QUESTION AND ANSWERS WITH CHENEGA SECURITY

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

COVID or not, each day, personnel from Chenega Global Protection work to maintain safe and secure entry and exit points around U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll.

Chenega officers assist with everything from the 24-hour Central Patrol Station non-emergency line to maintaining a constant security presence around Kwajalein.

Among the myriad tasks they perform each day, passenger services are a top priority. Each weekday, security personnel assist the more than 1,000 commuters who transit from Ebeye to Kwajalein for work.

The island's contract security service has continued to support USAG-KA's "Live Safe, Work Safe" program and changing health protection condition levels.

To learn more about daily operations, The Kwajalein Hourglass reached out to Chief Chris Ramsey and Dock Security Checkpoint Lt. Larry Bowman.

"In our work areas, Chenega is enforcing six-foot social distancing, masks, and workplace capacity," said Ramsey.

"We are "navigating through the waters" at a different pace every day."

The current health protection condition level has had a temporary impact on daily commuting to and from Ebeye. Masks and social distancing are still required for all essential personnel commuting to and from Kwajalein by ferry," said Bowman.

The main sponsorship program for Ebeye visitors to Kwajalein remains temporarily closed by USAG-KA due to health and safety concerns related to the pandemic.

"A few entry programs remain open with strict guidelines, and all must adhere to security personnel as they pass through the DSC," added Bowman. "As far as other DSC-related services, the American Eatery remains open for take-out orders."

To assist in social distancing, it is recommended non-essential personnel refrain from visiting the DSC, and that customers at the American Eatery refrain from loitering in the DSC area after food has been delivered, Bowman said.

Chenega is one of the island's largest employers of Marshallese citizens. As COVID has spread through the Ebeye community, it has impacted the Chenega team as well. The team coordinated its staffing efforts to allow for the best possible outcome.

"Most of our personnel from the local work force have been out with COVID," Bowman said. "We added more employees to continue to support the USAG-KA mission, and we continue to do so."

"I wanted to remain fully mission capable, so we reduced staffing in some areas and revised work schedules," said Ramsey. "Most schedules then allowed for one team to stay safe and ready to relieve others. This allowed anyone COVID-positive to recover and return to work. At one time, more than one half of my workforce was out with COVID, and we still performed at a FMC level. Kudos to my team for all their efforts and hard work. We aren't out of the water yet; however, the recovery and return to work time was remarkable."

Chenega Entry and Exit personnel are also supporting USAG-KA Command's current restriction of movement protocol for Air Marshall Islands passengers. To minimize the potential for increased community spread of COVID-19, arriving AMI passengers are escorted from the AMI terminal and the DSC.

"When at the DSC, we have a designated area for the passengers to sit and wait comfortably indoors," said Ramsey. "We also provide bottled water upon request until the boat departs for Ebeye."

Prior to work on USAG-KA, Ramsey worked with Chenega in Japan. He said he is impressed with Kwajalein's recovery.

"Kwajalein, in my opinion, has learned lessons from the past and recovered remarkably well—and at a pace I never saw in Japan," said Ramsey. "Perhaps it's the discipline of the residents here and on Roi-Namur, or guidance given out by the Garrison with those lessons learned. I honestly didn't expect us to go from A to C+ and back down so rapidly, here. It is super impressive."

Chenega looks forward to leaving the challenges of COVID behind and moving forward together. Ramsey summed up the experience for his team: "One team, one fight."

MEAL CARD HOLDERS IN ISOLATION

If you are isolating due to a positive COVID test result, do the following to receive meals from Zamperini Dining Facility using your meal card with the help of a designated caretaker:

1) Provide proof of your positive COVID test result to International SOS and their corresponding human resources representative with:

- Name
- Meal card number
- BQ or Facility Name/Number
- Room number
- Local telephone number (not cellular, WhatsApp, Teams, etc.)

2) HR's, not individuals, must supply the above information to clint.weaver@vectrus.com to ensure the isolated individual's information is added to the list. The listing will be updated at the COB each day and routed to Food Services personnel for the following day. Please understand this will be done once a day, so there will likely be gaps in meal service.

3) Caretaker(s) who will be picking up the meal(s) for the isolated individual must have the meal card number for the isolated individual and their own K-badge in order to sign in at the Zamperini Dining Facility.

4) It is the responsibility of the caretaker to deliver the meal to the isolated individual.

For those self-isolating, Assign Post Office Caretaker

You can designate a postal caretaker to retrieve your packages and mail from the post office when you are not able to do so. Island residents may opt to assign a caretaker when planning vacation, while self-isolating after exposure to COVID-19 or a positive COVID-19 test, and while recovering from an injury.

Email your caretaker request to von.jenkins@vectrus.com and isaac.larios@vectrus.com.

SCHOOL SPIRIT

KWAJALEIN HIGH SCHOOL REFURBISHED

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

Not even the pandemic could stop progress on LOGCAP refurbishments projects for the Kwajalein School System.

Beginning this year, high school students enrolled in Family and Consumer Science classes, formerly Home Economics, will learn in a modernized culinary environment, thanks to some hard work by logistics personnel.

Traditional seating and an assortment of new workstations, cabinet systems and electric ranges are augmented by kitchen islands, teacher demo areas and modernized appliances. Standing coolers, new stoves and ventilation systems are also installed and ready for classes.

DPW personnel also added a fresh coat of paint and new flooring to the FCS classroom.

The much-needed update was completed just before the beginning of the school year and has been in progress for more than two years.

Work on the FCS classroom follows a long-term renovation for one high school science classroom and the entire high school library, in 2020. A second science lab was completed this year.

A distinctive new paint job is showcased is the Kwajalein High School Davye Davis Multi-purpose Room, where bold stripes of white and navy blue offer a fresh accent to the historic space. As part of an ongoing improvements plan, both KHS George Seitz Elementary School received a full exterior paint job as well as significant interior painting to touch-up school walls.

LOGCAP V Operations Manager Jan Potter thanks the many DPW supervisors and personnel who have contributed to the project over the years, with expertise contributed by electricians, plumbers, painters and carpenters, among others. Potter, who has seen the project from start to finish, completed ordering for all the materials utilized with MB Taylor, former Community Activities director for Kwajalein under LOGCAP IV, in 2019.

As the project spanned years and a base operations services contract transition, Potter has provided the long-term momentum to see the project fully realized. To date, all materials purchased for the project are installed per the intended refurbishment plan.

“To me, the best part is for students to actually use something modern that looks fresh, with new flooring, cabinets and appliances,” Potter said. “It shows them that the community cares about their learning environment.”

The MP Room served as a critical staging area for the thousands of pounds of equipment utilized in the refurbishment project, said Potter. This summer, it’s spacious size and paint job also made it an attractive location for an historic meeting: the first round of renewal talks in June for the Compact of Free Association.

To accommodate the summit, the school refurbishment project was placed on hold for a full week. Crews removed all hardware, supplies and materials prepare the MP Room for the first meeting between the delegations from the United States and Marshall Islands. Despite the change of timeline, logistics teams completed their last installations in time for the first day of school on Aug. 10, Potter said.

So far, the high school students and staff are enjoying their new environs. Just this week, FCS students tried out their new stoves with a lunchtime pizza-making project.

“Kwajalein Junior Senior High School has a long legacy of Home Economics, now renamed Family and Consumer Science education,” said KHS teacher and FCS instructor Sarah Scott. “We are proud to continue to offer classes that allow students to create and learn valuable life skills. The kitchen renovation has brought updates for the students to be able to learn culinary and design skills on more up-to-date equipment. A fresh and bright new look was a great way for us to start the year together.”

Special thanks to all the hardworking personnel who have worked to conduct a complete refurbishment at the Kwajalein High School campus. Numerous new desks, hardware, fixtures and appliances were installed at the freshly-painted school in time for the first day of classes this year. The refurbishment took thousands of hours, and the efforts of the island's electrical, plumbing and carpentry repair shops. 1) The former Home Economics classroom at Kwajalein High School was transformed into the present day Family and Consumer Science classroom. AWAIT YOUR TERN: THE STORY OF AN ISLAND BIRD

FEATURE / JESSICA DAMBRUCH

The white tern had laid her single egg in an old Kwajalein tree. Her fledgling was barely visible as it surveyed the world from the safety of its mother's feathers. Before long, the two tiny black eyes and small fluff of gray down nestled in the delicate crook formed by low-hanging branches would soar.

The little newcomer gripped its bare branch with tiny, sharp talons. Its parents delivered small fish. A veritable featherweight, it addressed the sky and the occasional passerby with a high-pitched call as its feathers began to change from gray to white.

I have rarely seen a young tern up close, so I decided to photograph it. The following day, I took my camera outdoors, ready for almost anything. To my surprise, both the tree and the bird were gone.

How the little island underdog, or "underbird," with no tree managed to make its way to the island's treetops is a good Kwaj story. It involves our community coming together to give a small creature a better chance. It is also a story that makes more sense once you learn a thing or two about Kwajalein's terns.

White terns are often sighted on Kwajalein Atoll and throughout the Pacific region. They are protected in Hawaii, where they are counted and tracked across the islands. In the past two decades, New Zealand has made strong efforts to increase its tern population after facing reductions caused by predatory rats and cats. Under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, it is illegal to capture, kill or hunt white terns. Those who do are subject to fines of up to $15,000, according to whiteterns.org.

Those unfamiliar with the habits of the white tern, may find it peculiar that terns do not always build nests for their eggs. Often, they lay eggs in low trees with branches short enough to balance their brood. In the Marshall Islands, terns also nest on the ground or on a convenient rock. Not relying on a nest means fewer pesky parasites with which to contend.

Keep an eye out for nearby terns. Once a bird establishes a habitat, the family is likely to come back. Each spring, tern parents wait for 35 days for their single egg to hatch, and approximately 45 days for the little one to be able to fly while they take turns providing small fish for meals.

Young terns may be fluffy, but they pop out of their shells ready to grip branches to anchor themselves to home.

Over many weeks, the soft, baby down feather is replaced by the sleek, white feathers of a mature bird. As their flight radius and strength increases, terns travel farther afield.

Terns are long-lived birds, sometimes growing older than 40 years. They are graceful fishermen who can travel for more than 100 miles in a day. For ancient navigators, they were a hopeful sign. The presence of the small white birds with the loud, raspy call meant that land was near, and the journey was nearly over.

White terns are treasured by mariners, ornithologists and complete amateurs like me, an admitted former cat owner. Anyone can dig into tern truths with resources available from Hawaii-based conservation group Hui Manu-o-Kū. Dedicated to the study and protection of terns through collaboration with like-minded groups such as the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the Hawaii Department of Land and Natural Resources, the group's namesake is derived from the Hawaiian name for the white tern: "manu-o-Kū," or "Bird of Kū," the feathered Hawaiian god of war.

I enjoy watching Kwaj terns hover in the breeze and feel fortunate whenever I glimpse a fledgling. Many don't survive.

"We have a bird in our tree," a friend had told me the year before.

It was a different egg, in a different tree, outside of the Sands BQ. We went outside to look at it.

"They say that it's supposed to be good luck to have a bird in your tree," she said. "Lots of money!"

We had laughed, then, about the money.

The next day there was a fierce windstorm. Only eggshells remained: disaster.

I stared down at the stump and wondered where the tree and its bird had gone.

Sometimes Kwaj trees go missing when they become safety hazards to homes or island residents.

I had suspected this gnarled tree might be dead. Thin soil had retreated from its roots and left them clawing at the empty air. The leaves had long since withered. There was no sign of the bird family I'd spied in its branches.

"The bird is still there," said former Kwaj resident Dave Dethlefsen one afternoon, during a softball game.

This bird had made it back up onto the stump and wedged its gray body just out of my sight. It appeared uninjured. Perhaps it could reconnect with its family.

This past March, Heather St. Peter, Kwajalein's veterinary technician, shared tips for understanding the island's wild birds. Her advice is sound:

"If you find a fledgling—a young, fully feathered bird—outside the nest, leave it alone," she said. "While it is spending some time hopping around on the ground learning how to fly, the parents are usually nearby still taking care of it. Should you find a fledgling near a road or exposed to danger, it can be moved to a safer, sheltered location nearby. Young birds naturally have lower survival rates, which keeps populations in balance with available resources."

It is hard to do nothing for such a small bird, but it proved itself resilient.

Weeks went by. The bird's parents did return often with fish, and it grew bigger, and stronger. As the sun traveled, the bird circumnavigated the stump to find new places to try to take cover. When heavy spring rains deluged the roads, the bird toughed it out, face pointed up into the water. After each storm had passed, it stretched up to its full height, fluffed out its feathers and recovered.

The bird had no proper tree, but it did have a growing fan base.

More than a few island residents spotted the bird's "hideout." They became fascinated by terns. It wasn't uncommon to wander into conversations about Kwaj creatures and their respective do's and don'ts for the natural world. Some researched tern habits and checked in with the vet tech for an occasional update.

The bird inspired art.

A friend who had never paid birds much attention discovered a newfound joy as an amateur birder on fishing trips. He described how white terns and black noddies race along the shoreline. It had reminded him of fighter jets practicing flight patterns.

"I recorded them flying, and then I overdubbed dialogue from 'Top Gun,'" he said.

The bird had a better chance because our community left it alone—except for the safety barriers. We couldn't help it.

Days after the tree had gone missing, someone nailed together a humble perch bearing an aptly scribbled name: "Birb." Someone erected a band of orange safety fence was around the stump to keep out feral cats.

At the end of each workday, I'd check in on the bird. Then, I'd chase away the curious feral cat.

At last, I met the friends who had helped to vector the bird back to the tree stump and away from the island's busy thoroughfares when it began to wander farther afield.

Surely, with friends like these, "our bird" would make it.

The bird's wings grew stronger, longer and sleeker. It began making short hops and flaps, that turned into circles that grew ever higher.

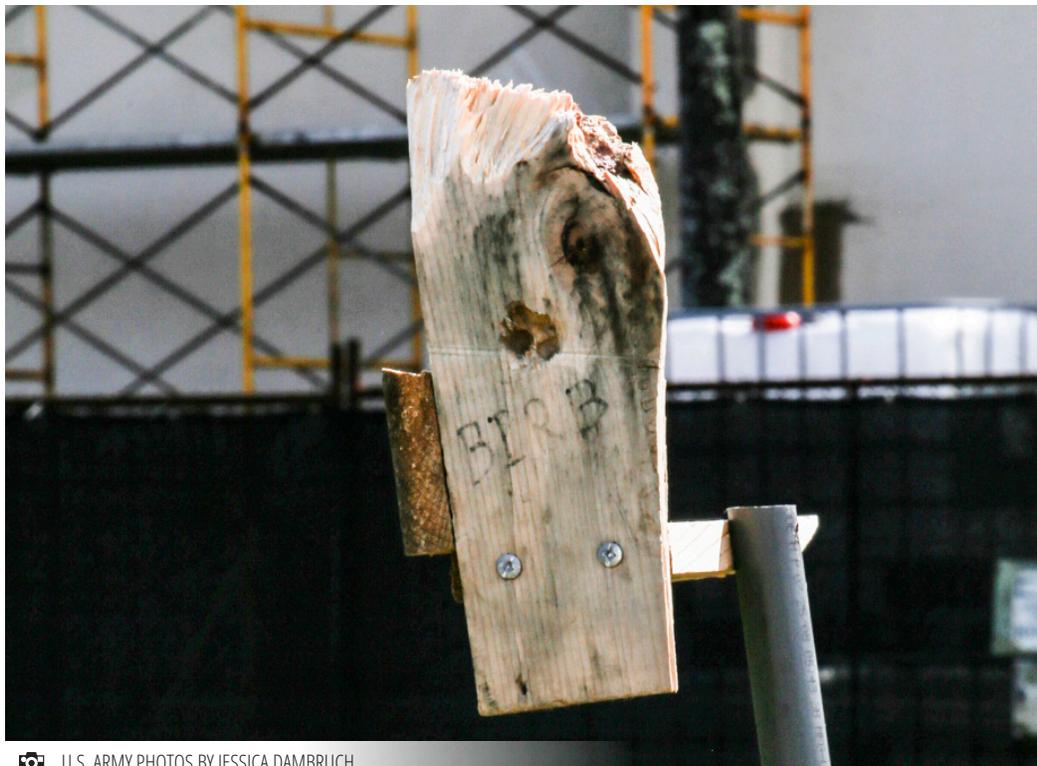

Then, one day, quite suddenly, the featherweight was an adult bird.

Then, it was gone.

Today, the stump with its orange safety perimeter is vacant. The bird family may come back.

Right now, they are probably flying somewhere overhead, scanning the horizon for fresh fish with an unparalleled view of the world.

Watch carefully, and you can see it hovering on the breeze.

All positive results must be called in to the COVID-19 Hotline, during working hours at 5-1103.

Employees should also notify their respective human resources departments.

Free COVID-19 test kits are available online at www.COVID19.gov/tests. On Kwajalein, the community will utilize the Test and Treat approach as outlined by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

If you have any symptoms (fever or chills; cough, shortness of breath or difficulty breathing; fatigue; muscle or body aches; headaches; new loss of taste or smell; a sore throat; congestion or a runny nose; nausea, vomiting or diarrhea) isolate yourself, correctly wear a mask over your mouth and nose, and get tested.

- Please call the COVID-19 Hotline at 5-1103 before visiting the hospital.
- If you are experiencing a medical emergency, call 911.
- Drink plenty of fluids and manage your symptoms with Acetamino-phen (Tylenol), Ibuprofen (Motrin/Advil) and/or over the counter cough remedies and decongestants.

- Utilize an island buddy or your human resources department to help with groceries, errands, trash removal and other needs.

If you test positive:

You are required to remain at home for five days, and you must retest on day five. This result must also be called in to the COVID-19 Hotline. If others are in the home, correctly wear your mask covering your mouth and nose, isolate as much as possible and do not share items. Use a separate washroom if possible, and frequently wash your hands.

- If you retest positive: Remain in your home and test again in five days.
- If you retest negative: After five days and a negative test, you may leave your home, but must correctly wear your facemask covering your mouth and nose whenever you are indoors and within six feet of any person. You may return to work or school. You must call the COVID-19 Hotline with the results of your retest, positive or negative.

Close Contact:

If you have been less than six-feet away from a tested positive person for a cumulative total of 15 minutes or more over a 24-hour period

- If you have symptoms, get tested.
- If you have no symptoms:
- Correctly wear a mask and monitor yourself for symptoms. You may go to work or school so long as you correctly wear your mask covering your mouth and nose.
- Get tested five full days after the Close Contact whether you have symptoms or not.

If you have symptoms but test negative:

- You may still have COVID-19.
- Notify your human resources representative of your illness, which may be unrelated to COVID-19. Follow your company HR policies as regards sickness.
- Normally, stay home until you have gone 24 hours without symptoms and/or fever (without fever medications).
- If symptoms persist, get tested again.

RMI employees should receive their COVID-19 tests through the Leiroj Kitlang Kabua Memorial Health Center on Ebeye.

Kwajalein's Well-Equipped Hospital

By Scott Johnson
Hourglass Editor

Kwajalein's isolated location out here in the Pacific Ocean has many advantages. We have a small, safe community. Life is quiet, far from the hassles of freeway traffic and endless lines everywhere you go. Recreation opportunities are unsurpassed.

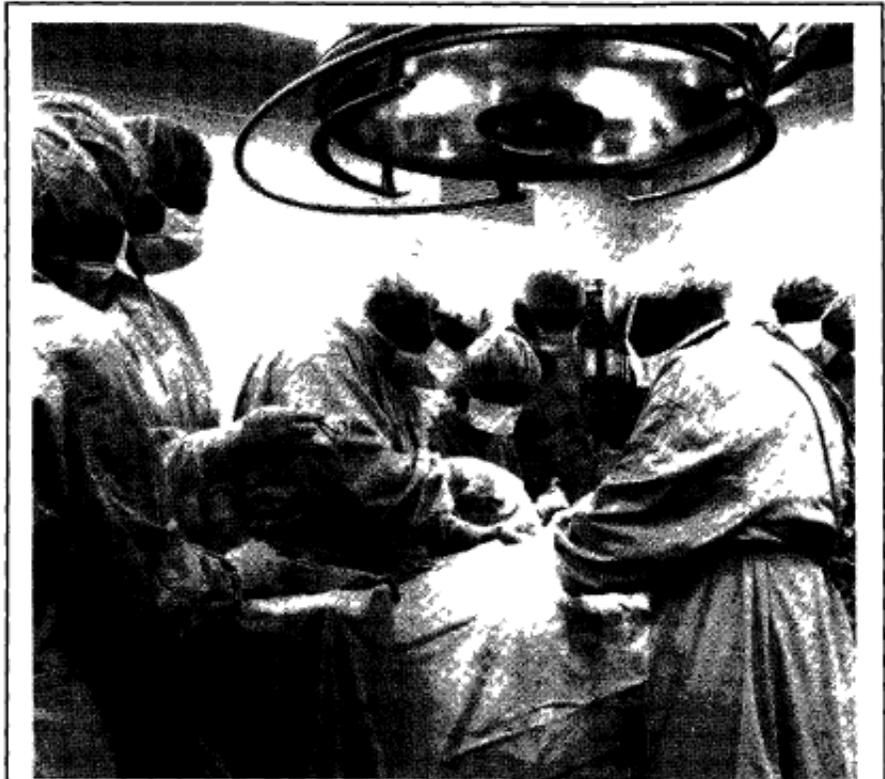

In the area of health, though, isolation can sometimes be a disadvantage. I spent nearly three years at an isolated research laboratory on Enewetak Atoll (350 miles from Kwajalein), where the closest thing we had to a hospital was our own medicine chest and a few medical books. Fortunately, we were able to call the doctors at Kwajalein's well-equipped hospital on our radio when we needed help or advice.

Kwajalein Hospital is larger and better equipped than can normally be found in communities as small as the one here on Kwaj. Staffed and operated by Pan Am World Services, Inc., the hospital is a lot more than just a simple clinic and dispensary. It is a full-service, 25-bed hospital that can provide short-term in-patient care, out-patient care, emergency treatment, obstetric services, general surgery and more. It is even responsible for some functions not normally associated with hospitals.

The hospital's staff consists of doctors, nurses and technicians of high professional calibre who are licensed to practice in various parts of the United States. Hospital Administrator Ray West says of them, "It's an outstanding staff. I've never worked with a better group of people."

The hospital is active 24 hours a day. Commuters can get appointments between 7 and 7:30 a.m., Monday through Friday. From 8-9 a.m. each weekday, the hospital provides a "sick call," which is intended primarily to give members of the work force the attention they need to get them back on the job quickly. A non-working resident may come to sick call, but if at all possible, it is preferable that he or she make an appointment instead.

Patients are usually seen by doctors on an appointment basis weekday mornings and afternoons, but emergency medical care is available at any time. Again, however, it is best to restrict the after-hours visits to real emergencies. While registered nurses are at the hospital 24 hours a day, physicians and other necessary personnel carry beepers and must be called in when patients come in after hours. Residents are encouraged to make appointments for any problem that can wait until normal working hours.

According to West, "We can take care of just about any problem on a short-term basis." He notes that the emergency room is well-equipped, and includes numerous devices used in life saving measures.

For long-term care, specific problems or diagnostic studies that cannot be performed here, patients are medi-vac'd to specialized medical centers in Honolulu.

For patients that need hospitalization but do not require specialized care in Honolulu, in-patient care can be provided. Visiting hours for patients run from 2-8 p.m.

In addition to a 7-bed male ward, 3-bed female ward and 2-bed isolation ward, the hospital boasts a 2-bed adult intensive care/coronary unit, with each bed monitored through a central monitor at the nurses' station. Also, there is a 2-bed monitored infant intensive care unit.

To support general surgery as well as more routine treatments, the hospital includes a full-service lab stocked with modern, automated test equipment. An X-ray department is capable of doing most of the specialized studies that may be required by the population on Kwajalein. The hospital pharmacy has a large formulary consisting of all the most common drugs, all of each drug manufacturer's wares may not be carried, but the stock of generic drugs is sufficient for just about any problem that may come up.

In addition to these primary functions, the hospital provides a number of ancillary services, including the mortuary, animal veterinary services, potable water testing laboratory services, a physical examination section, inspection of incoming shipments of food, sanitation inspections at public dining facilities, a medical social worker, and more.

Some of these different departments and functions will be covered in more detail in future issues of the Hourglass.

END//

Why the additional HPCON measures?

USAG-KA is fortunate to have zero hospitalizations despite 372 cases of COVID over the last 4 weeks.

Restrictions are implemented to control the spread of COVID in order to not overwhelm medical capacity, impact mission or the delivery of critical services, and keep everyone as safe and healthy as possible.

Understand that current restrictions are TEMPORARY!

We will repeal these HPCON restrictions and restore services when case-rate reduces over the next few weeks.

Together we can #KWashTheBug!

E-WARENESS WHAT IS A HAZARDOUS WASTE COLLECTION AREA?

A Hazardous Waste Collection Area is a designated location where a generator (i.e., Kwaj Ops, Utilities, Amec, San Juan, Nan, etc.) accumulates as much as 55 gallons of hazardous waste in containers at or near any point of generation (i.e., shops, project site).

Look but do not touch. For a detailed refresher, please attend the Island Orientation Briefing on the fourth Wednesday of every month.

REPORTING OPTIONS FOR ADULT VICTIMS OF SEXUAL ASSAULT

There are two reporting options for victims of sexual assault: Restricted and Unrestricted. The major difference between these reporting options is that an Unrestricted Report will trigger an official investigation, include command involvement, and allow requests for an expedited transfer and/or military protective order, whereas a Restricted Report will not. Your SARC or VA can explain your options.

RESTRICTED REPORT

Filing a Restricted Report allows you to confidentially disclose a sexual assault to a SARC or VA without notifying your command or law enforcement.

When you file a Restricted Report, you are eligible for:

- Medical treatment
- Sexual Assault Forensic Exam
- Counseling
- Chaplain Services
- Special Victim Counsel
- Legal Advocacy
- Victim Advocacy

You may change a Restricted Report to an Unrestricted Report at any time.

NEW UPDATE

A victim can file a Restricted Report even if...

1. The sexual assault has been inadvertently or previously disclosed to command by the victim, suspect, or third party;
2. The matter has been reported to law enforcement, to include the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Division, by anyone other than the victim; or
3. An investigation is initiated, in progress, or closed.

Victims may elect to make a Restricted Report of sexual assault at any time, EXCEPT in cases where the victim:

- Personally reported the incident to law enforcement (including CID); or
- Previously filed an Unrestricted Report with a signed DD Form 2910 (the Victim Reporting Preference Statement) for the same sexual assault

UNRESTRICTED REPORT

Filing an Unrestricted Report allows for an official investigation, command notification, and reporting to law enforcement. You can make an Unrestricted Report to a SARC, VA, law enforcement official, a commander, or health care personnel.

When you file an Unrestricted Report you are eligible for:

- Medical Treatment
- Sexual Assault Forensic Exam
- Counseling
- Chaplain Services
- Special Victim Counsel
- Legal Advocacy
- Victim Advocacy
- Command Support/Intervention
- Official Investigation

An Unrestricted Report also allows you to request protective and support measures like an Expedited Transfer or Military Protective Order. An Unrestricted Report cannot be changed to a Restricted Report.

Recognizing and reporting retaliation for an Unrestricted Report of sexual assault:

Retaliation may consist of the following acts:

- Reprisal
- Ostracism
- Maltreatment, including cruelty and oppression

Report Retaliation to the following:

- Brigade SARC
- Installation IG
- DoD IG Hotline: 800.424.9098
- DoD Safe Helpline: 877.995.5247

WEATHER DISCUSSION

Drier, more stable weather is in store for Kwajalein Atoll on Saturday heading into the weekend as the Intertropical Convergence Zone weakens over RMI.

Widely scattered showers will taper off across the area on Saturday morning as ITCZ activity shifts west of the atoll and a region of dry, sinking air aloft moves over the northern RMI.

Expect winds to fall to the low to upper single digits on Saturday, followed by a trade wind surge this weekend with winds sustaining in the mid- to upper teens late Sunday night into Monday. Shower coverage will increase on Monday, mainly to the south of the atoll as the ITCZ becomes more organized across southern RMI.

The ITCZ will build north and overhead during the start of this next workweek, leading to periods of scattered to numerous showers on Tuesday and Wednesday.

After a period of drier conditions and lower shower activity around mid-week, the second half of the workweek is expected to be unsettled and rainy with sporadic ITCZ surges over the area.

Significant rainfall and lightning threats will be likely at times, but drier conditions are looking to set in by the start of the following week-end.

SATURDAY

Partly cloudy with widely scattered showers in the morning decreasing to stray showers in the afternoon. Winds will be ENE-ESE at 4-9 knots. Shower coverage will be 20 percent in the morning decreasing to <10% in the afternoon.

SUNDAY

Partly cloudy to mostly sunny with stray showers. Winds will be NE-E at 11-16 knots. Shower coverage will be <10 percent.

MONDAY INTO NEXT WEEK

Partly to mostly cloudy with isolated showers on Monday, building to scattered to numerous showers at times on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Winds will be ENE-ESE in the low to upper teens on Tuesday with winds diminishing on Wednesday to the upper single digits.

Expect light and variable winds with periods of significant shower activity and potential thunderstorms for the second half of the week, followed by drier conditions next weekend.

USAG-KA is starting back up the Yard of the Month program for all residents of Kwajalein Army Family Housing.

The Kwajalein Housing Office will choose three island quarters for consideration. One lucky winner will take the prize.

Prizes could include a free MWR cart rental, pizza from the Sunrise Bakery, or a game of bowling.

The shoulder sleeve insignia of the 7th Infantry Division consists of two black, equilateral triangles placed vertically on a red circular disc giving it an hourglass shape. The hourglass of the insignia was consequently used in the title of the island newspaper, The Kwajalein Hourglass.
