U.S. Army Kwajalein Atoll, Republic of the Marshall Islands

Roi Rats express concerns at town hall

By Peter Rejcek

A small but inquisitive audience greeted Col. Curtis L. Wrenn on Roi-Namur Wednesday night for that island's first town hall meeting with the new USAKA/KMR commander.

Wrenn acknowledged Roi's independent spirit in his opening remarks, recognizing privacy as a key component to residents' quality of life there.

"Quality of life is different as you look at the different entities that encompass the United States Army Kwajalein Atoll-Kwajalein Missile Range," Wrenn said. Wrenn added, as he did at last week's Kwajalein Town Hall meeting, that mission requirements can and will take priority over quality of life in the arena of funding.

Wrenn noted that the installation's budget has been in decline for much of the last decade, when it peaked at about $199 million in 1992. Last year's budget was in the neighborhood of $147 million, he said.

"We have been in a reduction since 1992," Wrenn said.

One apparent casualty of budget constraints is a proposal to construct a new chapel on Roi-Namur, last year's top issue at Kwajalein's Family Action Plan meeting. Wrenn said that will not happen, explaining that an alternative site will be found for parishioners. The current chapel building, near the Roi airport terminal, is in severe disrepair.

Money was the thread that tied together many of the issues raised by residents, some of whom expressed frustration over perceived inequities in spending habits for Kwaj and Roi. For instance, several residents objected to the cost of the Kwajalein downtown beautification project, claiming the project ran over budget. USAKA/KMR officials said the project did exceed its original budget. The final figure, however, is not available at this time, but will be published in an upcoming Hourglass. The youth skate park under construction at the Dally tennis courts and the renovation at the Yokwe Yuk Club were also points of contention.

"It all happens on Kwaj," said a resident. "It's time to share the wealth."

It's not the first time that Sgt. Scott Ross has been part of an invasion from Fort Wainwright, Alaska, which permanently changed the face of Kwajalein and Roi-Namur. Previously here in 1997 and 1998, he arrived at Kwaj a week ago as part of an advance team to prepare for C Company, 864th Engineer, which will be busy with a trio of major projects in the coming months.

"It's great to see something you built," said Ross, who was on island in 1997 when Building 1010 and additions to the FPQ-19 facility were built, and in 1998 when his platoon built the Roi Small Boat Marina.

Ross has also worked on temporary projects on Kwaj. He was on the island when Typhoon Paka hit.

We interrupt this paper, to give you the Emmys

In the states, it's Emmy time. Time for television to honor, well, itself, and even out here, we got a suprisingly large number of the nominated shows.

The Hollywood buzz currently surrounds the shocking 18 nominations for The West Wing and The Sopranos. I've heard good things about both.

Kwajalein started getting the first season of The West Wing a couple weeks ago, and I've caught snippets, but frankly, I've got other things to do than get caught up in another soap opera. My life is enough in itself.

For those of you who have missed it, The West Wing stars Martin Sheen as the president of the United States and Rob Lowe as one of his men. The cast includes other big names including a guy from L.A. Law, I think, and Moira Kelly, the gal who taught the hockey player to figure skate in — what was that movie called?

Anyway, they have presidential adventures, as they determine the fate of the free world.

The show is competing against HBO's The Sopranos, which is about the mafia and is a cable show, so they can use foul language and show lots of stuff you wouldn't see on prime time network television. But then critics love that stuff. Joining them in the hunt for best drama is ER, Law&Order and The Practice, naturally. I am an ER fan, but honestly, the show went on life support last season. I hope they lose.

Now let's talk actors and actresses in a drama.

Ladies first. I recognize the judge from Judging Amy and Julianna Margulies (Nurse Hathaway) of ER, and we just started seeing Sela Ward in Once and Again. I've missed it, so I can't say anything about it. The other folks, who I don't recognize, are from The Sopranos.

For the men. Who could say no to the president, played by Martin Sheen, or some guy named James Gandolfini of The Sopranos? Of course, Dennis Franz of NYPD Blue is on the list, along with Sam Waterston and Jerry Orbach of Law&Order. Heck, any guy named Gandolfini has my vote and I haven't even seen the show.

For best comedy, we got four of the five nominees out here — Everybody Loves Raymond, Frasier, Friends and Will & Grace. One sitcom is as good as another, but I'm pretty tired of Friends and I just can't get into Will & Grace.

I guess the folks on Roi get the fifth nominee, Sex and the City, because I saw it last time I was up there. Again, it's a cable show the critics love.

All the usual suspects got nominations for acting including Frasier, Dharma, Raymond and both Will and Grace.

But it's hard to get excited about the Emmys when you're not in the states surrounded by the hoopla. So,

Clarification

with that in mind, we offer, "The Hourglass Emmys," for the 2000 season.

Best Sitcom: *M*A*S*H* on Flashback TV. How can you beat Hawkeye, Trapper John and B.J.? Arguably, the greatest show ever because it's as funny today as it was when it was produced. It's the perfect Army show and should be on twice daily.

Worst Sitcom: They're all bad, except *M*A*S*H*, but a tie goes to Sabrina, the Teenage Witch and Boy Meets World. Here's wishing a spell would eliminate both.

Show that would be better if it was at a better time: Through no fault of their own, CPN shows major league baseball starting at 5 a.m., noon and 9 p.m. It's enough to make a guy learn how to program his VCR, but you inevitably run into some schmuck who has to mention the score before you see the tape.

On a side note: We're very pleased Monday Night Football starts at 7 p.m. this season instead of 8 p.m. Some of us need our beauty rest, but not at the expense of good football or Dennis Miller calling the game.

Show that should have died years ago: Beverly Hills 90210. Come on, these folks are middle-aged now. I caught the 10th season opener last week (yeah, count 'em, 10), and for a group that's been through so much, they don't handle crises very well these days. We could spend days talking about what's wrong with this show. Hard to believe the creator of Charlie's Angels and Fantasy Island came up with this mess.

Show that most improves your vocabulary: Dawson's Creek. Do you know any teens who talk like this? Of course, they can't put real teen dialog on television, unless it's cable. In any case, at my house it's, "Honey, get the thesaurus. Dawson is coming on."

Best show when you don't take it seriously: Buffy, The Vampire Slayer. You can't even take the title seriously, and the show is even more fun.

Well, that's all we have time for today, ladies and gentlemen. The show is on at 7:30 p.m. next Thursday on Channel 9. Please don't tell me who won.

CDC earns national accreditation status for program changes

By Bob Fore
Feature Writer

Over the last two years the Kwajalein Child Development Center staff have made many changes, including placing more emphasis on Marshallese language, art, and literature in the classroom environment and incorporating more exposure for the children to the surrounding environment in their overall learning experience.

As a result of all that hard work, Kwajalein's CDC program was recently granted accreditation by the National Association for the Education of Young Children (NAEYC), the largest and most widely recognized professionally sponsored accreditation system. The NAEYC evaluates early childhood programs nationwide.

"With the emphasis the military places on child care, all Army child care centers are required to be certified by the NAEYC," said Trina Tiffany, Kwajalein's Child Development Center supervisor. "Approximately two years ago, the CDC staff began with an intensive self-study, collecting information from parents, teachers, administrators and classroom observation."

The self-study pinpointed weaknesses, such as the lack of Marshallese cultural studies and the lack of use of the outside environment in the program.

Once the best methods of making the necessary improvements were determined, corrective actions were undertaken.

A formal request for certification was submitted to the NAEYC in 1999 by the CDC. An outside trainer, familiar with the certification process, arrived on Kwaj last October to assist local teachers. She provided a series of valuable workshops and personal evaluations for the CDC staff.

Two of the most important areas that come under consideration during the certification process are in the areas of child/teacher interaction and in the curriculum.

"Emphasis in our program is on the children's relationship with the staff and helping each individual child grow and learn," Tiffany said. "We want to look at the child as an individual, so as to develop the skills that they will need intellectually, socially, emotionally and physically."

Only 7 percent of the child care centers, preschools, kindergartens and before- and after-school programs are able to meet the rigorous standards set by that organization. This affects some 684,103 children as of May 2000. Approximately 15,000 programs are actively seeking this accreditation, according to a NAEYC press release.

"The heart of the NAEYC accreditation focuses on the child's experience," said NAEYC spokeswoman Barbara Willer. "The process carefully considers all aspects of a program including health and safety, staffing, staff qualifications and physical environment."

In April, an NAEYC independent evaluator arrived on island for the formal evaluation. The results were then judged by a team of national experts who decided to grant the accreditation.

"It was truly a learning process for everyone involved," CDC teacher Judy McLaughlin said. "In my case, it was putting a new perspective on learning areas that have worked for me in the past. It really involved new ways of thinking to incorporate a broader scope of skills and goals so as to reach all of the children according to their abilities and interests."

For CDC teacher Caroline McQuade, "this certification means that even though the children may come to Kwaj from all over the world, they can be guaranteed the very highest quality of education and national standards."

Research by the NAEYC supports the value of accreditation for children. Children's language and social skills especially benefit from the better quality of accredited programs.

"Not only do I think we have a good program, but it is reassuring for both the parents and staff to have someone with experience in this area and with the children's best interests in mind to come in and evaluate our program," Tiffany observed. "They came in and checked everything, not just the paperwork. It was obvious that their primary concern was what occurred in the classroom."

Building 1010 additions on construction slate ...

ment is on the runway, it blew a huge air bubble up in the middle. They had us out there filling sandbags to try to hold it down," Ross said. "Fifty or 60 of us. On the radio, they were warning everyone to stay inside and we were out there filling sandbags."

Ross, along with Pvt. Brad Yamamoto, and Spc. Larry Tyler, were in Building 1759 last Saturday, preparing to inventory construction materials for the upcoming projects.

Sgt. 1st Class Kimball Merriweather, C Company Deployment first sergeant, after checking on Ross' group, left for the lumberyard where the remainder of the advance team, Sgt. Jeffrey Moran, Spc. Tyron Branch and Pvt. Jason Apt, were inventorying lumber.

There are three large projects facing the two platoons of C Company of the 864th Engineers. One platoon will be building two additions to Building 1010 — the KMR Telemetry Center and the KMR Space Surveillance Center. The other platoon will be building a new Consolidated Preventive Maintenance facility on Lagoon and 9th Street containing Preventive Maintenance, Small Engine Repair, Self-Help store, Change of Occupancy Maintenance Building and grounds shop and Custodial Maintenance, said Doug Vander Veen, RSE project manager.

The recon team from Alaska landed four weeks ago "to coordinate billeting, dining facilities [and the] location of the projects," Merriweather said. The advance team, which arrived just over a week ago, "is setting up for the main body ... inventorying all the building materials" and reorganizing.

The soldiers, who will arrive in two groups of 24 each, one group tomorrow and one next Saturday, will have to "start work as soon as they hit the ground," Merriweather said.

Merriweather explained that the troops would be working six days a week, between 10 to 12 hours a day, to get the job done by the due date.

"All the projects will be done by Dec. 15. They will all be on the plane that day," said Jim Landgraff, USAKA/KMR troop support construction manager.

Other than preparatory work, C Company will get minimal help from the shops on island.

"Our group has done all the demolition so far," Vander Veen said. "We've transplanted 26 trees and cleared the site at the maintenance facility on Lagoon and 9th street. At the Space Surveillance and Telemetry site, three large air conditioning units have been moved and we removed the asphalt to prepare for the new facility behind Building 1010.

"At least one person from each FOM shop will assist the troops throughout the project," Vander Veen said. "But this is a training mission for the [company], so they will be doing the majority of the work. We don't want to take away any benefit from their training."

Men and women are assigned to C Company as carpenters, plumbers and electricians, Merriweather said. They get to hone their skills when deployed to different locations throughout the world.

"Construction in the field is called Theater of Operations," Merriweather said. "The structures [on Kwaj] are permanent structures. This is like a finished project" including electrical and plumbing. Some deployment locations can only offer building of temporary structures, he added.

Last year, Ross said that he was in Kosrae, building high school bathrooms, remodeling a police station and building a water catchment.

"The best part about our job is when the building is finished, you can stand there and look at your building and say, 'Okay, I helped build that.' Knowing it's going to be there for years to come," Ross said.

Vision screening, TB tests for students underway until October

Kris Brown

Kwajalein Hospital

Vision screening at the elementary and junior-senior high schools for students in all grades is being given throughout the month of September and into the first week of October.

Students who wear glasses should bring them to school on the day of testing. Students will be tested with and without glasses. A student who wears contact lenses does not need to remove them.

At the time of the vision screening, students in even grades will also undergo a tuberculosis skin test. A permission slip will be sent home from the students' school. It must be signed by the parent or guardian or the test will not be given.

TB skin testing is a requirement of the Kwajalein School System. If the test is not administered at the school, the parent or guardian will need to bring the student to the hospital for the test. A TB skin test within the last six months exempts a student. If the child has had a previous positive test, he or she will not be tested.

Test documentation will be placed on the students' health card, which is part of their cumulative folder. The TB skin test will also be documented in the students' medical records at the hospital.

Parents will receive written notification of the students' vision and TB skin test results.

Beach program left up to residents ...

Said resident Bridget Rankin, "Let's save money and spend it elsewhere ... You have to be responsible for your budget."

USAKA/KMR officials countered that per capita recreation fund spending on Roi is nearly double compared to Kwaj. In fiscal year 1999, the recreation fund spent $909 per resident at Roi-Namur, while per resident spending on Kwajalein was $507. There are about 2,200 people on Kwaj and 200 on Roi, according to USAKA/KMR Public Affairs.

Lloyd Jordan, Residential Support Division manager, said the recreation fund is finally recovering after almost becoming insolvent when it was used to cover base operation projects in the past. Jordan said the rec fund enjoys about $2 million in profits, which are used to fund everything from the small boat marinas to the golf courses of both islands — ventures which are normally subsidized by other rec fund sources. Other projects, such as road pavement, are funded with base funds.

"Money is not a panacea for everything," Wrenn noted. "We have unfunded requirements across the board."

Bert Scott, director of USAKA/KMR Installation Management, said residents should concentrate on what their needs are on Roi and express them to the command. Officials requested Roi residents put together a top ten list of project needs and submit them to USAKA/KMR.

A day at the beach

Wrenn also asked residents to decide for themselves on how best to regulate the island's so-called Adopt-an-Area policy, in which residents are allowed to adopt a spot on the public beach. Some spots simply sport hammocks and a deck while others approach the opulence of a Waikiki beach condo resort.

"I'm impressed with what I saw," Wrenn told the crowd. "My concern is that the baggers [Kwajalein commuters] feel like outsiders when they go to the beach."

Wrenn said he wanted the community to decide on a standard code of how the area should look, as long as it adheres to standard building codes and fosters an appearance that the public is welcome.

"You know what you want your community to look like," Wrenn said.

Karin Robas, Roi-Namur Community Activities superintendent, said a meeting is scheduled for Saturday with the Adopt-an-Area custodians to discuss the issue, which first came up at the end of last year. There are currently 18 adopted spots, according to Robas.

"Since this first came up, it seems more Kwaj residents have come down and made themselves at home," Robas said.

Wrenn gave Roi residents until Dec. 1 to resolve the matter.

Otherwise: "I will play big daddy and we'll tear them all down and start from ground zero."

Now playing

Jordan reported that a contract will soon be signed to repair all eight movie projectors on Roi and Kwaj for a total of about $10,000. Currently, the Yokwe Yuk Theater and Tradewinds Theater are operating with only one projector each. Jordan said other upgrades are also in consideration.

"We're also looking at the viability of replacing the projectors with new ones," he said.

Fore! Or six?

Golfers dissatisfied with the maintenance of the golf course on Roi said they would prefer to take matters into their own hands rather than close down part of the course.

"If you gave us a riding lawnmower, there's not a guy out there who would not cut the grass," said resident Larry Roberts, who wrote a letter to the commander complaining of the course's poor condition.

Wrenn said a mower would be provided.

The nuts and bolts

Repairs to the air conditioning in buildings A and B are scheduled to begin before the end of the year. Restroom construction at Café Roi is expected to begin no later than November, while renovations at the restrooms at the Outrigger Club are slated to begin next month.

UMUC registration policy, fees change

By Barbara Johnson

Feature Writer

It's not too early to register for Term II courses for University of Maryland University College's Distance Education program even though the term doesn't begin until Oct. 23, according to Eve Cran, UMUC field representative at Kwaj. This is a big change from last year, she said. Cran recommends that prospective students register as soon as possible to reserve a place in their desired courses.

Students may register for Asian, European or stateside DE courses all at the same rate, according to Cran. The cost for a three-semester-hour course is $384, slightly higher than last year but a lower fee than Maryland residents pay.

The new UMUC catalog for academic year 2000-2001 is available at the UM office in school administration building 368 during office hours and in the hall outside Cran's office. Or, send Cran an e-mail at umkwaj@kls.usaka.smdc.army.mil and she will mail one to you.

Another important change has been made involving University of Maryland's official evaluation, Cran said.

The evaluation establishes how many credits students have earned toward their degrees from all sources, including courses at the university, transfer credits and testing. The official evaluation will now be based on UMUC's curriculum requirements in effect when the student began continuous enrollment with the university or with any other public institution of higher learning in the state of Maryland, whichever is earlier.

To be continuously enrolled, students must have had no more than two sequential years of non-enrollment during their total enrollment period at a Maryland public institution of higher education. If a student has not been continuously enrolled, then the requirements for official evaluation are those that were in effect at the time of the student's most recent enrollment.

'Short' softball season opens with extra innings

By Jim Bennett
Editor

The 5 ½-week-long "short" softball season began Thursday with the reinstatement of an old rule that ends the possibility for ties. Instead, after the seventh inning or after time is called, teams will begin playing extra innings. Each inning will begin with the last batter from the team's previous at-bat on second base. Play will continue until the tie is broken.

Another new rule outlines the procedures for rain-outs. In short, if a game is called for rain before the third inning, it will be rescheduled. If the game is called in the third or fourth inning it will be stopped and rejoined exactly in the same spot it was left — same players, runners, outs and count, for example. Finally, if the game has exceeded four innings or the time limit, the game is over.

The new rules will affect the 31 teams battling it out for supremacy on the diamond.

The greatest change in line-ups comes in the Men's A-B Division. After a hotly contested World Series last year, the Criminals went to A Division, joining S.O.B. Meanwhile,

The top four B Division teams from each league will enter into an eight-team single-elimination tournament for the championship.

In the Men's C Division, nine teams will play in a single round robin. Veteran teams Barnacles, Tolemour and Spartans I will be joined by Eight Isn't Enough, Lejimmas and Ejbrewot. Spartans II, Spartans III and Mosey round out the league. After league play, the top four teams will play a 1v.4, 2v.3 playoff, with the winners advancing to the championship game.

In women's action, seven teams will vie for the title including league stalwarts Homeplate, 30-Something, Spartans I, Spartans II and Jab Eliklik. Denju and Scrubs have joined the fray this season for the first time.

After a round robin of six games, the women will be broken into two divisions based on records.

The divisions will play a second round robin among their own group. Depending on where the "natural break" occurs, one division will play a 1v.4, 2v.3 playoff and championship game and the top two teams of the other division will play a best-of-two-game world series.

13 teams registered for B Division play.

The A and B division teams were combined, then separated into two leagues, A-B East and A-B West, said Ian West, Adult Athletics supervisor. After season play within their respective leagues, the two A Division teams will face off in a world series.

KRC biathlon keeps pace with tradition for 21 years in a row

By Bob Sholar
Kwajalein Running Club

Kwajalein Running Club held its 21st Annual Run-Walk/Swim-Float Biathlon on Monday.

This is traditionally a low-key event emphasizing participation. The course consists of a 2.6-mile run followed by 600-yard lagoon swim. There were 62 participants covering an incredibly broad age range. On the younger end was Bailey Prince, who at well less than 1-year-old, had to be toted by mom, Amy, and dad, Scott. At the older end was ... we'll let's not go there.

Top three male finishers were Hank Sikes (32:48), Michael Larsen (33:26) and Kevin Cohen (33:59).

Top three female finishers were Stephanie Flavin (34:18), Sharon Greenbaum (35:18), and Cassie Rubly (41:19). Flavin is a sophomore at Kwajalein Junior-Senior High School.

Several younger members of Kwajalein Swim Team used the event as a training exercise, sticking fairly close for most of the route, including the unusually rough lagoon swim.

Rain or shine

David Frediani, left, and Anthony Poirier, both of Spartans III, take a little extra batting practice after softball games were canceled Thursday night, opening night of the season, due to the rainy weather. The season will resume tonight, weather permitting.

Workin' for a livin'

Rob Oglesby, a satellite communications technician, is a member of the crew that helps residents reach out and touch a lot of people every day. Whether by telephone, file or Internet communications, Oglesby and his co-workers run the Satellite Communications, or Satcom, for the community. The 60-foot dish, concealed by a mesh of fiberglass-like material called a Radome, sits on Perimeter Road, near Coral Sands Beach pavilion. The Satcom terminal transmits communication fibers more than 23,000 miles into space — to a geo-stationary satellite — which in turn (and in nano-seconds), transmits to a receiving router at the other end of the connection.
