18TH ANNUAL RMI TRADE FAIR BRINGS COMMUNITIES TOGETHER

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

Kwajalein welcomed vendors and artisans to the 18th Annual Marshallese Trade Fair to USAG-KA Nov. 6 and 7. The event was coordinated with support from the RMI Office of Commerce, Investment & Tourism, the RMI Liaison Office, Kwajalein Atoll Local Government and the USAG-KA Host Nation Office. This year's vendors represented artisans and crafters from Ebeye and Majuro, including the Elefa and Misco Stores.

Island residents purchased unique foods, fresh fruits and vegetables, amimono (handicrafts), shirts, and sampled freshly grilled huli-huli chicken prepared by members of the Jinetiptip Club.

USACE HONORS VETERANS DAY WITH ISLAND ADOPT-A-SPOT

BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

Personnel from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers stationed on U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll recently claimed an adopt-a-spot project near the Kwajalein Golf Course. Together, the team has made the area more inviting for island residents to enjoy.

“We all pitched in, led by Mike Geer and Kevin Kitchen,” said island resident and USACE employee Michael Way. “We collected up vegetation debris, trimmed tree limbs that were obstructing the area, and picked up human garbage such as plastic, cans and stuff that had washed up from the ocean.”

Way said the team plans to continue regular maintenance at the site every six months to maintain the area in observance of Veterans Day. They are still picking clean-up dates for next year.

“Our office has a long history of service to both our community and our country,” Way said. “We wanted to have an organization day that was more than just hanging out at Emon Beach, we wanted it to matter. Nine out of the 11 of us are veterans, and so the idea of a community service oriented clean up caught on quickly once brought up. Our Area Engineer, Blair Jones, suggested that spot and the rest of the office pitched in to make it a reality.”

COMMUNITIES RAISE QUESTIONS AT KWAJALEIN AND ROI TOWN HALL MEETINGS

U.S. ARMY PHOTOS BY JESSICA DAMBRUCH

BY MIKE BRANTLEY / USAG-KA PUBLIC AFFAIRS

To fully inform the Kwajalein Community following the recent Town Hall meeting on November 5, the command team for U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll would like to discuss a few topics before addressing the concerns of the community.

Following an alleged sexual assault in mid-August, USAG-KA advised every tenant organization to notify their employees—not once, but twice—of the alleged incident. Based on comments made at last week’s community town hall, it has become evident that there were some within the community who had not been made aware of the reported incident.

While we want to ensure that the community has as much information as possible, we also have a responsibility to ensure that individual privacy rights as well as the integrity of the investigation are maintained to ensure a successful outcome of the case. It is important to note that when the time comes for the U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Department to release informational updates about the case to the public, they will do so, and we will ensure the widest dissemination to the community.

Concerns were raised from the community regarding the contractor’s impending actions against several teachers in the Kwajalein School System who do not meet body mass index standards or other health standards. We had not been made fully aware of this matter. USAG-KA is working with the Army Contracting Command and 413th Contracting Support Brigade for a way forward on this matter.

Additional concerns raised during the town hall included the following:

- Electronic badging at the airport and marina for 100 percent accountability, so we know exactly who is on the island. Everyone is vetted before arriving on Kwajalein, but previous offenses should be flagged to get the total-person concept.
- A message board for USAG-KA to inform the community about island events much more quickly, like the KSS Blackboard for mass communications to the parents.

- Since the 480 process is now fully activated, island residents are encouraged to have medevac insurance in the case of an emergency while visitors are on-island.
- Completed background investigations for teachers before the school year begins
- Ensure an ACC Rock Island contracting official is available at the next town hall.
- Whether the interim security clearance requirement be expedited for a CNAC-I

Concerns from the Roi Town Hall earlier that day, included:

- HVAC issues in billeting
- Filters removed from the water fountains installation-wide
- Adjusting the Defense Commissary Agency orders so food is not expired soon after it arrives on Roi
- The availability of additional United Airlines flights
- Concerns over DA Form 4283s—Facilities, Engineering Work Requests—in the General Fund Enterprise Business System waiting for approval.
- Whether or not children are counted in the 480 visitor program scheduling process. Currently, Children aged 10 years and under are not counted against the 90-day maximum yearly allotment for visitors.
- Exploring courses of action to prevent misuse of the low-water washing machines on Roi-Namur.
- Proper monitoring of alcohol use and consumption at events to promote the health and safety of the Marshallese workforce. On USAG-KA, overuse of alcohol is not permitted. Alcohol use at parties and venues for our Marshallese workers and guests. (Monitor but
- Roi-Namur residents have asked for additional, planned social activities and events
- The status of new fuel pumps for Roi-Namur

U.S. SPACE AND MISSILE DEFENSE COMMAND HISTORY

BY SHARON WATKINS-LANG, USASMDC HISTORIAN

On Nov. 3 - 4, 1966, the Kwajalein Test Site hosted the 29th Range Commander's Council.

This was the first time that the Council, an inter-service group established to review missile range instrumentation and range management problems, met on Kwajalein. Joining Brig. Gen. Ivey O. Drewry, commander, NIKE-X Project Office/Kwajalein Test Site at the meeting were representatives from Army Test & Evaluation

Command, the Air Force's Western Test Range at Vandenberg, the test site at Edwards AFB, Eglin AFB, White Sands Missile Range, Eastern Test Range, Naval Ordnance Test Station at China Lake, and the manager of the Air Force's Satellite Control Center.

Council members toured the test site, which was established in 1959 to support the development and testing of the nation's anti-missile missile systems. With equipment valued at $500 million, the remote Kwajalein Test Site was home to 3,000 Americans.

BIRTHDAYS

MARSHALLESE
LANGUAGE LESSON 10

The kemem, or first birthday celebration, remains one of the most important celebrations in Marshallese culture.

It is rooted in the past, where scant healthcare was available, and many children did not survive their first year.

If a baby reached their first birthday, it signified that the child was strong, and that event is still celebrated today.

Jarred Webb, an ammunitions specialist with the 35th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion, takes hand grenades out of their cardboard canisters during training at Combined Arms Training Center Camp Fuji, Japan, Nov. 2, 2022. About 30 Soldiers from the battalion threw the grenades during a week of live-fire training that also included small arms and crew-served weapons to better prepare the unit for possible base defense missions.

ARMY SUSTAINERS FOCUS ON GRENADE SKILLS TO INCREASE LETHALITY

EXTERNAL REPORT

By Sean Kimmons
U.S. Army Garrison Japan
Public Affairs

Combined Arms Training Center, Camp Fuji, Japan—Before any hand grenades could blast more shrapnel into a pockmarked range, anticipation filled the air as 60 live grenades were taken out of their cardboard canisters and distributed to Soldiers.

From a concrete pit that overlooked the small range, Spc. Jermayn Griffo tossed two of the grenades, creating loud booms that echoed through a surrounding wooded area near Mount Fuji.

“I was a little bit nervous, but once I got down there and remembered the training that I received I was comfortable with throwing the grenades,” said Griffo, an information technology specialist.

While it was “a rush” to hear and feel the nearby explosions, Griffo said the best part of the training was learning from the lane safeties.

“For me, it’s more about getting the proper techniques down,” he said, “so I’ll know how to deploy them without having a safety there.”

Griffo and about 30 other Soldiers assigned to the 35th Combat Sustainment Support Battalion qualified on grenades Nov. 2 during a week of live-fire training that also included small arms and crew-served weapons to better prepare the unit for possible base defense missions.

“We want our unit to be ready if duty calls,” said Staff Sgt. Saony Lopez, an operations noncommissioned officer who helped organize the training event. “So it is important for us to continue to make sure our Soldiers are ready and comfortable executing basic Soldier skills.”

Lopez served as one of the safeties during the live grenade event, in which each Soldier demonstrated the procedures of throwing a grenade.

She also had the chance to toss grenades, the first time she has been able to do so since she went through basic training 12 years ago.

“For every Soldier who gets to do this, it’s very exciting,” she said. “It gets them comfortable and builds more confidence ... to be ready to engage [the enemy] at any time.”

The battalion has steadily honed its readiness through recent training events that had Soldiers brave a gas chamber as well as participate in a Best Warrior Competition.

Base security also played a key part in a weeklong field training exercise at Sagami General Depot in late September that led to last week’s live-fire training.

“When we are doing base defense we would have Soldiers with actual hand grenades on them,” said Command Sgt. Maj. Paul J. Denson, the battalion’s senior enlisted leader. “In order to ensure Soldiers know how to properly use hand grenades, we got to train for it.”

As the only U.S. Army sustainment unit in mainland Japan, Denson said that his unit has to maintain its lethality.

“Many times, as sustainers, we do not get as many sets and reps as our maneuver brothers and sisters,” he said. “To build lethality, you have to ensure that you build sets and reps and confidence. And to do that you have to come out and do the hard work.”

Soldiers working hard together can then improve unit cohesion, which Denson was able to witness on the grenade range.

“It’s not often that units throw live hand grenades,” he said. “Just receiving some of the feedback from my younger Soldiers, they’re saying that it has definitely helped them build camaraderie.

“They won’t forget this day and they won’t forget the opportunity of throwing live hand grenades and being ready if called upon.”

COCONUT CRABS ARE A PROTECTED SPECIES

This coconut crab was photographed by USAG-KA resident Art Bennis on Roi-Namur. It is one of many on USAG-KA-maintained islands that are protected by environmental standards enforced by the Army and the Marshall Islands.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Environmental Standards for U.S. Army Garrison-Kwajalein Atoll identify the coconut crab as a protected species. For this reason, USAG-KA residents and personnel should not touch, harass, injure or kill coconut crabs.

The coconut crab (Birgus latro), known locally as barulep, is a type of land-based hermit crab. Unlike other hermit crabs, the coconut crab does not make use of a shell beyond the juvenile stages of its life. It is this characteristic that allows the coconut crab to grow so large in size.

Despite their name, coconut crabs have a varied diet which includes other fresh fruits and even meats, usually smaller crabs or dead animals. They use their strong sense of smell to locate food when they emerge from their burrows to hunt at night and, typically, remain inside their burrows during the day to protect themselves from the heat.

Coconut crabs can be found on many of the small islands throughout the Pacific and Indian Oceans. The state of their population remains unknown. For this reason, some nations have given this species protected status.

MOSQUITO FOGGING FOR KWAJ, ROI

Kwajalein: Tuesday, Nov. 29 through Thursday, Dec. 1, from 5:30 - 7:30 p.m.
Roi-Namur: Wednesday, Dec. 7 through Friday, Dec. 9, from 5:30 - 7:30 p.m.

PUBLIC SAFETY ANNOUNCEMENT

To spray for mosquitoes and flies, island pest control services will utilize EcoVia EC, is a liquid botanical oil insecticide with Thyme and Rosemary oil as active ingredients. It is safe to use in and around homes and near water. EcoVia is also safe to use around children and pets. The spraying schedule is dependent on weather conditions.

It is recommended that island residents avoid fogged areas for 30 minutes.

Do your part to deter mosquitoes and flies

- Check for standing water where mosquitoes breed
- Dump any accumulated water at least weekly
- Trim heavy vegetation and eliminate accumulated leaves

Do not add food waste directly into open trash cans such as the Emon Beach trash containers, large black trash cans, or residential green trash receptacles.

Always seal food and animal waste inside trash/plastic bags before adding to trash cans.

Periodically clean outdoor trash receptacles.

COOKING SAFETY

USAG-KA FIRE PREVENTION OFFICE MONTHLY TIP

- Cooking fires are the number one cause of home fires and home injuries, yet nearly all of them are preventable.
- The leading cause of kitchen fires is cooking left unattended.
- On the stovetop, smother the flames by sliding a lid over the pan and turning off the burner.
- For an oven fire, turn off the heat and keep the door closed.
- Have a "kid-free zone" of at least 3 feet around the stove.
- Stay in the kitchen, be alert, and cook with caution.

Please contact our office for questions or assistance at 5-2137.

UXO REMINDER

PUBLIC SAFETY ANNOUNCEMENT

Remember the three Rs of UXO: Recognize an item as possible Unexploded Ordnance. Retreat from the area of the UXO. Report suspected UXO immediately by notifying EOD (5-1433) or CPS (5-4445).

Provide the following information: Location (building #, GPS, landmarks, etc); Size (compared to common items - football, scuba cylinder, etc). Treat UXO like you would treat dangerous sea creatures. Look but do not touch. For a detailed refresher, please attend the Island Orientation Briefing on the fourth Wednesday of every month.

RTS WEATHER STATION STAFF

WEATHER DISCUSSION

A ridge will remain in place during the day on Saturday. Stray to isolated showers expected during the day. A gradual increase in showers expected late Saturday night into the day on Sunday from a low-level trough pushing through. Series of disturbances will lead to scattered showers and potential isolated thunderstorms from Monday through at least the middle of next week. Winds will remain in the low to mid-teens through the forecast period outside of showers. Cloud debris will be heavy starting next Monday continuing through the rest of the next week as the result of low-level disturbances pushing through the area.

SATURDAY

Mostly to partly cloudy with stray showers in the morning increasing to isolated showers in the afternoon. Winds E-ESE at 10-15 knots with higher gusts near showers.

SUNDAY

Partly sunny to mostly cloudy with scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms. Winds ENE-E at 11-16 knots with higher gusts near showers.

MONDAY

Mostly cloudy with scattered showers and isolated thunderstorms possible. Winds ENE-ESE at 8-13 knots with higher gusts near showers.

NEXT WEEK

A series of low-level disturbances will contribute to periods of showers...locally heavy at times with the threat of isolated thunderstorms early this week. By the middle of the week into the end of the week, a trade wind surge will lead to areas of localized speed convergence posing continued threat of unsettled weather conditions. Generally, conditions will be stable with moderate to potentially fresh trade winds especially middle into the end of the upcoming week.

Work and play safely.
