National Missile Defense nails target in IFT-3

From staff reports

Range personnel felt pretty confident going into last Sunday's successful IFT-3 mission with the comprehensive pre-mission simulations and hours of labor.

A symbolic gesture from the heavens didn't hurt either, when those removing the access stand on Launch Hill spied a rainbow that appeared to come out of the access stand and follow the planned trajectory of the ground-based interceptor.

"When we saw that, we thought it was going to be a good day, and it was," said Jim Hill, KMR site manager for the National Missile Defense Program. "The bottom line is that it was good for the program and good for the nation and it reflects on the launch team and support team of KMR."

The modified Minuteman intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) target vehicle was launched from Vandenberg AFB, Calif., at 7:02 p.m. (2:02 p.m., Kwaj time), and a prototype National Missile Defense (NMD) interceptor was launched approximately 20 minutes later on Meck. The intercept occurred approximately 10 minutes after that.

"The screaming went on for five minutes," Hill said of the control room on Meck. "Everyone was just ecstatic."

"At the approximate time of intercept the video above us on the screen lit up with a flash and everyone yelled," said Maj. Dave Latham, KMR test director. "I could hear everyone cheering over on Meck Island. It was for many a huge relief. All the hours of work paid off and the pressure to succeed was off for a moment. But, this is just the beginning: We all get a chance to do it again in January with many more to follow."

"This was a difficult mission not only for the NMD team but for KMR, also," added Dave Shattuck, KMR mission technical director for IFT-3.

"During the mission KMCC (Kwajalein Missile Range Mission Control Center) was extremely busy until approximately 30 minutes after the Vandenberg launch, when both missile trajectories met. Unlike most missions, where a data analysis process deems whether you have succeeded or not, this mission culminated with such a conclusive event that was broadcast to the world via

Optometrist coming to Kwajalein in November

School children, safety glass users to receive priority on final 1999 trip

By Peter Rejcek

Kwajalein and Roi-Namur residents should keep an eye out for Dr. Chris Yamamoto in November.

The Hawaii-based optometrist will be on island between Nov. 7-15. Appointments are limited and can be made Oct. 13-14, between 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., by calling 51174.

According to Elaine McMahon, Kwajalein Hospital administrator, priority for Yamamoto's final visit of the calendar year will be given to school children and those residents who require prescription safety glasses at their place of employment.

"The children in the school get the priority visit," McMahon said.

Yamamoto is expected to see about 130 patients while on island, according to hospital officials. Evening and weekend slots will be made available to Roi-Namur residents, particularly on Wednesday evening when the dental clinic is also open.

"That way they can do both things at once if they want to," McMahon noted.

Those people scheduling an appointment need to provide the following information: The patient's name; birthdate; employee sponsor name (if applicable) and the patient's social security number. If the patient is using vision insurance, such as the Vision Service Plan sponsored by several contractors, including Raytheon, that information should be provided. Raytheon added VSP to its benefits in April.

The recent addition of the new benefit, coupled with infrequent optometrist visits, has strained the logistics. Officials say they hope to add a fourth optometrist visit in the year 2000. Currently, Yamamoto comes to Kwajalein three times per year, normally in February, August and November.

"We're trying to negotiate an extra visit from him to help people out," McMahon said. "It's a very large undertaking for Dr. Yamamoto to come out here."

Yamamoto's next visit is tentatively scheduled for February, when more appointments will be available to the community at large.

"We want to emphasize to the public that the focus [in November] is on the children and safety glasses," said Hideko LaPoint, Kwajalein Hospital administrative coordinator.

Yamamoto's office will be located in the Occupational Health building. Patients should use the entrance facing the Three Palms Snack Bar.

Safety zone declared

Echo Pier and the harbor area (north end of fuel pier to buoy number 9 to ski area dock), including the small boat marina and the marina ramp, will be closed Wednesday, 7:30 a.m. until approximately 10 a.m. This closure is due to the transfer of hazardous cargo from the barge Islander to the LCU.

The Hourglass is named for the insignia of the U.S. Army 7th Infantry Division, which liberated the island from the forces of Imperial Japan on Feb 4, 1944. The Kwajalein Hourglass is an authorized Army newspaper published by the Commander, USAKA/KMR, under provisions of AR360-81. It is prepared by a Raytheon Range Systems Engineering editorial staff under contract DASG60-94-C-0067, printed on an offset press, and distributed Tuesdays and Fridays to a circulation of 2,500 military personnel, federal employees, contractor workers, and their families assigned to the command. The views and opinions expressed herein are not necessarily those of the Department of the Army.

Mail should be addressed to: Hourglass, P. O. Box 23, APO AP 96555. Phone: Autovon 254-3539; local 53539. All classified ads and notices must be submitted by noon Friday for Tuesday's publication and noon Wednesday for Friday's publication.

Gansler comes to Kwaj

Dr. Jacques S. Gansler, left, is greeted by Col. Gary K. McMillen, USAKA/KMR commander, Monday evening at the Kwajalein Atoll Terminal. Gansler, Under Secretary of Defense for Acquisition and Technology, was on Kwajalein through Wednesday for a tour of facilities following the successful completion of the IFT-3 mission this past weekend. Gansler, a Yale graduate, is responsible for all matters relating to Department of Defense acquisition; research and development; logistics; acquisition reform; advanced technology; international programs; environmental security; nuclear, chemical and biological programs; and the defense technology and industrial base. the VTC (video teleconference center). The giant flash from the SUPER Radot camera located on Roi told the world that National Missile Defense is a reality."

The test successfully demonstrated "hit to kill technology" to intercept and destroy a ballistic missile target. An exoatmospheric kill vehicle (EKV) weighing about 120 pounds, equipped with two infrared sensors, a visible sensor, and a small propulsion system, located and tracked the target, guiding the kill vehicle to a body-to-body impact with the target and resulting in the target destruction using only the kinetic energy of the collision. This "hit to kill" intercept demonstrates that a warhead carrying a weapon of mass destruction — nuclear, chemical or biological — will be totally destroyed and neutralized.

"The effort that went into this test was staggering," Latham said. "Thousands of man hours at contractor and government facilities are put into a test like this to make sure everything is perfect. Of the thousands of things that can go wrong it is amazing that a test like this can even succeed. It is really a credit to all the individuals involved to pull something like this off."

The Department of Defense is scheduled to conduct a deployment readiness review beginning next summer to review the status of the NMD program, including potential program costs, an assessment of the ballistic missile threat to the U.S. and the status of arms reduction efforts involving Russia. After receiving the results of this review, the Secretary of Defense will make a recommendation to the President. If the President decides to deploy, the NMD system could be operational in 2005. If it appears more development and testing needs to take place, deployment planning will continue and deployment would be held postponed.

The successful intercept test was the first of about 20 planned intercept tests to demonstrate NMD system technology, effectiveness and reliability over the next six years.

"The difficulty of the mission sometimes gets lost when success is achieved on the first attempt," Shattuck said. "As a result, future NMD missions here at KMR will even become a little more difficult because of exceedingly high expectations, but I believe that Team KMR is up to the challenge."

Quarters of the Quarter awarded

Quarters of the Quarter is designed to recognize those residents and/or families for displaying a sense of pride with a flair for arrangement and attention to detail in gardening that makes their yards a delight to stroll by.

Five quarters were selected, based on location, on Sept. 21 for the fourth quarter of 1999. Selections are made on curb appeal.

Winners receive a $50 gift certificate from Macy's, their photograph in the Hourglass and a Quarters of the Quarter certificate.

Pets are people too when it comes to health

By Gwyne Copeland

Itching, swollen gums, infections, and heart disease are nasty medical problems. You don't want them and neither do your pets.

Veterinary technician Sue Glenn takes care of the routine medical needs of animals on Kwajalein. She's trying to stop insect bites, heartworm and gum disease before they make your four-legged friend sick.

Flea infestation, for example, is more than just an irritation; it can cause serious skin problems. For animals from the colder climes, like Boston, arriving on Kwaj may be the first time fleas feast on your feline or Fido. With a break in the drought, Glenn has seen a big increase in fleas. She suggests treating your pets before they start itching and scratching.

She recommends a flea control product like, "Frontline Top Spot." Once a month you apply it to the back of your pet's neck. It costs about $25 for a six-month supply.

"It stops fleas dead in their tracks," Glenn said.

Topical treatments can sometimes be more effective when used with an oral flea preventative such as "Program." Glenn calls it "flea birth control" because once a flea bites it becomes sterile. Both products are available through the veterinary office. Glenn can advise you which product might be best for your pet.

Flea control is not mandatory for pets on Kwaj but prevention from another pest is.

"Heartworm control is required because one case could spread rapidly in a small community like Kwajalein," Glenn explained.

The heartworm travels from an infected dog to another by mosquitoes. If the worm is not removed from an infected dog's heart it can cause permanent heart and lung damage, or even death.

All dogs must test negative for heartworm before arriving on Kwaj. But to keep heartworm off the island, every dog is required to take a monthly dose of "Heartgard." Depending on the size of your dog, the medicine runs $9 to $25 every six months. Heartworm treatment is not required for cats.

Abscessed bites, however, are a problem for island cats. The best way to prevent those infections is to keep your cat inside, according to Glenn. Because the wound is small, cat bites heal quickly, but bacteria are trapped inside. When the bacteria grows, the wound becomes an abscess. If you catch the bite right away, cleaning it out and starting your cat on antibiotics will prevent infection. If you don't detect a bite until it's infected, Glenn said she would need to drain the wound and put the cat on antibiotics right away.

Another problem for both cats and dogs is gum disease. Just like people, animals need their teeth brushed. Every day is best, but Glenn said she knows that may be hard to do, so she suggests brushing your animal's teeth at least once a week. Also, it's better for a pet's teeth if it eats dry food. A good chew on a rawhide bone treated with enzymes will also improve canine dental hygiene.

The veterinary clinic sells the bones, toothbrushes and toothpaste.

Glenn will have more information on these subjects, and will answer other animal care questions, at the Kwajalein Health Fair scheduled for Oct. 25.

Free influenza vaccines available at Kwaj Hospital

By Julie Schmidt, R.N.

The 1999-2000 flu vaccine is now available at Kwajalein Hospital.

As a part of Kwajalein's Health Awareness Month, emphasis is on preventive medicine. This vaccine helps to protect against a virus that is spread from infected persons to the nose or throat of others. Influenza can typically cause fever, cough, chills, sore throat, headaches and muscle aches. Most people are ill for only a few days, but some people do become much sicker.

Influenza causes thousands of hospitalizations and deaths annually, mostly among the elderly.

The vaccine to help prevent influenza is changed annually to make sure it is as up to date as possible. Protection develops approximately two weeks after you receive the vaccine.

Everyone age 65 years and older should receive the vaccine. A recent recommendation from the American Academy of Family Practice has lowered the age to 50 years and older. Additionally, the U.S. Public Health Service is currently recommending anyone who is older than 6 months of age and wishes to reduce the likelihood of becoming ill with influenza, and has no contraindications, may receive the vaccine.

Anyone (6 months or older) who has a chronic illness, a weakened immune system, or is 6 months to 18 years old and on long-term Aspirin therapy, should be highly encouraged to receive the vaccine. It is also recommended that women who will be past the third month of pregnancy during the flu season be vaccinated.

The vaccine can be obtained by coming to the hospital during regular immunization hours (every weekday afternoon from 1-4 p.m.). The vaccine is free of charge to all contract employees and Kwajalein residents. The vaccine will also be offered to the public at the Health Fair scheduled for Oct. 25.

For specific vaccine-related questions or concerns, contact the hospital at 52223 or 52224.

KSC night dive a 'glowing' success

By Ivy Springer

As the full, golden moon boldly announced its arrival, Kwajalein Scuba Club divers enjoyed a dream-come-true night dive off Gehh Island's oceanside reef on Sept. 26.

Exiting from the LCM, captained by Stevenson Graham and his crew, 35 divers enjoyed the warm moonlight surge channels that offered up a thrilling array of sea life, including sharks; turtles; anemones; parrotfish nestled in their protective cocoons; lionfish; eels and the beautiful colors of corals and sponges, as seen only at night.

The dive was organized by Darryl McKinley, with assistance from dive leaders Amy LaCost, Doug Hepler, Julio Rodriguez and Ivy Springer.

Following the dive, the divers enjoyed hot chocolate and homemade goodies provided by ships stores officers Kathleen Beal and Diane Gordon.

Interested in future club-sponsored events? Come to the KSC meetings on the second Wednesday of each month. Also, watch the Hourglass and roller for more information.

Softball season coming to an end, playoffs to begin

The fall softball season will come to a close Wednesday as the 28 teams complete their regular schedules.

In A Division, the top two teams will square off in a best two-of-three World Series. Both the C and D Divisions will follow the same format.

Skip Morton departed Sept. 30 on AMC to go home to North Carolina after a two-year tour at Kwaj. He was an announcer at CPN.

"The only thing guaranteed in this life is that for every hello, there is a good-bye. I wish all my friends here on Kwaj fair winds and following seas," said Skip in farewell.

Renate Woods, whose entry, Sunrise Bakery, won the contest for new name, and young friend Sonia Prince are ready to sample the bakery's new breads and pastries at the ribbon-cutting ceremony Oct. 1.

Sunrise Bakery has new name, new treats

They're very tempting — the specialty breads, cannoli, mini-danish and rolls now offered at the recently named Sunrise Bakery.

Formerly known as the wholesale bakery, the new name was officially adopted at a ribbon-cutting ceremony Oct. 1, attended by representatives of Sodexho Marriott and USAKA and community members who were anxious to sample the new fare.

Sodexho Marriott manager, Paul King, announced the winning name, which was submitted by Renate Woods. The name was chosen from 32 entries by vote of the bakery employees, according to King.

Woods then cut the ribbon, revealing the new bakery sign on the front of the building. Lt. Col. Dave Stoddard, USAKA/KMR deputy commander, presented Woods with a commander's coin and thanked her for her lasting contribution to the community.

Then the bakery was open for visitors to sample the new quiche, pastries and breads, including dark rye, Dijon herb, and sunflower-pumpkin seed rolls, all available by request with a 48-hour notice. The bakery is open weekdays from 5 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., Sundays, 7-11 a.m., and Mondays, 7 a.m. to 3 p.m.
