A LOOK BACK A SPECIAL FERRY JUST FOR KWAJALEIN

HOURLASS REPORT

By Sharon Watkins Lang, USASMDC Command Historian

Sixty years ago (August 1, 1964), the USNS Point Barrow set sail from the Charleston Army Depot in South Carolina. Include in the cargo for the NIKE-X Systems Kwajalein Test Site were 7 LCMs (Landing Craft Mechanized) and three 120 foot LCUs or (Landing Craft Utility), the result of a maritime survey conducted by the Army prior to the transfer. The LCMs were work boats during the week but were available for picnics and fishing on the weekends. Two of the LCUs were tasked to transport cargo between the nine different islands in the Test Site. The third however was specially designed by the Army for Kwajalein. "The first Army planned vessel of this type," this LCU had been converted to a two-deck ferry. Equipped "like the Staten Island Ferry" it was capable of carrying up to 800 passengers. More than 100 names were submitted for the new ferry which was christened the Tarlang, which means "storm proof" in early September. The Tarlang completed its maiden voyage from Kwajalein to Ebeye on September 7th.

Navy, DOD Leaders Discuss Space Capabilities During Second Naval Space Summit at NPS.

EXTERNAL REPORT

By Lt.Cmdr. Edward Early,
Naval Postgraduate School

MONTEREY, Calif. – Recognizing the importance of a rapidly evolving space domain to U.S. national defense, key leaders from the U.S. Navy, Marine Corps and Department of Defense gathered at the Naval Postgraduate School (NPS) for the second annual Naval Space Summit, July 9-11.

The summit, sponsored by the Secretary of the Navy and organized by the office of the Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Information Warfare (N2N6), provides an essential venue for top DOD and Department of the Navy officials to discuss the state of space operations and capabilities within the services, as well as the latest issues and opportunities in the space domain.

Under Secretary of the Navy Erik Raven, who represented Secretary of the Navy Carlos Del Toro at the summit, reminded attendees of the similarities between the maritime domain and the space domain, as well as their importance to our nation's history.

"The sea has left an indelible mark on history and character of our nation. For nearly 249 years, our nation has relied on the grit, tenacity, and courage of our Sailors and Marines," said Raven. "Just as the oceans have shaped the last quarter-millennium of our nation, space will shape our future – for centuries to come."

Vice Chief of Naval Operations Adm. James Kilby, himself an NPS graduate, acknowledged NPS' crucial, longstanding role in space systems education, operations and engineering through the school's Space Systems Academic Group (SSAG).

"No other venue brings together the fleet and expertise with our SPACECOM joint partners to address warfighting issues in the space domain at the most senior levels of Department of the Navy and DOD," said Kilby. "Advancing the state of the art in space-based capability is fundamental to advancing our maritime advantage. This also requires a deep bench of talented naval leaders who understand the technologies and can develop new concepts of operations for how we fight..."

WEEKLY TROPICAL WEATHER THREAT OUTLOOK

RTS WEATHER STATION STAFF

Discussion:

After unseasonably breezy and dry weather the couple of days, the ITCZ has returned to Kwajalein with soggy conditions. Drier conditions return Friday and Saturday before the ITCZ regroups over the weekend. Sunday into next week should see occasional periods of showers, along with the possibility of a few strong wind gusts and a stray thunderstorm or two. Winds will back to the ENE on Friday and increase Friday night. Prevailing wind speeds are expected to moderate to under 10 knots next week. Rainfall over the next 7 days is expected to be near normal; normal weekly rainfall this time of year is approximately 2.2 inches.

Tropical Cyclones:

None for Kwajalein, Guam, Hawaii, and Wake Island over the next 7 days.

Swell / Tide Inundation Risk for Kwajalein Atoll and Wake Island:

Risk remains low over the next 7 days.

Tides:

Next Spring tides will be with the 21 July Full moon; daily peak tides will exceed 4 feet from 20 to 26 July.

Purpose: This weekly briefing is delivered Thursday mornings to island leadership. The intention of this briefing is to provide situational awareness of weather events that may interrupt operations and transportation around Kwajalein, to/from Hawaii and Guam, and in the Wake vicinity. The main threat assessed in this brief is existing and potential development of tropical cyclone activity. This brief also provides an outlook of abnormal winds, sea state, and precipitation guidance for next 7 days around the Kwajalein Atoll. The distribution list will also receive updates on any developing tropical cyclone activity in the Kwajalein region that occur between the weekly outlook product.

WEATHER DISCUSSION

A somewhat changeable weather pattern is in store for the end of the workweek and the upcoming weekend. A dry trade wind flow will be in place on Saturday, helping to suppress shower activity. An area of trade wind convergence may lead to a few isolated showers during the morning, but otherwise only stray showers are expected during the afternoon. Starting Saturday night, a weak atmospheric wave will begin moving into the RMI, leading to a modest increase in shower activity for Saturday night and Sunday. A couple heavier showers may be possible with this feature, as mid-level moisture will be quite abundant. By Sunday night, this feature should move out and allow drier conditions to resume through most of the day on Monday. Shower activity may begin to increase again starting late Monday in association with the Inter-Tropical Convergence Zone (ITCZ) beginning to reorganize. The winds on Saturday will be enhanced somewhat by a subtropical high to the northeast strengthening the pressure gradient across the RMI, with east-northeasterly winds generally in the low-mid teens and some gusts in the mid-upper 20s possible near showers during the morning due to stronger mid-level winds. By Sunday, the subtropical high will move off to the east, allowing winds to become more easterly and speeds to decrease to the upper single digits to low teens for Sunday and Monday.

SATURDAY

Mostly to partly sunny with stray to isolated showers during the morning decreasing to just stray showers in the afternoon. Winds NE-E at 11-16 knots with higher gusts near showers, especially during the morning.

SUNDAY

Partly sunny with isolated to widely scattered showers. Winds ENE-ESE at 8-13 knots with higher gusts possible near showers.

MONDAY

Mostly to partly sunny with stray showers becoming isolated late in the afternoon. Winds ENE-ESE at 8-13 knots with higher gusts possible near showers.

NEXT WEEK

The ITCZ looks to reorganize somewhat near the south-central RMI, leading to an overall wetter pattern. The Tuesday into Wednesday time period in particular looks to have periods of significant shower activity. Additionally, colder temperatures and some divergence aloft may make conditions more favorable for deep convection and lightning, increasing the thunderstorm risk on these days as well. An unsettled, wetter pattern may continue beyond that as well although the timing and locations of greater shower activity are uncertain.
