Kwaj kids have all the fun—even on rain days.

As gray clouds rolled over Richardson Ravine Saturday, Nov. 9, U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll Morale, Welfare and Recreation personnel stayed in close contact with the RTS Weather Station to monitor thunder and lightning warnings that could impact the annual Shaving Cream Social. Luckily, all Pre-K and elementary school-aged participants were able to duke it out in the puddles before the event ended on account of inclement weather.

The social is a Kwaj tradition and a favorite amongst Kwaj kids and one of the few occasions when they don swim gear and head for dry land. Armed with cans of plain shaving cream, kids battle their peers in the ravine, filled partially with water to form a satisfying splash, until the next age group is called to play. No one near the splash zone is safe from the shaving cream. MWR lifeguards who stand duty in the zone often receive a friendly handful or three of shaving cream. Parents who started the event clean and dry biked home covered in white handprints. The kids themselves transform each other into shaving cream sculptures. We've got the proof. Check out these photos from the battle.

TEAMS CATCH VICTORY IN VETERANS DAY FISHING TOURNAMENT

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

This weekend, Kwajalein has a few more big fish stories to tell—and they’re all true.

The 2nd Annual All Atoll Veterans Day Fishing Tournament wrapped up Monday, Nov. 11. Crews returned from the two-day run to Roi-Namur and back, fatigued and sunburned, yet victorious, to weigh their catch and to compete for top prizes in two categories. U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation coordinated the tournament.

“Conditions were optimum for fishing,” said Rick Jameson, Small Boat Marina supervisor. “It can get too smooth, and then it’s harder to fish. When the surface gets hotter, fish swim deeper. It was a little choppy [out there], which is better for fishing and didn’t affect us at all. We had a couple of showers, but they just cooled us off.”

This year’s teams included seasoned fishermen and novices from USAG-KA and the Marshall Islands. Among the 56 registered participants, 42 were active duty service members or veterans of the U.S. military.

Fishermen arrived on Roi, weighed their catch, and met at the Outrigger for a pizza party Nov. 10. Everyone woke up early the following morning to fish for tasty trophies all the way back to Kwaj Nov. 11.

At the Kwajalein Small Boat Marina, the teams met Stephanie Prudence and volunteers who coordinated refreshments for the tired teams. The day’s travel ended with relaxation in the sun while rock music and the smell of roasted fish filled the air.

The 2019 teams competed for bragging rights and the top three places for the biggest fish and overall atoll champion, or biggest overall weight of catch for a haul that might include anything from ono/wahoo, to tuna, billfish and reef fish. The contest also featured a new, environmentally-friendly option.

“For the first time, ever, [the contest] supported catch and release, which is great for the local population,” said Jameson. “A few teams caught billfish, sailfish and decided to let them go. You can eat them, but they’re not great. Not like tuna and ono.”

Catch and release fish earned teams an automatic 250 points, regardless of the weight, and do the environment a good turn.

USAG-KA Commander Col. Jeremy Bartel and Command Sgt. Maj. Kenyatta Gaskins raffled off donated swag, gift items and more than $2,000 in cash prize money between the top three teams.

Jameson thanked the volunteers who donated prizes and stepped up to cook the tired teams’ dinner at the end of the tournament.

The fishing tournament grows in popularity each year, and this year was no exception. Over the tournament weekend, every rentable B-Boat on USAG-KA was put into service.

“We’ve grown to our limit,” said Jameson. “We used all the private boats interested in fishing and every single boat we could get.”

Jameson thanked the veterans who participated in the event with a special gift: free swag, koozies and donated gifts.

“For me, you’re all winners,” he said.

LOGCAP CELEBRATES MARINES BIRTHDAY ON KWAJALEIN

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

Somewhere last weekend, a U.S. Marine was eating a slice of birthday cake in honor of the Marine Corps' 244th birthday. The event is celebrated every year on Nov. 10, the anniversary of the establishment of the Continental Marines in 1775.

The Marines celebrate with a simple ceremony that connects them to their history. Cake is served and passed between Marines. The oldest Marine present receives cake and passes the next piece on to the youngest Marine, symbolic of how knowledge, traditions and history are passed down amongst ranks.

"They even deliver it out to the battlefield so that every Marine gets a slice," said Carlos Perez. Though he has retired from service, once a Marine, always a Marine. Perez coordinated a birthday ceremony last week on Nov. 9 at Kwajalein's LOGCAP headquarters.

Present in attendance were members of LOGCAP leadership, including DI Vice President Robert Tillery and Project Manager Richard Ellis. The first slices of cake were passed between Marines that Perez had located on island and invited to the ceremony.

Larry Conyers of Nan, Inc., had the distinction of being the oldest Marine present. He passed the second slice of cake to the youngest Marine, Salina Lujan.

Together, everyone sang the first verse of the USMC fight song and enjoyed the dessert together in celebration of Marines in service around the world.

ARMY CODE TALKERS

EXTERNAL REPORT

Napoleon once said, "the secret of war lies in the communications." If he were around today, he might have revised it to "secure communications."

During World Wars I and II, the military needed a quick and reliable means of protecting its radio, telephone and telegraphic messages from enemy intelligence. American Indian tribes had their own languages and dialects that few outside the tribes understood, and many of their languages were not even written down. Their languages were ideal for the task at hand and fortunately, a large number of Indians had joined the Armed Forces.

World War I

In France during World War I, the 142nd Infantry Regiment, 36th Division, had a company of Indians who spoke 26 languages and dialects. Two Indian officers were selected to supervise a communications system staffed by 18 Choctaw. The team transmitted messages relating to troop movements and their own tactical plans in their native tongue. Soldiers from other tribes, including the Cheyenne, Comanche, Cherokee, Osage and Yankton Sioux also were enlisted to communicate as code talkers. Previous to their arrival in France, the Germans had broken every American code used, resulting in the deaths of many Soldiers. However, the Germans never broke the Indians' "code," and these Soldiers became affectionately known as "code talkers."

World War II

During World War II, the Army used Indians in its signal communications operations in both the European and Pacific theaters of operations. Student code talkers were instructed in basic military communications techniques. The code talkers then developed their own words for military terms that never existed in their own native tongue. For instance, the word for

"colonel" was translated to "silver eagle," "fighter plane" became "hummingbird," "minesweeper" became "beaver," "half-track" became "race track," and "pyrotechnic" became "fancy fire."

The Army and Marine Corps used a group of 24 Navajo code talkers in the Pacific Theater, who fought in many bloody island campaigns. In North Africa, eight Soldiers from the Meskwaki tribe in Iowa served as code talkers in the 168th Infantry Regiment, 34th Division. In Europe, the 4th Signal Company, 4th Infantry Division, was assigned 17 Comanche code talkers. From the D-Day landings at Normandy in June 1944, to the liberation of Paris and the Battle of the Bulge, they kept the lines of communications secure.

Soldiers from other tribes, including the Kiowa, Winnebago, Chippewa, Creek, Seminole, Hopi, Lakota, Dakota, Menominee, Oneida, Pawnee, Sac, Fox and Choctaw, served during the war. Some were killed and wounded and at least one was taken prisoner. As a testament to their professionalism, the enemy was never able to break the code talkers' communications.

Many of the code talkers continued in their military careers, serving during the Korean and Vietnam wars.

Belated Recognition

For many years, the code talkers' work remained classified. Then on June 18, 2002, Congress passed the Code Talkers Recognition Act to recognize the important part that these Soldiers played in "performing highly successful communications operations of a unique type that greatly assisted in saving countless lives and in hastening the end of World War I and World War II." The act further states that the code talkers operated "under some of the heaviest combat action ... around the clock to provide information ... such as the location of enemy troops and the number of enemy guns."

Congress recognized the remarkable-ness of the code talkers' achievements, despite societal discrimination against them. The act states that at "... a time when Indians were discouraged from practicing their native culture, a few brave men used their cultural heritage, their language, to help change the course of history."

Leaders of the U.S. House and Senate honored Native American code talkers in a Congressional Gold Medal ceremony held in Emancipation Hall of the U.S. Capitol Visitor Center, Nov. 20, 2013. The medal - Congress's highest expression of appreciation - was awarded in recognition of the valor and dedication of these code talkers as members of our Armed Forces during World War I and World War II.

Former House Speaker John Boehner (R-OH) stated in his remarks, "Because of them, deeds that may well have been relegated to legend will now live on in memory. And heroes, who for too long went unrecognized, will now be given our highest recognition."

NOVEMBER IS NATIVE AMERICAN HERITAGE MONTH

In November, we honor American Indians and Alaska Natives. This year's theme is Sovereignty, Trust and Resilience. Native Americans have profoundly shaped the character and cultural heritage of the nation. During this month the Army will recognize the contributions of Native American Soldiers who have served in the U.S. Army with great honor, dedication and distinction, building a legacy of courage, professionalism and selfless service that will inspire future generations.

How does the Army recognize Native Americans?

During Native American Heritage Month, Army leadership encourages the entire Army family to recognize and express appreciation for the past and present contributions of Native American Soldiers, veterans, civilians and family members. In celebrating National Native American Indian Heritage Month, the Army recognizes there is great strength in diversity.

What continued efforts does the Army have planned?

In celebrating Native American Heritage Month, the Army recognizes not only the significance of individual contributions, but also the value of diversity and an inclusive environment. The Army is dedicated to leveraging the strength of its diverse force and ensuring equality for all its members. Army leaders will continue to work to ensure that all Soldiers and civilians are given the opportunity to maximize their unique talents and potential.

Why is this important to the Army?

Throughout history, Native Americans have served in this nation's military with great courage and distinction. Historically, American Indians have the highest record of military service per capita when compared to other ethnic groups. Today, more than 9,000 Native Americans serve in the total force and are all critical members of the Army team.

Embracing and celebrating diversity makes the Army stronger, and the Army is dedicated to ensuring equality for all the Soldiers, civilians and family members.

HOW WILL THEY APPROACH YOU OR GAIN ACCESS?

Official Foreign Visitors | Collectors may pose as members of a foreign government organization, or an intelligence or security service. Vetted Official Foreign Visitors and their entourage may include last minute, unvetted substitutions.

Conference/Expo/Tradeshow | Public venues align new technologies and Subject Matter Experts. The adversary can collect personal information through registration and/or sign-in.

Academic Solicitation | “Innocent” requests for information may come from students, professors, scientists, or researchers; a foreign affiliation may not be readily apparent.

Unsolicited Contact/Email | The adversary may use the name of a well-known company to send requests for military-related information. This method is fast and often undetected.

Joint Research Ventures | Alerts an adversary to current scientific initiatives and the military’s latest activities, allowing for tailored contact attempts.

WHO IS AT RISK?

Cleared defense contractors and scientific researchers—because of who you are, what you research, and your knowledge of manufacturing processes, prototypes, and developed products.

WHO ARE THEY?

Traditional Collectors | Foreign Governments and Foreign Businesses whose intent is to illegally acquire information or trade secrets.

Non-Traditional | Can be anyone: scientists, researchers and developers, students, or sometimes our trusted colleagues who work along side us.

WHAT MAKES YOU A VALUABLE TARGET?

You have access to valuable insider and proprietary information. In the hands of the adversary, it can shorten their R&D efforts, counter our tech advantage, and cost us untold billions of dollars.

PHOTO-FUN WAY TO KEEP KWAJ CLEAN

National Clean-Up Day is the third Saturday in September, but on Kwajalein, we can celebrate anytime we want.

This November the Kwajalein Hourglass challenges residents to pick up trash from the beaches, sort the like items, count up the total and take a selfie with your haul. Feel free to include a brief statement about why you chose to participate in cleaning up our island.

Photos and totals will run in the Dec. 14 edition of the paper. The grand prize is having a cleaner beach and some quality time with yourself or your loved ones as you make our beaches even more beautiful than they already are. Since you'll be helping the environment, it's a win-win situation.

Send photos to kwajaleinhourglass@dyn-intl.com by Dec. 7 to participate.

E-wareness: Waste Oil Management

Contact Environmental at 5-1134 for information.

Waste petroleum products may be incinerated for energy recovery provided they meet specifications in the USAKA Environmental Standards and are not characteristically hazardous. Waste oil best management practices include:

- Always utilize a waste tracking log for each container and never mix waste oil with other waste streams including gas, paints, solvents, or coolants.
- Always maintain adequate headspace in used oil drums to reduce over-pressurization associated with thermal expansion and chemical reactions.
- Always store waste oil drums in a secure location, away from drains, in secondary containment, and protected from the elements.

- Maintain an adequate spill kit in proximity to the drum storage area.
- Ensure drums are clearly labeled in accordance with site procedures.
- Minimize the quantity of stored material by ensuring timely notification to the Haz Waste department for drum pickup scheduling.

WEATHER WATCH

WEATHER DISCUSSION: The Intertropical Convergence Zone, a trade wind convergence area where taller convective rains develop, will be located along 6-7N at the start of the weekend. The forecast for Saturday forecast calls for more rain. Next, the subtropical ridge builds in strength and develops stronger ENE trade winds to nudge the ITCZ south. For remainder of weekend, expect isolated showers and persistent trade winds. The ITCZ remains along 6N for most of next week. Majuro continues to see periodic rain while Kwajalein is within the persistent trade winds. In this pattern, showers that we do receive tend to be smaller in size and pass overhead at a faster pace.

Mid-November will be drier than normal. Thus far we have received 3.27 inches of rainfall, or 63 percent of normal. NOAA will release their three-month precipitation outlook for the Marshall Islands today. Both Kwajalein and Majuro regions are expected to receive above average precipitation during the next 3 months.

SATURDAY: Partly sunny with widely scattered showers early (20 percent coverage) becoming isolated for the evening (10 percent coverage). Winds ENE-SE around 5 knots.

SUNDAY: Partly sunny with isolated showers (10 percent coverage). Winds ENE-E at 13-17 knots.

MONDAY: Partly sunny with isolated showers (10 percent coverage). Winds ENE-E at 10-15 knots.
