REMEMBERING MANNY GARCIA

HOURLASS REPORT

Kwajalein residents, military members and fellow Veterans lined the streets of Kwajalein to honor U.S. Veteran and Roi resident Manny Garcia last week as he made his last trip home to the Marshall Islands. He passed away in Honolulu February 9. He is survived by his children and wife, Cinderella.

Garcia was born in the Republic of the Philippines in 1946 and began work on Roi-Namur in 1966. Shortly thereafter, he answered the call to service and joined the U.S. military to fight in Vietnam from 1968 to 1970. At the end of his tour, Manny returned to Roi and had lived and worked there ever since.

A motor procession bearing Garcia's family and remains traveled from the Kwajalein airport through the downtown area to Echo Pier. They would later be taken north to Enniburr. They were met with salutes: Veterans and civilians, some bearing American flags, lined the streets to pay tribute to a Veteran on his final trip home.

The Garcia family arrived at Enniburr on March 7 for a vigil and viewing. More than 90 friends and relatives journeyed on to lay Garcia to rest on Cemetery Island, also called Oble and Fourth Island.

With assistance from translators, several speakers addressed the gathering. Among them were Teddy Watak, a tribal elder from Enniburr; Garcia's son Jelwin, and Mike Warren from the DI Employee Assistance Program in Fort Worth, Texas. The American flag covering Garcia's remains was folded and given to Cinderella.

Kwajalein Religious Services' Chaplain Brian Conner led a celebration of Manny's life at the Tradewinds Theater March 14. Together, new and long-time friends of the Garcia family prayed and shared memories from their many years of friendship working on Kwajalein and Roi-Namur. There was both laughter and tears as they described the often-feisty, kind-hearted Manny, a regular fixture in the community who will be greatly missed.

In the weeks following Manny's passing, members of the Roi community have shared their stories. Below are some memories of Manny Garcia.

I had the pleasure of working with Manny for three years. Even in his 70s, Manny was still willing and able to climb over 100-feet above ground level to perform structural maintenance which is necessary to keeping ALTAIR in service for nearly 50 years. Manny's value as a painter and climber is dearly missed along with his historical knowledge. Upon meeting Manny, he was excited to discover that I grew up in North Dakota. He would shiver as he recalled surveying the bitter cold of a North Dakota winter and walking on a frozen lake. He thought those people fishing on the frozen lakes were crazy.

—Chad Gibbon

During the late 1990's I had a lot of plants growing on the back porch of "A" building. Manny had some pepper plants growing out there too. As we watered our plants, he and I discussed what grew well and what didn't, and how the ants would eat his peppers just as they started to ripen. We became friends during those gardening days.

—Carol Golby-Saunders

I first met Manny in 2003. He worked at the KREMS work center and we were doing a large project that was approximately six months in duration. It required long days in the sun and hard work: sand blasting, painting and moving large equipment. ... Manny was always there working hard with a smile on his face. In 2008, my job took me away from Roi until I returned in 2016 to TRADEX. Manny was still at the work center and was still mainly supporting ALTAIR. He still had that smile and we went right back to catching up if we saw each other in passing on Roi! His presence will be missed on Roi as a worker, but mostly as a friend.

JAPANESE DELEGATION VISITS WAR MEMORIALS

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

Visiting family members of fallen Japanese Soldiers commemorated the lives of loved ones lost during WWII in memorial ceremonies on Kwajalein and Roi-Namur last week. Their visit was organized by Nippon Izokukai, the Japan War-Bereaved Families Association Welfare Department. The group travels annually to sites in the Pacific to include Kwajalein and Wotje, in the Marshall Islands; Wake Island; Guam; and the Kiribati Islands, to honor and preserve the memory of Soldiers and civilians lost in the Pacific.

U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll Host Nation Specialist Mike Sakaio led visitors on guided tours of Roi-Namur and Kwajalein, March 12 and 13. On Kwajalein, the group toured bunkers and battle sites before conducting a ceremony of remembrance at the island's south end war memorial. The modest marker, framed by towering coniferous trees, was erected to honor the memory of those who fell during the Battle of Kwajalein.

The group arranged tokens of remembrance, photographs, foods and burned incense to begin the ceremony. Section Manager Atsushi Shigei greeted the gathering and recognized USAG-KA Commander Col. James DeOre and family members present. According to Shigei, many of the visitors lost fathers.

One by one, the bereaved approached the memorial. They addressed the fallen with letters read aloud. Together, they placed sticks of incense at the shrine and shared a moment of silence.

Following the ceremony, DeOre spoke with many of the visitors, who thanked him for his presence. Together, they took a group photo, talked and shared photographs of the loved ones they had traveled to honor.

"My grandfather was half American," said visitor Anri Hachiya, displaying an heirloom family photograph. "He's such a handsome man in this photo."

"My father was an engineer," added another. "He wanted to travel and see the Pacific region. So, he joined the Japanese Navy."

Following the ceremony, the visitors traveled to Emon Beach to enjoy the water before convening at the Zamperini Cafeteria for an afternoon meal. Together they would travel to other sites to offer their act of remembrance before returning home.

On Kwajalein, the message inscribed on the memorial describes that mandate to remember:

"In memory of those gallant men who fought and died for their country at the Marshall and Gilbert Islands during the Second World War. May they lie in peace."

PACIFIC PARTNERSHIP COMES TO KWAJALEIN

Pacific Partnership is the U. S. Navy's humanitarian and civic assistance mission conducted with and through partner nations, non-governmental organizations and other U.S. and international government agencies to execute a variety of humanitarian civic action missions in the Pacific Fleet area of responsibility.

Pacific Partnership is designed to strengthen alliances, improve U.S. and partner capacity to deliver humanitarian assistance and disaster relief and improve security cooperation among partner nations. Pacific Partnership will provide healthcare assistance and environmental sustainability from aboard the USNS Brunswick (T-EPF 6).

NEW SURFWAY MANAGER

BY JORDAN VINSON

Meet Surfway's new manager, Phillip Kenley. He's been on the job, getting the lay of the land and the store for the past two weeks.

Kenley comes to U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll following several years working with the Army and Air Force Exchange Service. He worked stateside at Fort Leonard Wood, Missouri and also in remote locations in Iraq and Afghanistan, where supply chain management and operations can be extremely challenging. With experience working with the Defense Commissary Agency during his AAFES tenure, Kenley's skill set will lend itself well to the unique nature of ordering and shipping in the food the community depends on at the Kwaj and Roi Surfway stores.

Outside of his demanding job, Kenley looks forward to enjoying what this little island community has to offer.

"This is honestly the nicest remote assignment I've ever had," he said. "This is beautiful. Absolutely great weather and nice people. I look forward to supporting the community by making positive improvements to the store and enjoying some time on the beach."

THIS TEAM WORKS, SAYS DIRECTOR OF NURSING

HOURLASS REPORT

Dr. Catherine Barbieri is Kwajalein Hospital's new Director of Nursing, and she says the International SOS (ISOS) team works.

Barbieri has worked as a traveling medical professional since late 2013 and has lived on island for almost two months. The Nursing Director maintains a dwelling in Oklahoma. She has enjoyed traveling for work so much that she has not adopted a fixed point of origin as "home," but is originally from the Boston area. So far, out of all her work locations, Barbieri reports she enjoys working on Kwajalein the most. She spoke with admiration of the ISOS personnel employed at the Kwajalein Hospital.

"We really have a talented team of people," said Barbieri. "And they're out in the community. They're at the Yokwe Yuk Women's Club and the Kwajalein Yacht Club. They're out bowling. They're being part of a team outdoors."

Valuable contributions are made behind the scenes everyday by the unsung heroes of the reception, billing and records teams. Medical staff members have diverse expertise in areas as varied as family medicine, hyperbaric medicine and public health.

"Our pharmacist is stellar, with a doctoral degree in pharmacy" said Barbieri. "We have the same level of practice and support here as you would experience in the United States."

Speaking for herself, Barbieri focused her professional medical study in nursing education with a minor in human factors engineering and has training in data analytics and project management.

"I like being in a position that allows me to use all of my skills and talents," Barbieri said.

There are specialized moments when team members share their skills and help train others, like former Kwaj dentist Dr. Jon Sok. He performed a concussion clinic for new island coaches to be sure they were better equipped to assist injured athletes. According to the Nursing Director, it's all part of being an effective team. With a number of new teammates on the ISOS crew, the skills and abilities of the hospital to assist garrison residents increases.

Barbieri says it is exciting to see the changes. She encourages the community to get to know the ISOS team. "I want people to be comfortable visiting this critical access care facility," said Barbieri. "We are here to help. We offer a topnotch level of care."

PACIFIC PARTNERSHIP 2019 OPENS IN MARSHALL ISLANDS

EXTERNAL REPORT

By Pacific Partnership 2019 Public Affairs

Pacific Partnership 2019, the largest annual multinational humanitarian assistance and disaster relief preparedness mission conducted in the Indo-Pacific, kicked off with an opening ceremony and reception aboard the Military Sealift Command expeditionary fast transport ship USNS Brunswick (T-EPF 6), March 11.

As USNS Brunswick arrived at its first mission port, the Republic of the Marshall Islands, March 10, military personnel from the U.S., Australia, Canada, Japan, Peru and the United Kingdom are scheduled to take part in a variety of projects to include disaster response seminars and training to improve overall disaster preparedness, sports games and band concerts with local schools, installation of rain water catchment and filtration and community-wide health fairs.

"The Marshall Islands affirm our commitment to the U.S., partner nations and members of this mission," said the Kalani Kaneko, Minister of Health and Human Services, at the opening ceremony.

"Pacific Partnership 2019 is an indication of the United States' and other partner countries' firm desire to further strengthen the partnership with the Republic of the Marshall Islands and other countries in the region through the Indo-Pacific strategy," he said.

Pacific Partnership in its 14th iteration features two expeditionary fast transport (EPF) catamarans Brunswick and USNS Fall River (T-EPF 4). The EPF features high-speed sealift mobility with inherent cargo handling capability, ideal for fluid missions like humanitarian assistance and disaster relief.

"Pacific Partnership is a unifying mission that fosters enduring friendships and cooperation among many nations," said Royal Navy Capt. Paddy Allen, Pacific Partnership 2019 director of mission. "We are excited to be returning for the fourth time to the Marshall Islands, where Pacific Partnership has worked to strengthen ties and build national capabilities and preparedness for disaster emergencies."

The U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of the Marshall Islands Karen Stewart said, "When I first arrived here as Ambassador close to three years ago, one of my dreams was to bring Pacific Partnership back to Majuro. At first I thought it was only a dream but my staff and the United States Navy have worked hard to bring the Brunswick and crew and the Pacific Partnership team here."

She brought attention to one of the Pacific Partnership team members aboard Brunswick, U.S. Army Sgt. Joseia Lemari, a native of Uliga, Majuro, serving as a member of the 130th Engineer Brigade, 84th Engineer Battalion in the construction of a rain water catchment system at Long Island Elementary School.

"I never expected to be part of something as big as Pacific Partnership," he said. "This mission is why I joined. When I saw military members in their uniforms, I knew I wanted to do something important like that."

Pacific Partnership began in response to one of the world's most catastrophic natural disasters, the December 2004 tsunami that devastated parts of South and Southeast Asia. The mission has evolved over the years from emphasis on direct care to an operation focused on enhancing partnerships through host nation subject matter expert and civil-military exchanges.

"The people of Marshall Islands especially appreciate the goodwill this Pacific Partnership visit brings," Mayor of Majuro Atoll, Ladie Jack said. "Pacific Partnership strengthens capacities to build resilience and disaster response preparedness. We are very grateful and very much appreciate the continued support of the United States government to our small island nation."

Working at the invitation of each host nation, Pacific Partnership is joined by partner nations that include Australia, Canada, Japan, Malaysia, Peru, the Philippines, South Korea, Thailand, and the United Kingdom to strengthen disaster response preparedness around the Indo-Pacific.

Pacific Partnership's mission is to work collectively with host and partner nations to enhance regional interoperability and disaster response capabilities, increase stability and security in the region, and foster new and enduring friendships across the Indo-Pacific.

to treaty obligations and historical ties. The United States is about to engage Donovia in its first battle with a near-peer competitor in over 80 years.

BACKGROUND

The U.S. Army finds itself at a historical inflection point, where disparate, yet related elements of an increasingly complex Operational Environment are converging, creating a situation where fast moving trends are rapidly transforming the nature of all aspects of society and human life—including the character of warfare.

It is important to take a creative approach to projecting and anticipating both transformational and enduring trends that will lend themselves to the depiction of the future. In this vein, the Army Mad Scientist Initiative is seeking your creativity and unique ideas to describe a battlefield that does not yet exist.

THE WRITING TASK

Write about the following scenario:

On March 17, 2030, the country of Donovia, after months of strained relations and covert hostilities, invades neighboring country Otso.

Donovia is a wealthy nation that is a near-peer competitor to the United States. Like the United States, Donovia has invested heavily in disruptive technologies such as robotics, AI, autonomy, quantum information sciences, bioenhancements and gene editing, space-based weapons and communications, drones, nanotechnology, and directed energy weapons.

The United States is a close ally of Otso and is compelled to intervene due

THREE WAYS TO APPROACH

1) Forecasting—Description of the timeline and events leading up to the battle.

2) Describing—Account of the battle while it's happening.

3) Backcasting—Retrospective look after the battle has ended (i.e., After Action Review or lessons learned).

WRITING QUESTIONS TO CONSIDER (U.S., ADVERSARIES, AND OTHERS)

1) What will forces and Soldiers look like in 2030?

2) What technologies will enable them or be prevalent on the battlefield?

3) What do Multi-Domain Operations look like in 2030?

CONTEST GUIDELINES

- Deadline is April 1
- No more than 5,000 words
- .doc or .docx format
- Conventional formatting (e.g., no columns) and have images “in line” with text
- Submissions from Government and DoD employees must be cleared through their respective PAOs

Story submissions must include the official release form (see page 11). Story submissions cannot have been previously published. Selected submissions may be chosen for publication or possible future speaking opportunities.

WEATHER WATCH

RTS WEATHER STATION STAFF

WEATHER DISCUSSION: The Intertropical Convergence Zone (ITCZ) is active. The ITCZ oriented east to west along 5N latitude, being an area of convergent trade winds causing heavy showers. Majuro and Namu atolls have generally been the northern extent of significant rain this past week. The ITCZ will remain active along 5N through the weekend. There is a model bringing a small wave in the ITCZ Monday and Tuesday, pushing it northward which may bring us some showers. Otherwise, we remain mostly dry with trade wind speeds below any advisory levels.

Other atolls in the central and northern RMI are experiencing extreme drought conditions. Kwajalein would be similar except for the significant rainfall we received from the beginning of Typhoon Wutip mid-February. Wotje Atoll, just 180 miles to our east, only received 0.4 inches of rainfall in February and just 0.04" in March and is suffering extreme drought. The three-month rainfall outlook (March-May) for the Northern RMI continues to expect below average precipitation due to the state of El Nino.

SATURDAY: Partly sunny with stray showers (less than 10 percent coverage across the atoll). Winds ENE-ESE at 10-15 knots.

SUNDAY: Partly sunny with stray showers (less than 10 percent coverage across the atoll). Winds ENE-E at 12-17 knots.

MONDAY: Partly becoming mostly cloudy. Widely scattered showers (20 percent coverage across the atoll). Winds NE-ESE at 14-18 knots.

NEXT WEEK: Partly to mostly cloudy Tuesday with widely scattered showers. Back to mostly dry conditions at end of week. Trade winds staying at 13-18 knots all week.
