil, Conrad Nakasone and Ricky Everette. Tim Roberge started with an opening bid on Rivera for $1. Then the mayhem began, with bidding accelerating as the bidders began pooling their efforts. In total, $1,680 was raised for Rivera – provided McNeil would be the first to throw the pie. Rivera bravely suited up in a scuba mask, snorkel and plastic bag and McNeil did the honors with the first pie. The second highest bidder was Robert Linstead and he put pie number two in Rivera's face. The third throw was from Roberge since he got things rolling.

Next, it was McNeil's turn. Now that everyone was loosened up from the first pie in the face, things got really exciting. The starting bid was $20 and then increased from there. When the bidding reached $1,100, McNeil agreed to forgo the plastic covering – but only for more money. The bidders took up McNeil's challenge and raised the bid to $1,800. Then, it was McNeil's turn. This time, Rivera threw the first pie.

Shelley Easter then wrestled the microphone away from more "responsible" people and took everyone by surprise by soliciting bids to put a pie in the face of Roi's favorite former police officer and former ECCF president, Joe Coleman. Coleman's pie in the face raised $400.

Nakasone and Everette held their own pie toss and took one for the kids as well. Their donation added up to almost $2,000.

With money still coming in, the total money raised by the Chili Cook-off is in the area of $8,000.

The ECCF committee would like to warmly thank the 50 volunteers from Enniburr, Roi and Kwajalein who worked so hard to make the cook-off such a great success. Special thanks go out to public works, buildings and grounds crews, KPD, community activities, Robbie Amador and the Lerooj for their assistance. We all had fun working together to raise money for the Enniburr children's Christmas party and the future of education on Enniburr.

Carlos residents meet with Army, RMI reps

Representatives from U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll and the Marshallese government met with residents of Carlos in the school there Monday to explain the transfer of responsibility for water and power on that island to the Marshallese government. They also fielded questions from the community. Left, Lowell Alik, from the Marshall Islands Environmental Protection Agency, explains how the water catchment systems will work, including the primary catchments at houses and the use of the Army's catchment system as a backup for emergencies. Above right, KRS environmental manager Terri Hibberts explains the proper method for treating water to make it potable. The sign specifies that residents should either boil water taken from catchments or add a specified quantity of chlorine and wait at least 30 minutes. Residents expressed some concern about how they would get sufficient power to their homes and requested a future meeting with their government officials to address this.

Get in the mindset for Fire Prevention

As the national observance of Fire Prevention Week will soon be here, we may remember back to our youth. Every October the local fire department would have a firefighter come to our classroom at school to teach fire safety in the home. Other events offered an open house at the fire station and we would take a tour, ring the bell and put dirty smudges all over the fire trucks they kept in pristine shape. It seemed at the time that these men were big, muscular giants; in hindsight we were only three feet tall and all grown-ups were tall. One thing remains the same — every year has an October and we firefighters continue to reach out and educate our nation's youth. As studies indicate, children many times will remember and take lessons learned as a child into adulthood. Unfortunately, the brain can play pretty mean tricks on us. The lessons about home fire safety are still with us, but we many times forget it while living and working in other types of facilities. We all know that space heaters, candles and extension cords can be lethal at home if not properly used. But you might be surprised to find them in offices, warehouses, dormitories and other places with no concern of the safety boundaries learned as a youngster.

I encourage everyone to take a moment and review some of the local guidance provided in our own housing regulation. In Chapter 13 (please don't think as bad luck), you will find a wealth of information no matter what type of living quarters you may reside in. These are foundations to build on to have a fire safe community. No matter in family housing, bachelor quarters or at work, fire safety is extremely important.

Oct. 10-15 will be full of events in Fire Prevention Week activities and celebration. In the next few weeks, keep an eye out for additional information found in the Hourglass, on the AFN Roller or on bulletin boards. There will be something for all ages.

Join in with your fire department ensuring we live on the "Safest Islands in the Pacific."

KRS PROVIDES the Ri'katak Lunch Program for 50 guest students from Ebeye. These meals are supported by voluntary donations. Individuals, companies and different organizations voluntarily contribute to the program. The cost of each lunch is $3.25 daily per student and based on a 180-day school year; the total cost per student for the entire year is $586. Voluntary donations can be made in any amount up to and including a full year's worth of lunches. If you wish, send a donation to Janette Bishop in building 603, second floor. Checks should be made out to "KRS" and annotated in the remarks section to indicate "Ri'katak Lunch Program." For questions, e-mail Janette at Juanita.Bishop.ctr@smdck.smdc.army.mil or call 52225.

E-TALK. Never pour water with detergents into the storm drains. When in doubt, call KRS environmental for consultation.

SAFELY SPEAKING. An important and easy way to help protect yourself from food-borne illness is to frequently wash your hands. Hand washing will also help reduce your chances of catching a cold, the flu or pink eye.
