Altair nails 100% on NFL tracking

The Altair conference room was filled with jubilation Jan. 22, when a celebration was held in recognition of the 100 percent success rate for tracking New Foreign Launches (NFLs) in 1999.

NFLs are unannounced, non-cooperative launches from foreign countries. Information may not be available due to the satellite payload's mission and the diplomatic ties existing between the United States and the country conducting the launching activity.

NFLs are CAT-1 Tasking, the highest priority tasking of the U.S. Space Control Center. Altair has a minimum of three people on each crew to respond to NFLs, and is ready 24 hours a day to track new launches in its role as a contributing sensor to the U.S. Space Command's Space Surveillance Network (SSN). For example, Altair's radar coverage begins 26 minutes "time after launch" (TAL) for Russian launches and 17-18 minutes TAL for launches from China.

"The goal is to meet our mission requirements for collecting data and then transmitting the collected data to the Space Control Center at Cheyenne Mountain and other network sensors," said Herb Schmidt, Altair operation section leader. "Altair is the first radar in the U.S. Space Surveillance Network with coverage, due to KMR's geographic location, which is positioned in the primary launch corridors for most non-cooperative foreign launches. They typically launch west to east in our direc-

Advisory council debates semester calendar changes

By KW Hillis

A lively discussion on the merits of shortening the Christmas break, finishing the fall semester before the break or both broke out at the Kwajalein School Advisory Council (SAC) meeting Wednesday night.

As the last item on the council's agenda, the proposed school year calendar was the only source of debate between the SAC and the handful of parents present.

Sue Burt, mother of three, fired the opening salvo after Karen Ammann, superintendent of schools, introduced the proposed calendar.

"I'd like to see a shorter Christmas vacation and, if possible, have none or more [days left in the semester] after Christmas. I had a teacher mention to me that she felt she had to finish any real work before Christmas," Burt said.

Burt pointed out that after the 2½-week break for Christmas vacation, students return for two three-day weekends and their final exams for the second quarter.

One sticking point in the issue is the 180-school day requirement, according to school officials. Although the fall and spring semesters don't have to be exactly 90 days each in length, the difficulty of fitting the first 90 days in before Christmas was discussed.

Both Ammann and Stephen Howell, high school principal, voiced concerns about losing faculty and said it would be difficult for personnel to travel off-island during the holidays if the Christmas break was shortened.

"It is true, though, that teachers are a little different than other em-tion to achieve Earth orbit."

Altair has been supporting the detection and tracking of NFLs since 1983. Only twice during that 17-year period has 100 percent success been achieved—in 1993 and now 1999.

During the celebration, Bevan Jacobs, Altair sensor leader, gave a presentation on the history of KREMS, accompanied by photos of the construction of the Altair sensor.

The Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA), which spawned Altair, was formed in 1958 in reaction to the first successful Soviet Union ICBM and the launching of Sputnik I, the first man-made Earth-orbiting satellite, in 1957.

In 1976, the U.S. Air Force requested a sensor for detecting NFLs through the Pacific corridor to provide a Pacific barrier. Two years later, the Air Force funded Altair to become a space detection and tracking sensor for NFLs and deep space objects. Presently, Altair generates $12.5 million annual funding for KMR space surveillance.

Lt. Col. Ray Jones, KMR commander, handed out commander's coins, and John Wallace, RSE director of operations, gave plaques to the Altair department, Schmidt and the following spacetrack operations directors: Mat Castleberry, Tommie Courtney, Robert Jackson, Dave Saunders and Carol Golby-Saunders. Coins and plaques were also given to assistant operations directors, Michael Green, Bruce Kopp, Greg Langenheim, Eric Brand and Todd Chaponot. Special awards were presented to transmitter technicians Joe Abarca, John Rowland and George Talbot.

Both Jones and Wallace congratulated the crew on its success.

Recognizing the significance of this achievement, Jones said, "The ability to acquire and track NFLs is critical to the national interest. The hard work put into this task demonstrates the great teamwork throughout the organization."

Added Wallace, "Operators have to make real time decisions in completing their tasks, and they don't get a second chance."

Schmidt presented a demonstration of an NFL simulation for the visitors to show the pressure of those decisions.

Several functions take place: As soon as Altair is informed of an NFL, an alarm is sounded to signal to everyone the Altair system must quickly be returned to an operational state. The operations director configures the Altair system to position the antenna for a NFL search.

The search consists of using a 75-degree scan along the horizon. While scanning, the Altair system can filter out objects that come into the beam and are not part of the new launch complex. This filtering system is performed by five complex algorithms, which provide the intelligence for target detection and lock-on.

During the simulation, Courtney, primary operations director, was watching the display and identifying various targets. Kopp, assistant operations director, called out different targets that were showing up on the scan. Meanwhile, Green simulated communications with Cheyenne Mountain. Excitement filled the room as they searched for the NFL until they finally located the target.

Once the NFL is detected, it is tracked to collect data that will assist U.S. Space Command in cataloging the newly launched satellite.

"I ensure that the systems operate correctly and that all criteria are met and the data is transmitted to SSN in a timely manner," explained Green, "We're always busy," Courtney added. "It's a difficult job, and I appreciate all the support from everyone involved."

Jeff Beckley, RSE Kwajalein technical manager, was one of the visitors who witnessed the action in the control room.

"That was a great demonstration," Beckley said. "It emphasized the significance of 100 percent NFL coverage."

ployees in that they have the entire summer off. That's a truck load of time off," parent Dotty Miller countered.

Miller added, "A lot of us only get off island once a year. [Teachers] can go all summer. I'm more concerned for my child ... I'm looking at it from a parent's perspective."

An added problem, according Ammann, is that some parents take their children off-island as early as Thanksgiving and "we still have some kids that have not returned."

This problem is compounded by the fact the school cannot dictate that the children be at school for a certain number of days.

The council will discuss the issue at its next meeting, Feb. 16, and may take action at that time. Until then, anyone with suggestions/comments on the proposed school calendar are invited to call Ammann, 53761, or Howell, 52011.

Communication and mentoring featured in upcoming talks

By Jim Bennett

When Richard H. Tyre comes to Kwajalein, he won't just be visiting his son, Jeff.

Tyre, the assistant director of the Uncommon Individual Foundation, will give two presentations on topics he works with daily.

"Non-verbal Communication Between Adults" will be given at 6:30 p.m. Sunday at CAC Room 6, and "How to Attract Mentoring You Need," at 3:30 p.m. Monday at CAC Room 7.

According to Tyre, 55 percent of all communication is non-verbal. Among adults, between husbands and wives and parents and children, that percentage can increase to 60 or 70 percent.

How people communicate with body language and other non-verbal methods will be the focus of this discussion.

Meanwhile, Tyre argues that mentoring can be one of the most powerful relationships for changing behavior and that successful mentoring is "protege driven."

"We stress, in contrast to conventional mentoring practice, that real mentoring is not limited to only one-to-one meetings with an assigned mentor," Tyre wrote in a letter describing his program. "Successful proteges turn everyone who can help them into some degree of mentor."

Based in Radnor, Penn., the Uncommon Individual Foundation is a non-profit organization that develops mentoring programs, trains mentors, researches the subject and evaluates programs.

Kom ruwainene

"Kom ruwainene" is the Marshallese way to say, "Welcome."

Spc. Jiovanny Alicea arrived recently from Ft. Stewart, Ga., along with his wife, Maria, and daughter, Laura, 3 months.

Jiovanny is a postal clerk.

His thoughts on arrival: "This will be a good assignment — just like home in Puerto Rico."

Bob Sholar is one of the most recognizable faces on the sidelines at an event run by the Kwajalein Running Club.

Sholar sets the pace for KRC as first, last person at each event

(Editor's Note: One in an occasional series on volunteerism by Kwajalein and Roi-Namur residents.)

By Gwyne Copeland

Bob Sholar is generally the first one to arrive at a race and the last one to leave.

His friends say he's the heart and soul of the Kwajalein Running Club.

The club has been around in one form or another since the 1960s, but during the 1990s they say Sholar has held the group together.

Bill Edwards came back to Kwajalein for his second tour last year and said he was surprised to see Sholar was still a leader in the club. He thought, "It's got to be a sacrifice now that he has two young boys."

Sholar arrived on Kwaj 20 years ago when he was young and single. He ran nearly all the races for years. And he was good at it, too.

"Bob owns the record for the Rustman at 2:06:21," said Ed Hillman, KRC president.

Sholar was a serious runner for years. He's run the Boston, Berlin and Honolulu marathons. A sore hip keeps him on the sidelines now. But unlike other runners who hang up their cleats, Sholar hasn't given up the club.

He jokes he was shamed into helping after participating for years without doing his part. But Hillman and Edwards think Sholar is just being modest.

"Bob was the best runner on island then. To do his share Bob worked 10 fun runs so he could compete in the bigger races," Edwards said.

He added, "Even though he can't run, he freely volunteers his time to be race director at all of the 22 events."

That's no small feat, according to Edwards. For big events like the New Year's Eve run there are T-shirts to order, volunteers to coordinate, the pavilion to reserve and food to arrange. "It can be a pretty big task to do that constantly. Well above the call of duty."

So why does Sholar do it? "I've gotten a lot from the running club," Sholar said, adding that he likes to see people come here and do what they never thought they could.

"The day after an event it's really fun. During the awards, say for the Rusty Family, seeing the kids, it's really fun," Sholar said.

When he thinks of Sholar, Edwards said he is reminded of the old adage, "Ten percent of the people do 90 percent of the work." In this case, Edwards thinks it's more like, "Five percent do 95 percent of the work, and Bob is key to that."

Such praise brings a blush to Sholar, who insists the credit for KRC's success belongs to others.

School rules require service for Bigej trip

By Loren Lindborg

There's a new school rule this year — a rule that is designed to encourage students to help their class by requiring a minimum number of service hours. A student who fails to get enough service hours will not be able to go on the annual Bigej trip on May 6.

"It's an excellent idea and justification for getting students involved by means of reward," said Stephen Howell, high school principal. "It prepares students for their future after high school."

High school students must perform 10 hours of community service. Junior high school students must perform five hours of service.

Created by the Student Government Association (SGA) subcommittee last year, the rule was designed to get students involved in class activities and improve behavior in class meetings, according to school officials.

At first a mere suggestion, the idea became a proposal, which was reviewed by faculty and administration, who approved the plan quickly. The plan went into effect this year, and since then, details have been worked out by SGA as to what does and doesn't qualify as service hours.

Service hours are activities beneficial or related to school events. Such activities include the Aluminum Can Recycling Youth (ACRY) program, working on school dance committees, participating in Marshall Islands Club activities, selling or delivering Christmas trees, raising and lowering the school flag and decorating senior lockers.

"It is a great idea," said SGA advisor Bonita Oyamot. "It develops a sense of class unity and allows students to contribute their time, ideas and energy to school activities."

The only exception to the new rule would be when a new student arrives during the second semester of a school year.

Officer Billiam Bondrik stands proudly as the newest constable-turned-officer at the Kwajalein Police Department. Bondrik completed 16 weeks of training to become the ninth Marshallese constable to attain the rank through the training program.

Constable becomes KPD officer

Billiam Bondrik realized a dream Saturday when he turned in his constable's badge and took the oath of a police officer with the Kwajalein Police Department.

During a swearing-in ceremony at the police department, attended by fellow officers, family and friends, Bondrik swore to uphold the laws.

In so doing, Bondrik became the ninth Marshallese constable over the past several years to complete the Officer Training Program.

The program accepts Marshallese constables and trains them to become police officers.

What's the difference?

"It's a lot tougher than being a constable," Bondrik said.

Constables do work in law enforcement, but, for example, do not carry weapons and cannot make arrests. They are used primarily as translators for officers who do not speak Marshallese.

The program works like a police academy in the states. The basic training lasts 14 weeks, followed by 12 more weeks of field training. Trainees learn about the various codes that apply to Kwajalein including the Uniform Code of Military Justice, U.S. federal codes, state of Hawaii laws, USAKA regulations and Republic of the Marshall Islands codes. Trainees also receive physical and weapons training.

"I expect great things from him. He's proven he can get the mission done."

— Terry Hardy
KPD chief

"Specific qualities looked at in a constable (selected for the program) are his or her ability to complete a rigorous training program, their ability to communicate effectively with community members and personal conduct," said police Sgt. Roger Reed.

Bondrik previously worked in the Marine Department for years and "always thought about (law enforcement)."

He started out as a constable in 1992, rising to the rank of senior constable in 1996 where he served until he began officer training in July.

"He's on the ball," said Chief Terry Hardy. "I expect great things from him. He's proven he can get the mission done."

Animal Planet rocks and roars on Kwajalein

By Peter Rejcek

One nine-year Kwajalein veteran summed up the Animal Planet experience as simply, "The best band we've ever had."

And former Kwaj kid Andrea Lindborg, on island visiting family, said of her Emon Beach jam session on Monday with the band, "They were just so talented ... They had so much groove."

"It was great," added Lindborg, who plays the trumpet and attends Oberlin Conservatory of Music in the states.

Also joining the rhythm and blues band on stage Monday was Kwaj student David Zakeri, who took lead guitar from the group's lead vocalist, Michael Lee Jackson.

Animal Planet rocked the Yokwe Yuk Club Saturday and Sunday nights, with a final performance early Monday evening on the beach. The band mixed popular tunes like AC/DC's classic, "Back in Black," with their own original sound. Tunes vacillated between bone-jarring rock and blues riffs that reached down to the toes of the soul and tugged it inside out.

Apparently, Kwaj also touched the soul of the band members.

In a letter from Jackson dated Jan. 23 on the band's webpage to state-side fans, he wrote:

"We arrived a few days early, and basked in the splendor of this island paradise. But you probably don't want to hear about that, especially if it's cold where you are ... I won't mention the boat ride out to the deserted tropical island, or the fact that it's always around 80 degrees here, generally sunny, with gorgeous sunrises and sunsets ... It's really something. Our hosts, particularly Steve Snider, have been fantastic and we're in love with the people here."

Steve Snider, superintendent of entertainment services, said public response could bring the band back for an encore.

"Animal Planet thoroughly loved Animal Planet played the Yokwe Yuk Club both Saturday and Sunday nights. Kwajalein, and the community treated them very well. They very much want to come back here, and we are going to try our best to bring them back," Snider said. "Bands can make repeat performances."

Those interested in a repeat performance can contact Snider at ssnider@kls.usaka.smdc.army.mil.

"The better the response, the better chance I will be able to book them in the future," he said.

Based on popular opinion, the landing of Animal Planet on Kwaj represented a higher caliber of entertainment than normally enjoyed here.

"We have had a lot of very good bands lately, but I must say that Animal Planet has got to be at the top of the list," Snider agreed. "The big difference is that most of the bands that have been doing the DoD tours are made up of people that belong to other groups and have gotten together for this specific tour."

"Animal Planet is at a totally different level," he explained. "They have all been together for awhile and are at a point that they will make it 'big.' They are going back into the studio after this tour to make a new album. We heard a number of their new singles that will be going on the CD. They are also making a live album, as well."

KYC Commodore's Cup Series speeding along

Opus takes first place with 16-second lead

By Hal Dunn
Kwajalein Yacht Club

The racing action came fast and furious in the near-perfect sailing conditions Monday during the second race in the Kwajalein Yacht Club's Commodore's Cup Series.

Mike Herrington in Shadow and Charlie Henson in M49 held on to early leads until late in the race when the winds picked up. Conditions that by now favored the larger boats prevailed until the finish, allowing many boats to sustain speeds in excess of seven knots.

No one held the lead for long, with first place changing hands five times on the final two legs. Finally, with just a half-mile to go, Hal Dunn in Opus managed a pass over Bruce Premo in Moonshine for a 16-second win.

While the action down the home stretch was exciting, events on board Windwalker contained their own element of drama. Sometime during a tack the rudder became jammed hard over, which left skipper Chuck Burt with little or no control over his chosen course. Miraculously, Burt was able to repair the damage and continue the race without further incident.

The Opus, second from left, skippered by Hal Dunn, won last Monday's Commodore's Cup race sponsored by the Kwajalein Yacht Club. The racing series, held throughout the upcoming year, will last 24 races. Participants must finish 12 of the races to qualify for the Cup, which is awarded based on a point system related to the finishes.

The Commodore's Cup includes 24 races in 2000, though the first was held in December, according to Ed Harris, KYC publicist.

Participants must finish 12 of the 24 races to qualify for the Cup, which is awarded based on a point system related to the finishes.

The next race in the Commodore's Cup Series will be held on Monday. Skippers' meeting is at 10 a.m. in front of the Small Boat Marina. Racing will start around 11:30 a.m. The route will be announced.

Continental changes flight schedule

By Barbara Johnson

Continental Micronesia will follow a new schedule as of Jan. 31. The days of arrival and departure remain the same, but the times will change.

Flight 956, originating in Guam, will now arrive at Kwajalein at 5:55 p.m. and depart for Honolulu at 6:45 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Check-in time is from 2:00 to 4:30 p.m. The flight will arrive in Hono at 3:10 a.m.

Flight 957, originating in Honolulu, will leave Hono at 7:10 a.m. and arrive at Kwajalein at 1:00 p.m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays. It departs Kwajalein at 1:45 p.m., and arrives in Guam at 7:00 p.m. Check-in time at Kwaj is 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

As always, make sure to reconfirm your reservations. Questions should be directed to HRO, Commercial Services office, 52660, Continental Travel, 51013, or the AMC office, 52169. The daily flight information recording is at 53589.

This information can also be obtained by KLS personnel via the public folders under International Flight Schedules in the Aviation folder.

Based on the popular Saturday morning television cartoon series, Doug Funnie faces every teenager's dilemma — doing what is right or what is popular. (87 minutes)
Richardson Theater, 7:30p.m.

Summer of Sam (R, New Release)

Based on the famous summer of 1977, which produced the first serial killer in New York City's history. With the media playing a role in creating mass fear and paranoia, the whole city becomes a hotbed of trepidation and panic. Directed by Spike Lee, this thriller captures human emotions at their most vulnerable. (John Leguizamo, Adrien Brody, Mira Sorvino, Jennifer Esposito, Anthony LaPaglia) (142 minutes)
Yokwe Yuk Theater, 8:00 p.m.

Blues Brothers 2000 (PG-13)

Upon his release, now-brotherless Blues Brother Jake Elwood puts the band back together with the help of a golden-voiced strip joint bartender and a 10-year-old orphan. There are good celebrity cameos by James Brown, Isaac Hayes and others. (Dan Aykroyd, John Goodman)
Tradewinds Theater, Roi-Namur, 8:00 p.m.

Sunday

Rope (Classic, NR, 1948)

Hitchcock's 'filmed play experiment,' shot in continuous 10-minute takes. Two school friends kill a man for the intellectual thrill of it, then hide the body in their apartment while giving a party. (Jimmy Stewart, John Dall, Farley Granger) (80 minutes)

An eclectic group of jazz musicians performed for the community last Saturday night at the CAC.

Local jazz group jams CAC

By Loren Lindborg

An eclectic group of talented musicians joined together to form a one-time only jazz group Saturday night at the CAC.

Strung together over a week's time, the band created an hour of material through only four practices. The group of musicians, most of whom were accustomed to different musical material, came together through several days of practice.

Andrea Lindborg, a trumpet player and college senior studying music at Oberlin Music Conservatory, put the group together.

The band consisted of Lindborg,

David Zakeri, alto sax; Dick Shields clarinet; Michael Williamson, trombone; Stephan Notarianni, percussion; Sonson Wiehe, bass; Ron Curtis, guitar; Ryan Mawhar, keyboards; and Tony Correa, vocals.

The set list included about seven songs plus an encore performance. Two were original compositions by Lindborg, titled "Sway" and "Jean-Pierre." Another untitled composition was written by Zakeri. Cover songs included the George Gershwin classic from Porgy and Bess, "Summertime," an Al Jarreau song called "Mas Que Nada," and "Sister Sadie," by Horace Silver.
