Col. Curtis L. Wrenn Jr., USAKA commander, and John Wallace, RSE site manager, traveled around the island on a mission last Thursday, delivering the fruits of quality performance. For the second year in the program, Wrenn presented quality awards based on customer surveys.

"We went down this road over a year ago, reference quality," Wrenn said.

"Our effort to focus on quality for our customers and residents has shown a payoff, and survey results prove it can work at Kwajalein," Wallace added.

Claiming the highest honors, the Marine Department's catamaran service scored 97.4 percent customer satisfaction rating. The two cats take passengers from Kwajalein to Ebeye to Meck and back daily and perform various other functions as needed.

"That's near perfection, and you can't ask for any better than that," Wrenn said, giving Tom Dillon, the department manager, a trophy and certificates for each crewmember. "We know it

University student receives hands-on experience at ALTAIR

By Jim Bennett

Eric Bucklin may have the most original answer of his class when writes his "What Did You Do During Summer Vacation"-essay.

The University of Alabama-Huntsville junior is working this summer as an engineering intern at ALTAIR as part of a cooperative agreement between the school, U.S. Army Space and Missile Defense Command and Reagan Test Site.

"It's different," Bucklin said. "It's exciting to be here working and getting paid to live on a tropical island."

Bucklin is working on a "wheels and rails" project, performing needed maintenance on the equipment that moves the giant radar dish.

"He has to use his judgment, schedule available resources for tasks at hand," said Phil Copeland, ALTAIR antenna lead. "It's quite an opportunity."

"I have to give him credit. When he got here, we gave him a hard hat and put him out there."

Originally from western New York, Bucklin has studied mechanical aerospace engineering for the past two years.

"Some of the stuff, so far, resembles what we have in class," Bucklin said. "It goes along the same basic lines, but some stuff is pretty new and foreign to me."

Eric Bucklin

Bucklin is one of 200 students participating in the cooperative education program at UAH, according to Linda Pavelitz, associate director of Cooperative Education. Most, around 70 percent, work in engineering disciplines, but a smaller number work in everything from business to nursing.

"It's a chance to test out an expected career track," Pavelitz said, adding the work experience improves a student's marketability when he or she enters the workforce and allows the student to earn some money, too.

"Grades and motivation improve because they see why they're studying the theories and how they apply," Pavelitz added.

UAH started the coop program in 1979, working with four different companies. Today, the university partners with more than 100 different employers. Up to 95 percent of the coop students work in the Huntsville area. Some are out-of-state, but Bucklin is the only student to study overseas, until this fall.

Commander's Hotline smokin' with questions, comments

I couldn't believe it last week — 25 requests to the Commander's Hotline. We've had no activity on the Hotline in weeks and now this. I had been lulled into believing the community was happy, USAKA was doing all it could to provide the best in all respects ... then 25 requests! And, they all came in one evening.

Given the number and timing of these Hotline requests, I feel a need to respond to the community immediately. Many of you know I've never had an original thought, and thus, I am really looking to the community to help answer these issues.

In no particular order, here are the latest 25 Hotline questions to the commander and my response:

#1. Sir, why are the missions always allowed to mess up my vacation?

A: Missions are what pay the bills. We exist here to perform our mission and meet customer needs. I sympathize with your frustrations in scheduling your vacation ICW mission slips, but the alternative is a prolonged vacation ... if you get my drift!

#2. Sir, it's not fair that my neighbor has four palm trees in his yard and I only have three.

A: Plant two trees. It's good for the ecology and will put you one up on your neighbor.

#3. Sir, the flytraps have begun to stink

all over the island.

A: Empty them!

#4. Sir, why can't we have a professional football team on Kwajalein?

A: I'm all for it as long as you can secure private financing for the stadium and USAKA gets all parking fees and Sodexo concession rights.

#5. Sir, is there enough $$ in Community Activities to bring George Clooney here?

A: I doubt it very seriously. Our Rec Fund expenditures exceed $1.5M and I think Clooney gets $3M per television episode and $20M per movie. Maybe you should lower your standards and shoot for a B-movie star like Lassie.

#6. Sir, can you remove some of the sand at Emon Beach?

A: Sure. What's your residence number and we'll arrange delivery.

#7. Sir, why isn't my picture hanging up in the snack bar?

A: Great idea. I've always thought we needed something on the walls in the bathrooms there. Bring a framed 8 x 10. Would love to commode ... I mean accommodate you!

#8. Sir, why can't trashcans stay curbside all week?

A: They can, but are you prepared to live with the maggots? Better yet, are your neighbors prepared to live with you?

#9. Sir, can we move Halloween up two weeks this year?

A: I'm all for changing the date we celebrate Halloween. If we move it three weeks to the right, we can have a week-long celebration in November. What would we call it? Hallowgiving? Or, Thanksweenie?

#10. Sir, the ice cream at Surfway is too cold.

A: Let me come back to this one!

#11. Sir, what's with all the acronyms?

A: Acronyms are used to confuse or impress the uninitiated. Aren't you impressed this article was written with only one acronym? Can you find it?

#12. Sir, I think you would look marvelous in a Greenpeace uniform.

A: Thanks for the compliment! That was meant as a compliment, right? Anyone have a picture of a Greenpeace uniform?

#13. Sir, can you play the Blues Brothers at 6 p.m. instead of the siren?

A: Allright ... an issue I can act on immediately. You got it. Stay tuned to the 6 p.m. siren ... I mean, Blues Brothers Anthem.

#14. Sir, what can you do about the crabs on island?

A: Not sure how to answer this one. Assume the reference was to crustaceans, which are essential elements of the pyramid. Don't you watch AFRTS commercials?

#15. Sir, it's too hot on Kwajalein.

A: Refer to #10. If the two of you would get together, I think you will find a solution to both issues. Empowerment. Resolve problems at the lowest level.

#16. Sir, I think it should be mandatory to use flashlights at night.

A: So do I. Problem is, I wait 'til the last minute, then can't find it in the dark!

#17. Sir, I think we should have more jazz on the radio.

A: Put this person in charge! Great idea. Rich, please adjust the music lineup to accommodate this request.

#18. Sir, I think we should use charreusse and hot pink on all government buildings.

A: May I ask why? I think this would clash with my camouflage uniform.

#19. Sir, why do you always get to sit at the head table at the Military Ball?

A: It's written in my job description to serve as official greeter and host for all government and military activities. Just one of the perks of the job!

#20. Sir, can you trade in the slide at the family pool for a bigger one?

A: Don't even go there, OK?

#21. Sir, what can you do about the rust problem on island?

A: Rust, grass growing on our roofs, Ziplock bags, Bungee cords ... they're all indigenous to the islands.

#22. Sir, next time you go off-island, can you bring us back McDonald's?

A: What makes you think I go to McDonald's? Someone been watching me?

#23. Sir, can you get MTV and HBO on

Cummings, Pichler soar to Scouting's highest honor

By Barbara Johnson
Feature Writer

Two Kwajalein Boy Scouts soared to the highest level attainable in Scouting this week.

Seán Cummings and Eric Pichler received the badge of Eagle Scout at a Court of Honor at Island Memorial Chapel Tuesday night, with a large group of family, friends, teachers, community members and fellow Scouts braving a steady downpour to attend.

Eagle Scout is a rank achieved by only about 2 percent of all Boy Scouts, according to master of ceremonies John Szczepanski.

Given that each Scout has all the information needed, no single requirement is too difficult for a boy to master and a tremendous support network is in place to help each Scout, Szczepanski asked, "Why do only two percent of Scouts reach the rank of Eagle?"

His answer: "The young men who become Eagles make the conscious decision that it is something they want, a goal worth reaching whatever the sacrifice. They decide to take full advantage of the opportunity presented to them to achieve what few others will, and know that once attained, the honor and prestige of the Eagle rank is a mantle he will wear for the rest of his life."

After the candidates repeated the Eagle pledge, faced a series of challenges from Scouts in the audience and were reminded by other Eagle Scouts of their responsibilities upon assuming the rank, Col. Curtis L. Wrenn Jr., commander, presented Eagle pins to the two Scouts.

"All that work, the fun, the pain, the good times and the bad times, all that work has paid off," Wrenn said, mentioning sleep-deprived campout mornings, pine needles in their pancakes, melted trail mix and mud and rain among their memories.

"Always know that this award was not given to you, it is not a gift," he added. "Instead, you set goals, made many sacrifices and personal choices and worked to earn this goal and live this moment, an event you will never forget. The fact that you have earned Scouting's highest award tells the world something about you, specifically, that if you put your mind to it, you can accomplish anything."

Wrenn charged the candidates to live with honor, loyalty and courage and to give service.

Cummings and Pichler presented Eagle pins to their parents and asked each individual and group who had helped them reach their goal to stand and receive thanks.

Pichler said, "To the rest of the Scouts in Troop 314, you've already started on your own Eagle trails. It will take time and work, but as you've just seen, there are a lot of people who will help you along the way."

Col. Curtis L. Wrenn Jr. congratulates Sean Cummings and Eric Pichler Tuesday night. Steven Cummings looks on at left.

After the ceremony, the Scouts held a reception in the REB, where each new Eagle had set up a slide presentation showing the highlights of his Scouting years.

To earn the Eagle Scout rank, a scout must fulfill requirements in leadership, service and outdoor skills. He must earn 21 merit badges, serve in a position of responsibility, be recommended by people who know him, develop a statement of ambitions and life purpose and plan, develop and execute a service project, among other requirements. All of this must be done before the Scout reaches 18.

Cummings, 17, has been in Scouting since 1996, and knew then that he wanted to achieve the rank of Eagle. For his project, he planted a grove of indigenous Pesonia grandis trees from Eniwetak Island by the public gardens.

The project is not only about doing a good service to the community but "it's also about being a leader, enlisting other scouts and community people to help," said Jeanne Cummings, who is in charge of Advancements for Troop 314.

Pichler, 16, has been a Boy Scout for seven years and says he has been working on his Eagle all those years. His project was constructing a dip tank at the Adult Pool.

About reaching his goal, Pichler said, "I feel great. It's a relief to have finished it, but I'm definitely not done with Scouts. I'm going to help as much as I can."

Cummings said in earning his Eagle he learned a lot of diverse things, and so much of what he learned along the way is "practical knowledge. [Also] you find out about things you didn't know anything about," he said

Cummings and Pichler join about two million Eagle Scouts nationwide. Well-known Eagles include Gerald Ford, astronaut James Lovell, Steven Spielberg, actor James Stewart, Walter Cronkite, J. Willard Marriott, H. Ross Perot and Dr. William C. DeVries, who transplanted the first artificial heart.

Fire department quickly brings LCU fire under control

By Peter Rejcek
Associate Editor

Fire and Marine department officials say preliminary findings show Monday's fire on a dry-docked LCU was caused by sparks or slag from a welding torch that ignited combustibles stowed below deck.

No one was hurt.

The fire call came from Paul Jurek at Harbor Control shortly after 8 a.m. Two engine companies and one ambulance, along with two police units, initially responded to the call at the dry dock area in about three minutes, according to Fire Chief Ragnar Opiniano.

The fire, mainly contained in a storeroom on the Manassas, was extinguished in less than an hour, Opiniano said.

The scene was challenging, he said, because of limited and congested access to where the fire was raging. Also, visibility was poor, and it was physically demanding for fire fighters because of the heat and the weather, with heavy squalls moving through the region, followed by stifling humidity.

Radio communications inside the ship were also a problem, he said.

Damage is estimated at $33,000 for materials and repairs. Opiniano said it appeared the damage was limited mainly to materials, with little structural damage.

The ship was in dry dock for its three-year overhaul, according to Mike Turner, captain of the Manassas. Neither Turner nor the crew was at the scene when the fire occurred. He said it was fortunate such a blaze did not happen while the ship was underway, though the officers and crew are trained in fire fighting.

"The officers are trained in the states," he said.

The maintenance by the Marine Department shop personnel was scheduled to be done by mid-September. Tom Dillon, Marine Department manager, said it's too early to tell whether that date will be pushed back because of the fire.

"We hope it will not," he said. He explained that some wiring will need to be fixed, along with two electrical motors and a freezer.

Dillon said "two errors" probably led to the fire.

One, not all of the combustibles had been removed from the storeroom, which is standard procedure when a ship goes into the shipyard. The room was full of cardboard, paper products and cleaning products like Mr. Clean.

Second, the person on fire watch was disoriented going below and was standing in the wrong compartment while the welding on a pipe was taking place above deck. The slag apparently dripped down the pipe and into the storeroom, where it ignited the materials.

"It was basically the cardboard that was ignited by the hot slag that started the fire," Dillon said.

Said Opiniano, "Marine Department management, Fire Prevention and RSE Safety [are] reviewing operational procedures that may have contributed to ignition."

Clarification

From USAKA Judge
Advocate Office

As a further explanation of the Commander's Column in Tuesday Hourglass, understand that neither the commander nor USAKA endorses any specific school or non-federal entity. Col. Curtis L. Wrenn Jr. does, however, encourage all members of the community to support worthy local organizations such as schools on Ebeye. Ms. Scarlett Scholte is one person who can help you do this.

Departments receive customer satisfaction awards ...

begins with the individual and culminates into a team effort."

"This is a product of all the employees out here," Dillon said. "I wish I had two [trophies] to put one on each catamaran, but they'll have to take turns."

Next, USAKA broke out services into two categories, those services paid for, and those that are not.

For the second year running, the Child Development Center took top honors in its category, Paid-For Services, with a 94.6 percent customer satisfaction rating.

"I can truly attest that those who have toddlers at KAPS truly receive their money's worth," Wrenn said.

CDC Director Trina Tiffany cited her employees for their contributions, adding, "the parents and all the support they give us [are] really what makes it work."

Meanwhile, with a major renovation in the works, the Grace Sherwood Library still outpaced the free services category, posting a 92.6 percent customer satisfaction rating.

"Resoundingly, this facility is always rated one of the highest in customer satisfaction," Wrenn said. "Given what these ladies have to work with, I don't think they could do any better a job."

And renovations will expand the facility to include 850 square feet taken from existing Hourglass and CPN offices and a storage room. The work is scheduled for completion by November and will give the library a new children's section, expanded area for the adult collection and new computer center.

In a new category for this year, USAKA awarded the Kwaj Lodge "Most Improved" honors based on its scores for various sub-categories. In reservations, the lodge leaped from the low 60s to 93 percent satisfaction. Check-in satisfaction ratings climbed from the low 70s to 95 percent, while cleanliness jumped from just over 50 percent to 88 percent. Amenities increased 29 points from 50 to 79 percent and Check-Out showed the only decline of around five points to 63 percent satisfaction.

"It took a collective, joint effort in order to make this become a reality," said Bill Strobhar, Housing Services manager, who accepted the award.

The awards mark a high point in the Army Performance Improvement Criteria survey program, started in November 2000, as seven organizations finished with greater than 90 percent customer satisfaction ratings and eight more finished above 85 percent.

In the first year of surveys, only one organization, the Ivey Gym, posted numbers hire than 90 percent and the two category winners, the Bowling Center and CDC scored 89.8 percent and 87.9 percent, respectively.

JRB recommends sanctions in two alcohol-related incidents

From staff reports

Two juveniles are performing community service as part of sanctions approved by the USAKA command for unrelated incidents involving alcohol.

In one case, a 16-year-old juvenile admitted to drinking alcohol and violating the midnight curfew. The incident occurred in March, according to Kent Duncan, with the USAKA Legal office.

On May 11, the Juvenile Review Board recommended, and the USAKA command approved, a three-week curfew, 10 hours of community service and a 500-word essay about the consequences of poor judgment.

In the second case, another 16-year-old juvenile admitted to drinking alcohol in an incident dating back to December. It was not the first offense for this juvenile.

Consequently, the JRB recommended, and the USAKA commander approved, a three-month curfew, 50 hours of community service and a 1,000-word essay about anger management and alcohol abuse.

In the March case, the juvenile acted alone, Duncan said. In the incident in December, the juvenile had been drinking with another juvenile, but their case were handled separately because one of the juveniles had left island for a while, he explained. In both instances, the juveniles violated Hawaii law and USAKA regulations by their actions, Duncan noted.

The curfew lasts from 7:30 p.m. to 5:30 a.m., he said.

"They have to be in their residence ... or with their parents," Duncan said. The parents are responsible for ensuring the curfew is observed, he said.

The JRB is an administrative body made up of local site managers, and is convened as an alternative to imposing an administrative bar from the island, according to Duncan.

"Their policy is to encourage juveniles to accept responsibility for their actions," he said.

Overseas tax filing deadline draws near

From USAKA Judge Advocate Office

Kwajalein residents at tax time are given an automatic two-month extension beyond April 15 to file their tax returns. To obtain this automatic extension, just write "OVERSEAS FILER" on the front of your tax form.

Those who owe money to the IRS or possibly to their home states are already behind the power curve. Interest on the amount you owe started accruing April 16.

If you do not owe anything, file by June 15. If you file a federal paper return from Kwajalein, send it to the Philadelphia Service Center, Philadelphia, PA 19255-0215.

If you arrived on Kwajalein after June 15 last year and wish to take the Foreign Earned Income Exclusion, you can also request an extension of up to a total of six months (Oct. 15) by using Form 2350. You must indicate you are requesting the extension for purposes of obtaining the Foreign Earned Income Exclusion. If you arrived very late in the year (after October), call the Legal Office.

If you need help preparing your tax return, a number of your co-workers have volunteered to help under the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) Program without charge.

If you are required to file state taxes for 2001, help is also available. Many state materials are on the Internet. The general website which will direct you to your state is www.tax.state.us. Just fill in the blank with the two-letter abbreviation for your state, such as "MA" for Massachusetts or "AZ" for Arizona. There you will find forms, instructions, and some states allow taxpayers to file on-line.

Here are some future tax tips:

1. Plan now for next year. For instance, ensure that your employer is withholding enough during the year so that you won't have to pay extra next April.

2. 401(k). Take maximum advantage of your 401(k) plan, if you qualify for one.

3. Think long-term. If you plan to sell securities, wait until you have owned them for at least twelve months, to take advantage of long-term tax rates, which are lower than short-term tax rates. This includes Mutual Funds.

4. Educational Credit. If you have a choice, pay for your children's tuition and fees at college. You may be able to qualify for a one-for-one tax credit of up to $1,500 per student.

5. Debt. Personal debt enjoys no tax advantages. Mortgage debt is deductible.

6. Home Ownership. If you own a home that you may sell within the next few years, consider living there for two years within the last five before you sell it. If you do, you will qualify for the $250,000 per spouse exclusion.

As part of the program, RTS will host another student, who has yet to be hired, this fall, and Bucklin will return in the spring after the fall semester at UAH. He and the other student will rotate semesters in class with work at RTS.

Folding the work into his school semester schedules takes away from his classroom studies, prolonging his time at the university by two semesters, but "the experience makes up for being there longer. And it's not too much longer, since most students take the summers off," Bucklin added.

The experience does not count for credit hours, but it does count as a class, allowing him to keep his enrolled status at UAH.

"It's a once-in-a-lifetime chance to see the Pacific," Bucklin said, noting he's not sure what he'll do after graduation. "I'm not sure. That's why I wanted to get into the co-op program, to find out what is available."

Small Arms Range Notice

The small arms range will be in operation Wednesday, June 12, 8 a.m. until noon. Avoid the hazard area shown below.

All watercraft observe the red flags on the southwest end of the island.

JUNE IS the month to think of the good men who have influenced our lives. To celebrate Father's Day, Grace Sherwood Library will hold a drawing. For the first three weeks of this month, anyone who checks out library material may fill out a slip for themselves or their favorite guy to be eligible for a library treat.

SMALL BOAT Marina has implemented a $20 late fee for boats not at the marina by the end of the rental time slot. Questions? Call 53643.

TICKETS ARE still available for the colonel's "last hurrah," June 15. This is a surprisingly fun, yet formal evening to celebrate the Army's 227th birthday. The ho-hum beef filet and chicken menu is replaced by "Colonel's Cuisine." Expect the unexpected. Tickets are $17 per person. RSVP to Debra Oglesby, 51416, or e-mail debra.oglesby@usaka.smdc.army.mil.

THE KWAJALEIN Island reclaimed, or non-potable, water system recently exceeded a turbidity standard. Although this situation does not require you to take any precautions, public notification is required under these circumstances. If you have any questions concerning the reclaimed water system, call the Utilities Department, 51847, or the Environmental Dept., 51134.

ORTHODONTIST will be on island June 18-19. To make an appointment, call the Dental Clinic, 52165, Tuesday-Saturday, 7:30-11:30 a.m. and 12:30-4:30 p.m.

Kwajalein residents swam all day Monday for money rather than recreation.

The Swim-a-thon earned thousands of dollars from local residents, including a $400 donation from the Bank of Guam, for the swim team attending the Micronesian Games in Pohnpei this July.

"Someone was always swimming in the water for twelve hours straight," said Laura Alves, who along with Chris Brown and Kahio Kalani, organized the event.

"A lot of people really showed their support," she said.

Sixty-six Kwajalein residents lent their support, swimming at the family pool.

"I enjoyed all the kids that swam," Christina Hamill said.

Local bands Fast Food Tragedy, Up Till Dawn, Mr. So and So, Luke is on Fire, and Pure Aloha played to entertain the swimmers and poolside participants.

"The bands were exciting," said 17-year-old Andrea Copeland.

Volunteers served snacks, soda and food all day for people who gathered to cheer the swimmers and the bands.
