AMERICAN LEGION POST #44 HEADQUARTERS DAMAGED BY WEEKEND WEATHER

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

Community members are advised to stay clear of the Vets Hall this week following damage to the facility caused by strong winds and rain Oct. 24. The American Legion Post #44 headquarters has sustained damage to its roof and walls.

No community residents or legion members were injured.

First Vice Commander Scott Cottrell issued a message to legion membership to remain out of the building until garrison safety inspections are complete.

“The plan is to save what we can in the damaged part of the building, moving it to the—hopefully—safe part of the building,” wrote Cottrell to the Kwajalein Hourglass.

A portion of the hall’s corrugated metal roof plate has sheared off the building. Roof-support beams have collapsed, exposing a portion of the building’s interior, and impacting seams in wall plating along a storage area.

The hall bar and social area, and its distinctive collection of military insignia and historic photographs chronicling legion and membership history, remains undamaged, along with portions of the interior hallway and the entire outdoor deck area.

“Garrison safety needs to see what it is safe for us to do,” Cottrell said. “The safety of our members and the community has to come first.”

Kwajalein’s American Legion post was established in 1977. Through the years, membership has actively contributed to fundraising, scholarships and veteran observance events.

A mainstay of island life since 1984, the hall has served as a location for legion fundraisers, fellowship, meetings and special event nights. On many occasions, the Legion has donated money to veterans’ charities and has supported island programs like high school scholarships, school initiatives and activities for the island’s Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts of America. The legion has also hosted many fundraisers over the years for community members in need.

Until 2018, and a change in Army policies, the hall’s amenities made it a favorite choice for corporate holiday gatherings and visiting military personnel. It continues to be an active site for private gatherings and legion events.

“It’s unfortunate that we are losing part of the building,” said Post Commander Dan Farnham. “The metal-framed part of the facility has been deteriorating for some time. As Kwaj residents, we all know that metal structures in this environment, especially those that are 50-some years old, eventually must be taken down due to corrosion. The metal-framed part of the building is at that point, now.”

Farnham said the Vets Hall will continue to be an active site for private gatherings and Legion events, as well as a home-away-from home for legion members and their guests.

Though the Vets Hall facility may be smaller in the future, legion activities will continue, Farnham said.

“The community can expect the American Legion to continue to be an active and integral part of the Kwaj community,” Farnham said.

U.S., RMI CELEBRATE 35TH ANNIVERSARY OF COMPACT OF FREE ASSOCIATION

HOURLASS REPORT

Compiled by Mike Brantley,
USAG-KA Public Affairs Officer

In 1986, the Compact of Free Association, a document defining the special relationship between the Republic of the Marshall Islands and the United States, was ratified and signed by then-U.S. President Ronald and the RMI Nijela.

On Oct. 21, 1986, the COFA was put in place for a 15-year term with renewal to be negotiated. In 1991, the RMI became a member of the United Nations. An amended COFA was signed on Dec. 17, 2003.

On Oct. 21, the U.S. and RMI celebrated the 35th anniversary of the COFA at the Marshall Islands Resort in Majuro. The ceremony was attended by U.S. Ambassador to the Republic of the Marshall Islands Roxanne Cabral and U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll Commander Col. Thomas Pugsley.

Cabral delivered her entire speech in Marshallese, welcoming all to the ceremony that marked the continuing positive relationship and strong partnership between the U.S. and the RMI. While 35 years marks the signing of the COFA by the two countries, the U.S. presence in the RMI has been constant since the end of WWII.

Also participating in the ceremony were members of American Legion Post #22, the first Majuro chapter of the U.S. military veterans' organization, comprised of Marshallese and U.S. citizens.

The RMI remains an important U.S. ally. The mutual bonds of friendship between the nations have continue to be strengthened over the years.

KWAJALEIN VET TECHS TEAM UP FOR PET HEALTH

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

This week, Kwajalein bids a fond farewell to outgoing veterinary technician Danielle Rinaldi and welcomes incoming vet tech Heather St. Peters to the island community.

Rinaldi will complete her Kwajalein tour after several years of work keeping island pets in good health. During her time on USAG-KA, Rinaldi helped educate the public with information about best pet care in tropical environments and what to do if an island resident encountered a wounded or feral animal. She continued services throughout the pandemic even as atoll travel restrictions precluded regular visits from an Army veterinarian.

Rinaldi looks forward to future travels after her departure. She wishes the island's pets well and knows they will be in good hands with St. Peters.

Originally hailing from Washington, St. Peters said enjoys the challenges and joys of helping animals be healthy. For St. Peters, her employment was a matter of destiny.

"I always knew I wanted to help animals," said St. Peters, of her career choice.

Both vet techs were on the job last week at the veterinary services clinic Together, they helped facilitate a routine checkup and blood draw for Jack, a USAG-KA cat resident.

Having recently completed quarantine, St. Peters said she enjoys the chance to spend more time outdoors. She looks forward to being part of the island community and looks forward to snorkeling and joining the island community.

MAKE LIKE A TREE—AND ENTER THIS ISLAND CONTEST

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

Those who are pining for a real holiday tree have the chance to rekindle their island holiday spirit. It's almost time for pallet trees.

USAG-KA Family & MWR continues a creative upcycling project this year that began in the mid-2000s—inviting the community to turn shipping pallets into personal holiday trees. Winners in the island-wide contest earn prizes, bragging rights and—if you live in Army Family Housing—hordes of people pausing travel at your quarters to check out your porch.

If your adoring fans show up, don't skimp out. Bring them hot cocoa.

As much as I miss sinking into knee-deep snow to wrangle a live spruce, nothing beats this Kwaj tradition.

As the legend goes, the pallet tree contest began as a means to spread holiday cheer through the daylight hours, as the use of holiday lights was deterred for a time due to power usage reasons.

Yet, as well chronicled as pallet upcycling is online as a chic "lifehack," it is not surprising that Kwajalein residents continue to enjoy the creative fun when provided with a free, blank canvas.

Few could have imagined how long Kwaj residents would desire to keep their trees on display. The evergreen solution to indoor-outdoor porch décor grew into an expression of Kwaj originality—the kind that you can leave up year-round. Trees have been observed on display through July: The household could not bear to part with the artwork.

Your chance is coming up to get in on the fun and see what you can create.

As in yesteryear, logistics personnel will "chop" the pallets down to tree-sized dimensions and create a holiday tree farm in the downtown area in early November. Free paint supplies and trees will be available on site until they aren't, and trees should be posted on porches or acceptable display areas for voting to commence in early December.

No two trees are the same before or after they are painted. Past contestants have created trees plastered in sandals, sea glass, plastics and bottlecaps that have washed ashore. Others opt for paint and create trees resembling quilts, nativity scenes, sunsets and—you should have seen it, it was great—last year's distinctive red Fender Stratocaster guitar.

Whether you choose to create the general garden-variety pallet tree or celebrate winter by checking out porches, branch out and let your own holiday spirit take root and grow.

POTABLE WATER SYSTEM FLUSHING

The Kwajalein Water Plant will flush the potable water system main pipes through Oct. 30.

No interruption of service is expected. Due to sediment in the pipes, you may notice some discoloration of your water.

If you experience brown or rusty water, do not use your washing machine for one day. Only resume use after you flush the sink and shower for several minutes until the water runs clear.

If the issue persists, call Liquid Systems at 5-1847 or 5-9081.

Island residents are likewise reminded to please never flush paper towels, as these do not disintegrate in the island's plumbing systems and can severely damage machinery at the Wastewater Treatment Plant.

HEALTH CONNECTION

BY KWAJALEIN HOSPITAL

1. Can I give my pet Tylenol or other over-the-counter-pain medications?

While over-the-counter medications such as acetaminophen, ibuprofen, and naproxen work wonders for humans experiencing pain and inflammation, they cannot be used in treating our pets for similar clinical signs.

These drugs are extremely toxic and can result in death if administered to your pet. If you suspect your pet has ingested one of these medications, please contact Kwajalein Veterinary Services immediately.

The sooner your pet gets treatment, the higher their chances of survival are. If you suspect your pet is experiencing pain, please schedule an appointment with veterinary services for examination. The clinic carries prescription alternatives that are safe for your pets.

WEATHER WATCH

RTS WEATHER STATION STAFF

With the help of La Niña conditions, the long-awaited wet season expected this summer has persevered into the fall months.

La Niña is a weather pattern within the Pacific Ocean in which easterly trade winds are stronger than normal and push warmer waters further to the western Pacific. Cooler sea surface temperatures generally suppress precipitation development for most of the Pacific and create greater precipitation at its westernmost edge and in Oceania. Depending on the time of year, Kwajalein is often stuck between these conditions, with either more or less precipitation relative or normal.

The average- to above-average precipitation over the last two months are consistent with typical La Niña conditions. As a few systems keep a subtropical ridge at bay, the Intertropical Convergence Zone has settled over the region for most of the month.

Expect next week to be like last week, with subtle waves embedded within wind flow creating periods of widely scattered to scattered precipitation. Cooler mid-levels and enhanced upper-level divergence will develop some thunderstorms amidst these showers. Winds are expected to vary from the northeast to southeast throughout the week, bookended by two weekends of gentle to moderate breezes.

SATURDAY: Mostly cloudy to partly sunny with isolated to widely scattered showers and stray morning thunderstorms. ENE-ESE 12-17 knots with higher gusts near showers.

SUNDAY: Mostly cloudy with widely scattered showers and stray evening thunderstorms. NE-ESE 10-15 knots, higher gusts near showers.

MONDAY: Mostly cloudy with scattered showers and stray thunderstorms becoming partly sunny with isolated showers. ENE-ESE 8-13 knots, higher gusts near morning showers.

NEXT WEEK: Weaker winds with periods of widely scattered to scattered showers and stray thunderstorms, particularly in the middle of the week. Increased cloud cover expected for most of the time with thinner cloud cover allowing some sunshine. Winds expected from the ENE-ESE at gentle speeds becoming moderate to fresh breezes late in the week.

HOW OUR NEWSPAPER GOT ITS NAME

The shoulder sleeve insignia of the 7th Infantry Division consists of two black, equilateral triangles placed vertically on a red circular disc giving it an hourglass shape. The hourglass of the insignia was consequently used in the title of the island newspaper, The Kwajalein Hourglass.
